SHILLITONI SHOOTS GUARDS; ESCAPES THE DEATH HOUSE

Murderer of New York Policemen, Awaiting Execution, Had Pistol in Cell.

RECAPTURED WITHIN A MILE

Enters Ossining Hospital Stark Naked, Demands Lodging and Waits Till Keepers Come.

ONE OF HIS VICTIMS MAY DIE

Woman Visitor Probably Took Revolver to Prisoner, as All Men Callers Are Searched.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Thursday, June 22.—Oreste Shillitoni, known in New York's underworld as "The Paper Box Kid," who shot and killed a fellow gangster and two policemen in Mulberry Street, New York, in May, 1913, and who was awaiting the end in the death house of Sing Sing Prison here, shot two keepers and escaped early this morning.

Less than two hours later he terrified the telephone operator in the Ossining Hospital in Spring Street here by walking in and demanding lodging for the night. He was stark naked and quietly took a seat on a bench, waiting there while the frightened girl telephoned to the prison. Keepers were hurried to the hospital and returned Shillitoni to the death cell.

Shillitoni's victims this morning were Keepers Bullard and McCarthy. McCarthy he shot through the stomach, and he put two bullets into Bullard's right arm. Both men, but especially McCarthy, are said to be in serious condition.

The man who killed John Rizzo, a rival gangster, and Policeman William Heaney and Charles Teare when they tried to arrest him for it, and who surrendered himself to the police with the boast that he might have remained at liberty indefinitely, accomplished the first escape from the death house since Palliser and Roehl broke out in 1893 by shooting two keepers.

Played on Guards' Sympathy.

Like Palliser and Roehl, Shillitoni worked on the sympathy of his keepers. Palliser and Roehl pretended to be ill and induced the keepers to enter their cells. Shillitoni begged to be allowed to walk in the corridor. Since there was no way out of the death house except through the iron door to which Bullard and McCarthy held keys, McCarthy, whose attention Shillitoni attracted, granted the request.

When he opened the cell door Shillitoni stepped out and instantly thrust a revolver under the nose of the astonished keepers, at the same time demanding the key to the door. McCarthy pushed the pistol aside and grappled with Shillitoni, at the same time calling for help. In an instant the death house was in an uproar.

There were twenty other inmates and Keeper Bullard besides the two men struggling in the corridor. The other condemned men added their cries to those of McCarthy and Bullard raced down the corridor his revolver in hand. As he ran two pistol shots sounded through the corridor and Bullard burst upon Shillitoni just as the latter had removed the keys from the pocket of McCarthy who lay writhing and nearly senseless on the floor.

Shillitoni turned his revolver against Bullard before the keeper could raise his own weapon and sent two bullets flying through Bullard's revolver arm. The keeper's weapon rattled on the floor and Shillitoni leaped past him, opened the death-house door with McCarthy's key and escaped into the prison yard, locking the door behind him, however.

Swam to Freedom.

Already Captain Vaughn, in command at night, and Dr. A. O. Squire had been aroused by the shots, the yells and the commotion, and keepers were running toward the death house from all directions. Shillitoni eluded them all, however, and presently a searcher came on his clothing lying in a heap in a corner of the outer wall. Apparently Shillitoni had discarded his clothing, climbed the iron fence and dropped into the Hudson, where he swam around the outer wall and landed in safety on the railroad tracks, at liberty, but without clothes.

From the moment his escape became known the whistle atop the prison screamed and every one in town knew that some one had escaped. That it was Shillitoni did not become known, however, until the prison authorities notified the police of Peekskill and of this town to be on the watch for him.

Presently a report came from the night watchman of the Brandreth medicine factory, three-quarters of a mile north of the prison, that he had seen a man walking along the railroad tracks toward Croton. Keepers followed that trail, but there was no trace of Shillitoni until he appeared in the hospital.

According to the hospital authorties the man was very evidently out of his mind and it was recalled that it was only a few days more than two weeks ago that Shillitoni feigned, or actually experienced a derangement which seemed to turn him into a raving maniac. His shrieks and yells aroused the prison. He broke the furnishings in his cell and attacked the keepers, Bullard among them, who tried to calm him. The whole prison was in an uproar until Dr. Squire quieted the man with an injection of drugs.

Shillitoni's outbreak followed his receipt of the news that his appeal from conviction had been denied by the Court of Appeals and occurred on the day Roy Champlain and Giovanni Supe had been put to death in the death chamber only

Lightship Sunk by Mine; Dutch Steamer Also Lost

YARMOUTH, June 22.—The Corton lightship, stationed several miles off the English east coast, has been sunk by a mine, according to the survivors, two in number. They say that Captain Rudd, at the bow, sighted a mine and gave warning. The explosion came an instant later, and was so terrific that the vessel was raised out of the water and broken up. She sank immediately.

The survivors were picked up by a fishing boat after being ten minutes in the water. There was no sign of the Captain or of members of the crew other than the two.

LONDON, June 21.—Lloyd's Shipping Agency announces the sinking of the Dutch steamer Otistarda, formerly the Hollander, a vessel of 759 tons gross.

GERMANS CHECK RUSSIAN DRIVE

Terrific Battles in Progress Along the Styr and Stokhod Rivers.

BUKOWINA PURSUIT RAPID

Lechitsky Crosses the Sereth After Austrians—Hindenburg Seeks to Cause Diversion.

LONDON, Thursday, June 22.—The official communications issued today by the German, Austrian, and Russian War Offices all indicate that, as has been anticipated, the Germans are making a determined effort to resume the initiative lost by the Russian General Brussiloff's drive and create a diversion by a strong attack on General Kuropatkin's armies in the north, and especially in Volhynia, on the Styr and Stokhod Rivers, in an effort to prevent the Russians receiving reinforcements.

Meanwhile the Russians have crossed the Sereth River in Bukowina in pursuit of General Pflanzer's dismembered army.

Military experts say that a great battle is developing on the line of the River Bug, or a parallel line to be drawn through Kovel, Vladimir-Volynski, and Lemberg, where the Germans are making desperate efforts to arrest the Russian advance, in order to prevent the important railway junction of Kovel from falling into Russian hands.

"The northern part of the front," says The Daily Mail, "seems likely to become as active as the southern part has been lately. The Germans know that the loss of Kovel would seriously affect their northern army. It is significant that while they have transferred troops from other fronts they have not moved any from this particular district."

The Morning Post's Petrograd correspondent observes that the Germans are making a stand before Kovel and Vladimir-Volynski, but that the Russian advance continues on both flanks, "encountering stubborn resistance only on the direct road to Lemberg and the lower reaches of the Stripa." The correspondent adds that the German line on the Russian front is assuming a zigzag appearance, suggesting many possibilities which for the present had better be left to conjecture.

Russian Version of Situation.

PETROGRAD, June 21.—An official announcement issued today says that in a severe engagement on the Stokhod River in Volhynia German troops, which made an attack in massed formation, were repulsed and took to flight. The announcement follows:

Desperate fighting continues in the region north of Gadomitchi, on the Styr. The village of Gruziatyn changed hands several times. Yesterday afternoon we entered the village and captured eleven officers, 400 men and six machine guns, but gusts of German artillery fire compelled us to evacuate the town again.

With furious persistence the Germans operating in the region of Verontchine, northeast of Kiselin, under cover of gusts of artillery fire from both light and heavy guns, made repeated attacks on the evening of June 20 against our young regiments. Our troops by impetuous attack put the Germans to flight, taking nine machine guns and a number of prisoners belonging to various regiments.

At 3 o'clock on the following morning in the region of the village of Rajmiesto on the Stokhod River, northeast of Verontschine, the enemy attacked in mass formation. The engagement became a hand-to-hand struggle in which the Germans, unable to sustain our steady pressure, took flight, leaving in our hands wounded and prisoners not yet counted.

Desperate fighting is in progress in the region of Kiselin and further south.

On the extreme left wing we are still pursuing the enemy and have crossed the Sereth River.

The total number of prisoners taken by General Brussiloff from June 3 to 15, inclusive, was 3,350 officers and 169,134 men. We also captured 198 guns, 550 machine guns, 189 bomb throwers, 119 artillery limbers, 34 searchlights and a large quantity of other war material.

On the Dvina front, German artillery violently bombarded the region of the Ikskul bridgehead and the northern sector of the Jacobstadt positions.

On Tuesday night the Germans, after an intense bombardment of our lines to the southward of Smorgon, succeeded in penetrating our trenches, but were soon dislodged by our artillery and driven back to their own lines by a counterattack.

In other sectors in this region all enemy attempts to attack were re-

ALLIES WORKING FOR PEACE

Put Pressure on Carranza for Fear Naval Oil Will Be Shut Off.

GERMANS FOMENT TROUBLE

Want United States Embroiled So They Can Save Their Latin-American Trade.

ARBITRATION IS SUGGESTED

Carranza and Cabinet Discuss Lansing Note, but Have Not Yet Replied.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Some intimation as to what General Carranza's next step would be was expected hourly tonight at the State Department. Official advices reported that the American rejection of the demand for the recall of General Pershing's troops from Mexico was under consideration today by the First Chief and his Cabinet.

Special Agent Rodgers, who made the report, was unable to forecast the action of the de facto Government, and threw little light on what was going on in the Mexican capital. From other sources, however, it was learned that European diplomats were exerting pressure on Carranza to prevent him from going to war with the United States. The Entente Allies are particularly anxious, it is understood, that nothing should occur at this time to shut off the oil supplies for the French and British navies from the Tampico fields.

Allied diplomatic representatives in Mexico believe, too, that German influences have been working on Carranza in an effort to create a situation that might embarrass the enemies of the Central Powers. They have asserted that German agencies have been active in stirring up feeling against the United States not only in Mexico, but throughout South and Central America, to prevent this country from securing trade formerly controlled by German merchants.

Point Possible Ways Out.

It is understood that the diplomats have pointed out to General Carranza that the American note only declines to consider immediately any suggestion that its troops be withdrawn from Mexico, and that it quotes a portion of the agreement between General Scott and General Obregon providing, among other things, for the gradual withdrawal of the forces.

Another suggestion is that the dispute over border conditions could well be referred to an international commission under the treaty of 1848 between the two countries. Diplomatic officials here are known to believe that President Wilson would consider such a suggestion if he met with no interference in the meantime in his efforts to guard the American border from bandits.

The State Department had no official reports on the peacemaking efforts in Mexico City, although it has been informed indirectly of what is transpiring. It is believed the assurances contained in Secretary Lansing's note that the United States would make war on Mexico only if driven to it by attack have been repeated to diplomatic callers seeking information. These assurances may have paved the way for the representations being made to Carranza, urging him not to force the issue he has raised.

A study of all of General Carranza's communications and actions during the last few months, however, has given little ground, officials feel, for a hopeful view. His attitude has been one of growing hostility, and officials are not inclined to believe that it could be readily overcome.

Protection to Americans.

On the other hand, a definite statement has been received that General Carranza is doing all in his power at this time to protect Americans in Mexico from attack by the populace. He is said to have given Special Agent Rodgers in Mexico City all the aid in his power in arranging for trains to carry American refugees from the interior to Vera Cruz. In some quarters here this was construed as evidence that he was not bent upon provoking hostilities.

The State Department had no advices bearing out these hopeful indications, except that from Special Agent Rodgers announcing the progress of his efforts to get American citizens out. With the full consent of the Carranza authorities, he said, and the promise of adequate protection from possible bandit attacks, he had arranged for a special train to leave Mexico City tomorrow carrying Americans to Vera Cruz.

Mr. Rodgers added that he and his diplomatic associates in the Mexican capital had received every assurance of safe conduct and protection on their trip to the coast if it became necessary for them to leave. The corps of American newspaper correspondents there has decided to remain with Mr. Rodgers until such time as he may find it necessary to leave.

Ford Employes Lose Jobs If They Join the Militia

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 21.—In line with his pacifist policies Henry Ford announced today that any employes of the Ford Motor Company who are members of the Michigan National Guard will not only not receive pay while absent, but will forfeit their places as well. Many Ford employes who intend to enlist as recruits in the Guard likewise will relinquish their places, it was said. At the offices of Mr. Ford information as to how many militiamen were included in his 20,000 odd employes here was refused.

"We would be sorry to see any of our men resign to enlist in the Guard," one of Mr. Ford's assistants said, "but both recruits and State militiamen will be treated alike—as though they quit the plant to engage in other lines of business."

TALK OF MEXICO AS GERMANY'S ALLY

Leaders for and Against Carranza Said to Have Been Bought for Cash.

AN ANTI-AMERICAN PLOT

Object, as Given, to Prevent Exports of Munitions to Allies—Submarine Outbreak Planned.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, June 21, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—An American traveler who had occasion to come into touch with political circles in Berlin was passing through here a few days ago and gave me an idea of a strange and Machiavellian scheme which may be connected with the present events in Mexico and which may be a revelation to the general public, if not to those who are acquainted with Germany's latest intrigues.

According to my informants there is a great feeling of confidence in Berlin that another ally of Germany is about to take the field in her interests and this ally is Mexico, whose revolutionary leaders, whether for or against Carranza, have been bought up for downright cash. Mexico, it is confidentally expected, will be another Turkey. She will, if necessary, provoke war with the United States in Germany's interest as a "punishment," so Berlin people said, for American sympathy with the Allies and for furnishing them with ammunition and arms during the present war.

"You will also see," he added, "that Germany will soon resume her submarine piracy on a large scale."

He left Berlin less than a fortnight ago, and recent events in the Mediterranean already lend a show of probability to this statement. Further news received via Switzerland confirms the report that Admiral Koester has repeatedly declared in the last few days that the German submarine war on merchant vessels was about to be resumed with greater violence than ever, and that this is connected with affairs in Mexico, where Germany has found a new ally.

When I asked my American informant what benefit Germany expected from a war between Mexico and the United States he replied that the object was evidently to place the American Government, first of all, in such a predicament that it would not have time to busy itself about the European war, and epecially about German submarine exploits, and also to prevent for the future all exportation of arms and ammunition to Europe, as, if the American Government is at war with Mexico, it will need at home all the arms and ammunition that can be manufactured.

This is a long-matured scheme in Berlin which they are confident now of bringing to a favorable issue.

DEMAND NEW U-BOAT WAR.

Agitation in Germany for Resumption of Attacks Is Increasing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 21, (Dispatch to The Daily Express.)—A careful survey of the German press, especially of the conservative and National Liberal journals, shows that an influential portion of German public opinion is bringing enormous pressure to bear on the Government and Kaiser for an early resumption of submarine warfare.

A number of Nationalist Deputies are lecturing all over Germany in that strain, while Count von Reventlow in the Tageszeitung openly hints that unless Germany lays aside all considerations of humanity and resumes wholesale torpedoing she cannot win the war, and, above all, cannot defeat England.

Germans in favor of the resumption of U-boat piracy argue that Germany has not really pledged herself to abandon submarine warfare for good. The concession made to the United States, they argue, was in reality condition. Germany said explicitly she "hoped the United States would obtain from the Allies the lifting of the blockade," but in case the United States did not care to, or could not, achieve anything in that direction the Imperial Government reserved full liberty of action. Submarine fanatics state that the United States, having been unable to obtain a loosening of the blockade there is no reason why Germany alone should make concessions.

On the other hand Germany believes that the Washington administration, having its hands full with the Presidential election and Mexican difficulty, will never declare war on Germany, as such a course would certainly bring about endless trouble within the United States where fifteen million German-Americans would "make it hot for Wilson." Germany, therefore, could torpedo any ship, and even kill Americans, without eliciting anything else from Washington than solemn protests, empty threats and "hot air."

Mexico City Is Told of "American Defeat"

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—Extra editions of the newspapers and bulletins posted about the city tonight tell of the defeat of American troops at what is styled "the battle of Carrizal." The Americans are declared to have been dispersed and seventeen prisoners captured.

The official version of the clash says that the Americans attempted to capture the railroad station at Carrizal, and were engaged by General Felix Gomez, who was in command of the Carranza garrison. General Gomez was killed in the battle. It is announced that among the prisoners was an American interpreter, who confessed, it is claimed, that the American commander was the aggressor. The prisoners were sent to Mexican headquarters at Chihuahua City.

EL PASO, Texas, June 21.—American and Carranza troops fought a bloody battle today only a few hours after President Wilson's 6,000-word rebuke yesterday to General Carranza had gone forward to Mexico City. With which side victory rested is not known.

The engagement took place on the Santo Domingo ranch near the Mexican town of Carrizal, which is nine miles southwest of Villa Ahumada, the Mexican field headquarters in Northern Chihuahua. The number of dead, American or Mexican, was not definitely known here tonight, but nearly a score of General Pershing's men are said to have been killed and the Mexicans are said to have lost more than two score. Seventeen Americans are declared by Mexican officials to have been captured and to have been hurried to Chihuahua City under adequate guard. A machine gun used by the Mexicans is reported to have done heavy execution.

The Americans engaged, it is certain, were members of a troop from the Tenth Cavalry, a negro regiment, returning from a scouting trip to Guzman. The size of the Mexican force, whose commander, General Felix Gomez, was killed, is not known.

News of the battle was received in Juarez early this afternoon by General Francisco Gonzales, Carranza Commander of the military zone of the border. For some reason General Gonzales kept the story secret until late in the afternoon, when an American, J. C. Hubble, returning to the border from the interior, brought to El Paso the news that he had seen numbers of Mexican dead along the Mexican Central Railroad tracks at Villa Ahumada, and had been told that there had been an encounter.

Gonzales Blames Americans.

General Gonzales's first step after confirming the news was to issue a statement placing the blame on the American commander. He charged that the American troops fired first on the Mexicans, and that their shots were directed at a courier, who had just presented to them a demand that they retire.

American army officers declared their disbelief tonight in General Gonzales's assertions. The opinion was expressed that if the Americans fired on the Mexicans, they did so because it was necessary in order to insure their own safety.

General Trevino's recent warning to General Pershing not to send his troops east, south, or west of their positions was recalled.

Excitement spread in El Paso. Newspaper extras were issued and the news became known. Quiet was maintained, however, in view of General Bell's frequent admonitions that his soldiers could take care of any situation that might arise. While awaiting instructions from headquarters at San Antonio, General Bell kept his entire force in readiness for instant action.

In the meantime, however, word came from Juarez that all was quiet, although the news of the battle was widespread there. Early tonight the only official details of the engagement received here came from the Mexican side of the river.

General Gonzales said that his information was transmitted to him from Villa Ahumada by Colonel Genoveso Rivas, who commanded the Mexicans after their leader, General Gomez, was slain. General Gonzales also gave the Mexican explanation of how the two forces came in contact.

According to General Gonzales, he was informed by General Gomez at Villa Ahumada last night of the presence of the Americans westward between Villa Ahumada and El Valle. He says he immediately instructed General Gomez to proceed to the Santo Domingo ranch, where the Americans were reported in "unknown force," and advise their commander to retire to their camp.

This, he says, General Gomez did this morning. The American commander, whose name was not given by General Gomez, is said to have replied that he was instructed to proceed to Villa Ahumada and must do so.

Mexican Version of Battle.

The statement issued by the Juarez commander read:

"Last night I received information that an American force of unknown strength had reached Santo Domingo ranch. I advised General Felix Gomez, stationed at Carrizal, to tell the United States commander to withdraw to his camp. The American commander did exactly the opposite, answering that he had to reach Villa Ahumada. General Gomez then sent word again to the United States commander to withdraw, and then the American troops fired upon the Captain who arrived with the message, wounding him and killing a Mexican soldier.

"The American force then advanced and attacked the command of General Gomez, who repulsed them, he being killed, as well as a number of Mexican soldiers. The American forces withdrew after that. We took 17 prisoners during the engagement, including the interpreter, all of whom acknowledged that the blame should be placed on the American commander for having ordered the attack. The prisoners were sent to Chihuahua City with the customary protection."

General Gonzales announced that the body of General Gomez had been taken to Chihuahua City for burial, and that the wounded Mexican soldiers had also been sent to the State capital.

Saw Mexican Dead and Wounded.

A story brought to El Paso by J. C. Hubble, an American, who has been employed by the Compania Agricola at Boquillas, bears out several of the details of the engagement presented by General Gomez. Hubble's story was corroborated by James Maxey, another American, who also was on his way to El Paso from the interior. Hubble and Maxey said that while their train was stopping at Villa Ahumada they noticed numbers of dead and wounded being brought in and were told by a Carranza Captain that a battle had taken place. The Captain informed them, they said, that a number of American prisoners had been locked in a cattle car and were to be taken to Chihuahua City to be hanged.

They mentioned Mexican soldiers, who told them that several hundred Americans and 120 Mexicans had been engaged.

Hubble and Maxey said that some of the Mexicans openly boasted that the Americans had been drawn into an ambush.

"The Mexican officers at Villa Ahumada treated us with the greatest courtesy," said Mr. Hubble. "They answered our questions quietly and with no show of antipathy or excitement.

"According to the story they told us, the Mexican command was concealed in the underbrush when it discovered the American cavalrymen riding toward them over the sand. General Felix Gomez, the Mexican commander, immediately sent a courier asking for a parley under a flag of truce with the American commander. The parley was arranged, and as the Mexican leader and two aids started forward the Americans suddenly deployed in a semicircular skirmish line.

"General Gomez, apparently believing he was about to be attacked, raised his arm and signaled to a machine gun in the rear to open fire on the Americans. The machine gun swept the cavalry ranks, causing heavy losses.

"Immediately, however, a detachment of American troopers dashed forward under heavy fire to the centre of the field, where General Gomez and his staff were sitting on their horses. In the resultant encounter one of the cavalrymen killed the Mexican leader with his pistol, while the remainder of the Carranza party escaped to their own lines."

The two Americans said their information was that the American dead numbered seventeen and that the Mexicans had taken forty prisoners.

Ready to Evacuate Juarez.

Neither Maxey nor Hubble was able to learn whether the Mexicans had retreated, it being pointed out that all of the Mexicans with whom they talked apparently left the field before the engagement had ben completed. Late to-

General Pershing Is Redisposing His Entire Force; Masses Heavy Bodies of Troops at Two Points

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 21.—General Pershing, the American expeditionary commander, is redisposing his entire force as a result of today's clash with Carranza troops at Carrizal, according to reports from the field today.

Heavy forces, ready for immediate action, are being concentrated at Namiquipa, 200 miles south of the border, and at Colonia Dublan, 120 miles south.

Dispatches also stated that American scouting patrols had penetrated the Santa Clara Cañon, about thirty-five miles directly east of Namiquipa.

El Paso Hears Pershing Has Seized Two Towns.

EL PASO, Texas, June 21.—Persistent rumors were current in El Paso tonight that General Pershing had seized the towns of Neuvo Casas Grandes and Casas Grandes, about nine miles from Dublan, had captured a quantity of Mexican stores, and was disarming the natives.

It was pointed out that Casas Grandes, located on the line of the Mexico Norhwestern Railway, is an important strategic point.

CANNON ARE PLANTED ON EL PASO HEIGHTS

Artillery Is in a Position to Sweep Juarez, Where Evacuation Is in Progress.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Tex., June 21.—Artillery is being planted on the Mesa overlooking this city and Juarez. The troops at Fort Bliss are being moved to the river front and are intrenching opposite Juarez and everything is ready for any outbreaks which may occur tonight.

The big 4.7 guns which were shipped here recently have been planted in the cotton addition, and motor trucks are being used for infantry patrols to ride the border, while cavalry are stationed along the river front.

In Juarez tonight saloons were crowded with soldiers, the troops were being permitted to drink all they wished, all civilians between the ages of 16 and 45 were getting rifles to protect the town, and trouble was feared on the Mexican side. Wagons, carriages, mules and automobiles were leaving Juarez for the South and Southwest, carrying women and children. It was believed that a general evacuation of the town would occur during the night.

Two hundred civilian guards marched through the streets this afternoon carrying Mexican flags and shouting "Viva Mexico." All Americans left the main town. Americans were warned not to cross tonight. American troops are at the bridges and all reserves are under arms.

Juarez first learned of the fight in a vague form in the early afternoon. The civilian population then began to pack their household goods. Many already had left for interior points by a morning train in anticipaton of trouble. Others crossed to El Paso later in the day.

A curious scene of the late day was a procession of civilians carrying arms. In age they ranged from small boys, not as tall as their guns, up to old men. Most of them were in the ragged dress of the peon, but some belonged to the better class.

Warlike activity was first noticed at the railway yard, where a string of freight cars lay coupled to several day coaches that bore the name of the army corps of the north. A number of men were employed there in stowing sacks of beans and flour, forage, and other army supplies. Late in the afternoon a rather large body of Mexican cavalry passed through the town toward the hills. Many wagons filled with women and children were bound also in that direction.

No instance of any attempt to molest any Americans was reported during the daytime. After dark no American is believed to have remained in Juarez.

The first indication of the coming exodus was the removal of the records, papers, and books from the Juarez Custom House this morning. It was announced that the Customs Collector was going to Mexico City for an accounting, and that he was taking the records with him to show the Carranza officials what had been done at the border port.

Later in the morning more box cars were drawn into the Custom House yards and were piled with military automobiles, food, and other supplies. From the various barracks in Juarez the wagons of the army were hauling saddles, harness, blankets, and other military supplies toward the Mexican National station. A heavy guard of Carranza soldiers surrounded these trains and would permit no one to approach.

CARRANZA SETS GUNS TO MENACE PERSHING

Mexican Artillery Mounted on Hills Overlooking Lines of Communication.

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 21.—Carranza troops are mounting artillery on the hills above Cruces Cañon, according to reports here tonight. Command of this cañon, which stretches about twelve miles between El Valle and Namiquipa, and through which passes the American motor trail, would enable the Mexicans to menace General Pershing's supply trains.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 21.—The dispatch to Cananea of a twelve-car Carranza troop train carrying artillery, machine guns, ammunition, and 1,500 men, according to the officer in charge, was reported here today by William Linstrom, a railroad man, who arrived here from Imuries and Magdalena, fifty-four miles south. Four cars of the train were armored and loaded with ammunition.

JAPANESE WARSHIP ARRIVES?

Mexico Reports a Cruiser Off Mazatlan and Others to Follow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—It is officially reported that a Japanese cruiser arrived off Mazatlan this afternoon. Officials believe that more Japanese warships will arrive in Mexican ports shortly.

The purpose of the trip of these ships is not made public.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 21.—Persistent reports that a Japanese squadron had been sighted recently in Mexican waters were denied today by Federal officials in touch with the situation along the west Mexican coast.

CLASH STIRS WASHINGTON

Funston Sends a Brief Message, Giving the Available News.

PRESIDENT TOLD BY 'EXTRA'

Army Officers Scoff at Mexican Version of Fight, but See Grave Possibilities Ahead.

FULL FAITH IN PERSHING

Major Evans Thought to Have Commanded Our Troops in Engagement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21.—The clash at Carrizal between American and Carranzista troops brings this country to the threshold of actual hostilities with Mexico. The attack by Mexicans on a detachment of the Tenth Cavalry is nothing less than officials have been fearing almost momentarily since Sunday, in view of General Trevino's warning to General Pershing that if American troops were moved south, east, or west it would be construed as a hostile act, and they would be fired upon.

President Wilson's first information concerning the fight was obtained from an extra edition of a Washington newspaper. The President heard the boys yelling "Extra!" and soon obtained a copy. An hour later he received official confirmation of the attack in a dispatch from Major Gen. Funston, relaying a telegram from General Bell at El Paso, giving the best obtainable information. Nothing direct came from General Pershing. If the Tenth Cavalry, which figured in the attack, was ambushed and without radio communication, it is possible that some hours may elapse before the official version is received.

Bell Sends El Paso Accounts.

General Funston's message reached the War Department at 11 o'clock. Secretary Baker was not then at the department. As soon as received the message was telephoned by Major Graves, one of a large number of officers on duty, to Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's private secretary at the White House. The message reads as follows:

"The following report from General Bell at El Paso:

Mexican Consul Garcia telephones me at 6 P. M. as follows:

There was a clash this morning at Carrizal near Villa Ahumada between Carranza and American troops, in which General Gomez and other Mexicans were killed, the number unknown. Number of Americans killed or wounded unknown.

General Gomez sent a captain with an order to the American commander to go back, but the American commander said he was going to Villa Ahumada and opened fire on the Mexican Captain, wounding him, and killinga private who was with him. Amer were thrown back, and several men taken prisoners. Prisoners were sent to Chihuahua.

Garcia says this was telephoned at request of General Gonzales.

An American who was on the train today, passing Villa Ahumada at 2:30, said he saw several dead Mexicans put on his train, among them a dead Mexican General. There were also several Mexican wounded.

He gathered from talk that the fight was with American cavalry nine miles west, and that the Americans were decoyed into a trap by the use of a Mexican flag of truce, and they were then fired upon by machine guns and they had to retire. Report states our troops engaged were the Tenth Cavary.

The Mexican version of the affair is discounted in Washington. It is not thought reasonable that if the Carranzista authorities contemplated hostilities with the United States and ambushed Americans, they would accept the blame for the fight. The Mexican effort to throw the blame on the Tenth Cavalry detachment is considered here as a play for time and an effort to delay prompt military action being taken by the United States.

Carranza Order Transmitted.

Shortly before midnight General Pershing sent to the War Department a message through General Funston giving a translation of an official order sent by General Carranza to General Trevino directing that all officers of the Mexican Army of the Northeast are ordered to take command of all bands or groups of Mexicans along the border who are disposed to resist the "American invasion," but that these persons must come into the barracks in the regular way, and those who did not comply are to be disarmed at once.

This message read as follows:

"Dublan, Mexico, June 19, 1916.

"The following has been received from a confidential source, June 1, 1916, sent out to all de facto commanders by General Trevino:

The First Chief of the Constitutionalist forces in charge of the executive power of the nation advises this department today as follows: These headquarters of the First Chief, convinced that the majority of the inhabitants of the republic desires to enlist in the army so as to defend themselves with arms in hand in the case of international war * * * of our territory and knowing that in the border States and especially along the border there are various bands ready to fight the American army in case of a rupture of relations, and in order to avoid having armed organized bands of people in our border territory * * * American territory causing greater trouble than that which already exists on account of the delicate international relations, please order General Trevino to advise by means of notices to all our people under the jurisdiction of the Army of the Northeast that all citizens who desire to enlist in the army must present themselves to corresponding barracks so as to receive orders and be incorporated in said army, advising them that those who do not comply with this order will be ordered disarmed at once, and give orders to the barracks along the border that they prevent armed forces from crossing the border so that he shall adivse a domicile in his jurisdiction for their strict observation.

"PERSHING."

"Words that were omitted were omitted in the notice received by me."

In the absence of fuller official information the general opinion in Washington is that the detachment of the Tenth Cavalry figuring in the Carriza fight was decoyed and ambushed. In military and official circles the idea that disciplined regulars of the United States Army should open fire first on a messenger under a flag of truce is regarded as ridiculous. One of the rigid rules of war which American soldiers are required to observe is never to fire on the bearer of a flag of true.

The belief here is that the American regulars of the Tenth were sent eastward by General Pershing on the basis of information he had received, to reconnoitre, and that they probably went due east over the main road from the vicinity of Casas Grandes toward Villa Ahumada, where the Carranzistas were reported several days ago to have been concentrating a large force of men, within striking distance of Casas Grandes, and that while on this mission the American detachment was ambushed by a surprise attack with machine guns. The American detachment was probably outnumbered, as the reconnoitring party was probably not greater than a squadron of cavalry, if larger than a troop.

Think Major Evans Commanded.

From their knowledge of the location of troops in Mexico, army officers, assuming from the report that a part of the Tenth Cavalry was engaged, believe that the particular detachment sent toward Villa Ahumada and figuring in the Carrazal fight was commanded by Major Elwood W. Evans, commanding the First Squadron of the Tenth Cavalry, and a Marylander by birth.

The Tenth Cavalry is one of the two crack negro regiments of the regular army, and is the regiment which was brigaded in the Spanish war with the First Regular Cavalry and the Rough Riders. It is officered mainly by white men.

If Major Evans commanded the detachment the troops engaged included part, or all, of the First Squadron, which embraces Troops A, B, C, and D. Major Evans was graduated from West Point in 1883.

Officials betrayed grave concern at news dispatches telling of what they realized might be the first bloodshed of a war with Mexico; but, pending receipt of official information, none would make formal comment.

President Wilson remained up until late at night awaiting more official word regarding the conflict.

The location of the scene of the reported fighting cast doubt upon the accuracy of the account, in the minds of army officers. They thought it doubtful that with the existing strained relations General Pershing would invite attack by dispatching a patrol as far as Carrizal, which is sixty miles from his base camp. There have been no indications prior to this that scouting parties were operating outside of a very limited area.

Wilson Can Seize Supplies.

In case of war with Mexico, or even an official declaration that war is imminent, President Wilson will find himself clothed with full powers to provide, by seizure, if necessary supplies and equipments for the armies to be raised. This power is contained in the National Defense act, recently approved, which authorized the President to buy supplies at a reasonable price to be fixed by the Secretary of War, impose a penalty on dealers refusing to give preference to the United States, and to seize plants, the owners of which refuse to deal with the United States on the preferred basis set forth in the act.

For the large forces needed for a general occupation of Mexico the Government will be obliged to make speedy provision, as the stock on hand of equipment and supplies is inadequate. The shortage of fighting material is believed to be particularly in field artillery and machine guns. A large extra supply of modern rifles is on hand, and this is constantly growing.

The new power to commandeer supplies would have been of little value to the Government before the war in Europe gave an incentive to the manufacture of war supplies. Now, however, by forcing the sale to the American Government of supplies prepared for Governments abroad, it is believed that ample equipment can be obtained.

Carrizal is a station on the Mexican Central Railroad exactly half way between El Paso and Chihuahua City. In fact the train which used to carry passengers from New York to Mexico City stopped at Carrizal station while passengers ate luncheon. The place where the fight occurred is a few miles west of the Carrizal railway station.

It is a country which is as clean of vegetation as the palm of a man's hand. Westward a road, the reason for the station, runs straight toward Casas Grandes, fifty miles away. Before the Mexican Northwestern Railway was built this station was the main outlet for the rich cattle and mining country through which General Pershing took his force down from Columbus. Carrizal, the town, is about nine miles west of Carrizal station. Eight miles north of Carrizal station is Villa Ahumada, where Carranza troops have been massing for a week. Each is a typical small Mexican village, with a church, a public square, an intendencia, and adobe houses.

The ambush might well have occurred anywhere west of either village. The road from the sand desert of the Mexican Central hits our westward toward the mountain slopes through a series of sand dunes. At times after the Spring rains these are cut and sliced into gorges. The road along which the Tenth Cavalry traveled toward the vilcan Central hits out westward toward the west. The distance from Carrizal station directly westward toward Casas Grandes is the shortest line of communication between General Pershing's base at Casas Grandes on the Mexican Northwestern Railroad and the Mexican Central.

CARRANZA WITHHOLDS NOTE FROM PUBLIC

Officials in Mexico City Profess to Be Optimistic—Americans Not Attacked.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 21, (via Galveston.)—The American note to the Mexican Government arrived last night. Its contents were not made known to the public, but high officials said that in any case it would not signify a definite break in international relations and that negotiations would be continued diplomatically to settle the questions at issue. The note will be published within the next forty-eight hours.

Public demonstrations continued this afternoon, but they were the most orderly yet. Reports of mistreatment of Americans here are groundless. The American Embassy was crowded with Americans today, asking information or seeking to obtain tickets on trains leaving for Vera Cruz. The Consulate likewise was crowded with Americans, mostly those whose business has been ruined by prevailing conditions and who desired to leave. They were asking for passports. Consular officials remarked that the well-to-do Americans were remaining. A report that the American Consulate here was stoned is unfounded.

Special Agent Rodgers has not arranged for special trains for the Americans yet. He hopes to do so at the first opportunity. American Consuls throughout Mexico have been notified to warn Americans desiring to leave the country to go to Vera Cruz.

About 470 Americans have registered for accommodations on trains to the coast. Many will leave tomorrow on a special train sent here by managers of American mines at Pachuca. Mr. Rodgers says that other Americans may take the regular passenger trains for Vera Cruz, which continue to run.

General Carranza assured him that Americans may leave freely, receiving protection. He also promised Mr. Rodgers a special train guard and full diplomatic courtesies in the event that war becomes inevitable. In this event some Americans will accompany Mr. Rodgers to Vera Cruz.

Many Americans have arrived from the Pachuca mining districts. It is believed that those remaining there wish to stay.

Foreign Minister Aguilar energetically denied today a report that the Governors of Yucatan and Sinaloa have declared war on the United States. He says that, according to the Mexican Constitution, the Governors have no power to declare war upon foreign countries. Only the Federal Government is authorized to take such action, Minister Aguilar added. When he made this statement he was awaiting the American note, which arrived later in the day.

General Obregon, Minister of War, yesterday to THE TIMES correspondent likewise branded as false the statement that Sinaloa and Yucatan had declared war on the United States.

CHIHUAHUA CITY, June 19, (via El Paso Junction, June 21.)—The aligning of the various faction leaders with the Government continued today. General Nafarrete wired to General Trevino that Manuel Palaez, a former Villa General, now operating in the Huastreas region, had placed himself at the disposal of General Carranza. José Ysabel Robles and Canuto Reyes, with their forces, are expected in Chihuahua shortly, under orders from General Trevino.

TROOPS MOVE NEAR BORDER.

Carranzistas Are Active, Various Cities Report.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 21.—Agua Prieta, opposite this city, was practically deserted today of its civil population. A handful of soldiers, the staff and guard of General P. Elias Calles, Military Commander of Sonora, and the customs officers remained.

PRESIDIO, Texas, June 21.—Six hundred Carranza soldiers were reported today due to arrive at Ojinaga, opposite here, tomorrow, with another detachment following. This report, coupled with statements that Colonel José Riojas, the Ojinaga commander, had been instructed to prepare for war with the United States, caused great excitement here, but army officials quelled the alarm.

LAREDO, Texas, June 21.—Circulars were posted in Nuevo Laredo, opposite here, today, signed by General E. P. Nafarrate at Tampico, dated June 17, in which he acknowledged superior orders that if American troops crossed the border it would be a declaration of war and that his division would attack any invaders. He admonished the citizenry to be orderly in case of such an attack.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 21.—The evacuation of Matamoros, the Mexican town opposite here, which ordinarily has a population of about 5,000, and the establishment of General Alfredo Ricaut's new headquarters ten miles inland, has given a new turn to the border situation here that is puzzling military authorities. General Ricaut is in direct telegraphic communication with Mexico City.

EL PASO, Texas, June 21.—Placards were posted about Jaurez today calling on all Mexicans to present themselves for possible military service. They bore the signature of General Jacinto Trevino.

SEND TROOPS TO NOGALES.

Citizens Had Appealed for Reinforcement of Troops There.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 21.—One battalion of the Arizona militia and a battalion of the Fourteenth United States Infantry were sent to Nogales, Ariz., tonight on a special train. The soldiers were sent in response to an appeal from citizens at Nogales.

Reports that Mexicans had arrived at Lomas, four miles south of Nogales, with seven pieces of artillery, and that several thousand Mexican cavalry had been massed in a position to threaten the Santa Cruz Valley, caused wives of army officers attached to the 1,500 regulars here to prepare today to leave for Northern points.

Army officers in Nogales, in no way alarmed, were preparing for a possible Mexican cavalry raid up the Santa Cruz Valley between Nogales and Tucson. It is pointed out that all Sonora faces starvation if the border remains closed to food supplies, and that a foray into this section would probably result.

General Rubino Gomez is now at Fronteras with several thousand cavalry. Residents here expressed alarm over the fact that Colonel Aguirres's command of 1,500 men, reported last night to have passed Lomas en route to Cananea, had not yet been heard from in that direction.

Reports that General Estrada is on his way from Sinaloa to Magdalena with about 5,000 troops and that Magdalena, fifty-four miles south of the border, is to be the headquarters of General P. Elias Calles, were given credence here.

Between 900 and 1,000 Americans have safely left Northern Sonora under the direction of Frederick Simpich, Consul at Nogales, within forty-eight hours, it was estimated today. There are probably not more than half a dozen Americans left in this territory, Mr. Simpich said.

GOMEZ ACTIVE THREE YEARS.

Fled with Gutierrez from Capital, Then Joined Carranza.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—General Felix Gomez, reported killed in the Carrizal fight, is a native of Vanegas, San Luis Potosi. He began the revolution with Carranza in 1913. For several months he operated with General Eulalio Gutierrez and accompanied him to Mexico City when Gutierrez was appointed President by the convention.

Gomez was one of the Generals accompanying Gutierrez when he fled from here, revolting against Villa after the capturing of Saltillo. Gomez surrendered to General Jacinto Trevino with all his forces. Since then he has been operating in Chihuahua.

MORE WARSHIPS SENT TO MEXICAN WATERS

Destroyer Flotilla Starts from San Diego—Disposition of the Pacific Fleet.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 21.—The destroyers Hull, Hopkins, and Truxtun under Lieutenant W. W. Bradley sailed from here for Mexican waters today. The Hull, it was announced, would proceed to La Paz, the Hopkins to San José de Cabo, and the Truxton to Topolobampo. The cruiser San Diego, flagship of Admiral Winslow, left yesterday, presumably for Guaymas or Mazatlan, closely followed by the cruisers Pittsburgh, flagship of Rear Admiral Fullam, Commander in Chief of the Pacific reserve fleet, and the Colorado.

Authorities here on naval matters said that Admiral Winslow could blockade effectively within a short time every port on the Mexican west coast, if events rendered such action necessary. It also was reported that Admiral Winslow would place Rear Admiral Fullam in command of the naval forces operating south of Manzanillo to Salina Cruz.

The armored cruiser Maryland, which departed from the Puget Sound Navy Yard yesterday, is expected here in a few days. The cruiser South Dakota, scheduled to leave the Puget Sound Yard today, is to take aboard every available marine at the northern port, call at San Francisco for the same purpose, and proceed to San Diego for orders, it was announced.

The disposition of the Pacific Fleet in Mexican waters will be substantially as follows by Saturday morning, it was learned today:

At San José De Cabo—Destroyer Hopkins.
At La Paz—Destroyer Hull.
At Guaymas—Cruiser Cleveland, supply steamer Glacier.
At Topolobampo—Gunboat Yorktown, destroyer Truxtun.
At Mazatlan—Cruiser San Diego, gunboat Annapolis.
At Manzanillo—Cruisers Pittsburgh, Colorado, Albany.
At Salina Cruz—Cruisers Denver, Raleigh.
At Acapulco—Cruiser Chattanooga.
En route—Cruiser Milwaukee from San Diego, cruisers South Dakota and Maryland from Puget Sound.

VALLEJO, Cal., June 21.—The United States destroyer Whipple sailed from Mare Island Navy Yard today for San Diego, Cal., where it will await orders in connection with the mobilization of the Pacific Fleet in Mexican waters. The collier Nanshan and the destroyers Preble and Paul Jones, the latter two undergoing repairs, were said to have been ordered south also.

NORFOLK, Va., June 21.—The destroyer Roe and the fuel ships Kanawha and Arethusa sailed today for the South under rush orders. The Roe will join the second group of destroyers at Key West. The fuel ships will go to Port Arthur, Texas.

MEXICO'S PLEA IN EUROPE.

Legations Issue Statements Accusing the United States.

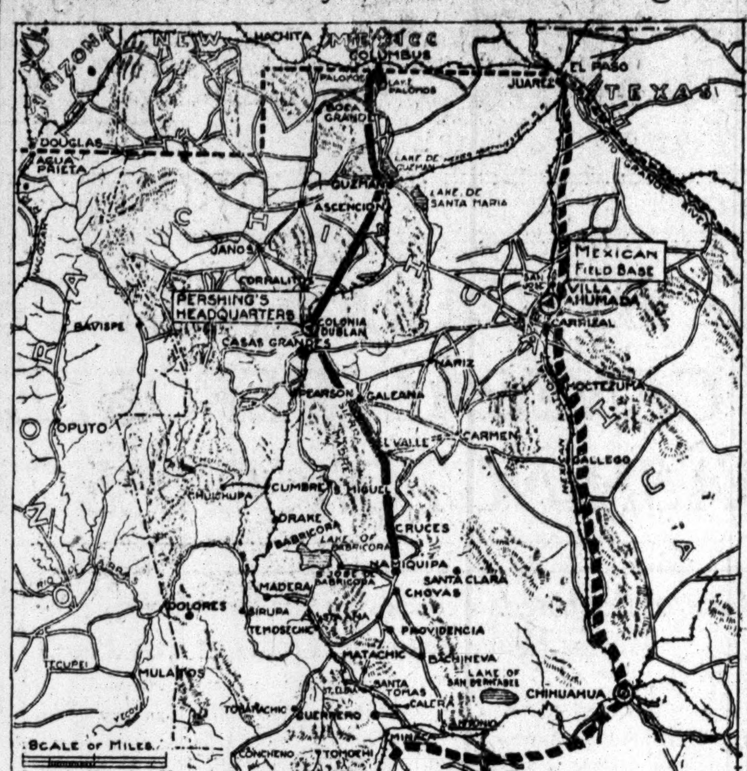
PARIS, June 21.—Mexico is placing its case before the European public in the form of statements issued by Mexican Legations on the Continent. Such a statement appeared in Madrid on Monday, and a similar statement is printed in the French press today from the Mexican Legation in Paris. It says the reports that war is inevitable and that General Carranza's attitude is due to German intrigue came from American sources.

"Imputations against the Government of General Carranza," it declares, "are unwarranted. Mexico has not wished and does not wish war with the United States."

The statement reviews the negotiations for permission for American troops to cross the frontier to pursue bandits, and declares that the interchanges were interrupted by the sending of an expeditionary corps, constituting a violation of Mexican sovereignty.

"We are authorized to state that it is not Mexico which attacks," the statement continues. "In ordering General Trevino to prevent American forces from advancing south, east, or west, the attitude of the Mexican Government is purely defensive. This is established from documents in this legation which will be published at an opportune time."

Where Yesterday's Battle Was Fought.



FIRST STATE TROOPS ORDERED TO BORDER

California, Missouri, and Kansas Get Priority Among Those Called to Mobilize.

THEIR PROXIMITY A FACTOR

Military Estimates Being Made for Congress—62,842 Horses and Mules Needed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Major Gen. Frederick Funston's request for the immediate dispatch to the Mexican border of a large contingent of the National Guardsmen now being mobilized was met today by the issuance of orders from the War Department to the troops of California, Missouri, and Kansas to proceed at once to concentration points on the border designated by him.

Secretary Baker declined to admit that General Funston had asked for militia immedaitely, or that orders had been sent, but it was learned that the troops had been directed to move, and that plans for their transportation and concentration had been made. These troops were ordered first because of their readiness, coupled with the fact that they were nearer the border than the troops of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Massachusetts. The reports to the War Department showed that the California, Missouri, and Kansas troops were already mobilized and had been efficiently equipped.

In the case of these three States all the Guardsmen were called into service except Coast Artillery militiamen of California. The units in the States are:

CALIFORNIA—First Brigade of Infantry, composed of the Second, Fifth, and Seventh Regiments of Infantry; First Squadron of Cavalry, First Battalion of Field Artillery, Company B of the Signal Corps, Ambulance Company No. 1, and Field Hospital No. 1.

KANSAS—First and Second Regiments of Infantry, Battery A of Field Artillery, and Signal Corps Company.

MISSOURI—First Brigade, consisting of the First, Second, and Third Regiments of Infantry; two separate battalions and one separate company of the Fourth Regiment of Infantry, Cavalry Troop B, First Battalion of Field Artillery, Company A of the Signal Corps, Field Hospital Company, and Ambulance Company.

Reports to the War Department—all the bureaus of which have been transformed into beehives of activity, working day and night—show that the State troops are being rapidly mobilized, and most of them are in or on the way to mobilization camps. The National Guardsmen of the District of Columbia, more than 2,000 officers and men, went into camp at Fort Myer, Va., this afternoon ready for muster into the Federal service. Shortly after 1 o'clock the District troops, marching through the streets of Washington, were reviewed in front of the White House by President Wilson, Secretary of War Baker, and high army officers. The President walked from the White House to the pavement in front of its grounds to review the troops as they marched toward their mobilization camp.

The War Department today advertised for a sufficient number of horses and mules fully to equip the militia now being mobilized. They call for bids for supplying 62,842 horses and mules, to be immediately delivered. The bids are to be opened next Monday, and call for 26,550 mature cavalry horses, 15,900 mature artillery horses, 192 light draught horses, 8,100 draught wheel mules, 8,100 draught lead mules, and 4,000 pack mules. The bids are to be opened by the depot Quartermasters at Fort Keogh, Remount Depot, Mon.; San Francisco, Seattle, Fort Reno at Darlington, Okla.; Front Royal Remount Station, in Virginia; Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and by Captain C. E. Hawkins of the Quartermaster Corps at Kansas City, Mo. It is estimated that the cost of these horses and mules will be more than $10,000,000.

Estimates of appropriations to be made to enable the War Department to pay the cost of the use of the militia are being prepared and forwarded to the military committees in Congress. One estimate prepared today calls for $50,000 for mileage for the transportation of State troops. Another estimate calls for an appropriation of $1,600,000 for the pay of officers and men. That the army is counting on obtaining an aggregate of 126,000 men in the militia mobilization was indicated by the fact that the estimates prepared for feeding the militia up to July 1 calls for $623,700. This is made up on the basis of feeding 126,000 militiamen and officers during the first three days they are in mobilization camps at 75 cents a day, costing $283,500.

The estimate contemplates that it will cost the Government 30 cents a day for rations for the guardsmen after they reach their concentration points, and this for 126,000 men for the final nine days of June would cost approximately $340,200. A contract was let by the War Department today for immediate delivery of 500 wagon ambulances for the militia.

AMERICAN CAVALRY AMBUSHED IN MEXICO

night preparations apparently were under way for the peaceful evacuation of Juarez. Several troop trains were pulled into the railroad yards ready for immediate use.

Andreas Garcia, Mexican Consul in El Paso, crossed the Rio Grande following the first reports of the engagement and remained with General Gonzales through the night. He kept in touch with General Bell on the American side by telephone, however. Neither the Consul nor the Mexican military authorities would discuss reports of the proposed evacuation.

Numbers of persons gathered about the piaza immediately when news of the battle became public, but there were no demonstrations. Mexicans apparently confined themselves to speculation as to the consequences. Heavy patrols were thrown into the streets, with instructions to put down any disorders.

At General Gonzales's headquarters a victory for Mexico was being claimed. The scene in the front room of the commandancia, where the younger officers were gathered, was holidaylike.

Several of them, speaking of the battle, said, "We won."

They remained composed, however, and made little other reference to the incident.

There were no doubts at the War Department that General Pershing would take immediate steps to relieve the detachment if it had been attacked, but it was said that outside of efforts to rescue it, he would undertake no offensive.

A formal offensive against the Carranza troops in Northern Mexico would not be undertaken, it is believed, until General Funston's border guard had been greatly strengthened with National Guard troops and several columns were organized to take possession of points of strategic value.

Officials continued to express confidence in the ability of General Pershing to maintain his position in any emergency. The column has between 10,000 and 12,000 men. It also includes a considerable proportion of field and mountain artillery and a full complement of machine gun companies and troops. It has ample supplies of ammunition and has had sufficient time to dig itself in at every point where entrenchments were thought necessary.

General Bell announced tonight that he would make no further preparations for defending this part of the border.

"I am already prepared," he said. "I can do nothing more because there is nothing more to be done. If there is an attack, an attempted invasion or border raids the Mexican raiders will find us awake and ready for them."

Twenty civilian truck drivers arrived here from Wisconsin today to man the new truck train which has been sent here to General Bell and they will be mustered into the service tomorrow, as all truck drivers in the future are to be enlisted men.

CHIHUAHUA CITY, June 21, (via El Paso.)—Orders were issued by General Jacinto Trevino, commanding the Carranza Army of the North, to bring the seventeen Americans captured today at Carrizal, to Chihuahua City under a heavy guard. Reports here place the entire blame for the encounter upon the American commander, it being asserted that in the eight hours preceding the engagement several warnings were sent to them to withdraw.

The populace of Chihuahua City, which remained quiet tonight, expressed much sorrow over the death of General Gomez, who was one of the youngest and most popular leaders of the de facto army.

MEAGRE REPORTS TO FUNSTON

American Troopers Ambushed, San Antonio Headquarters Hears.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21.—A detachment of the Tenth Cavalry, which had been scouting northeast of El Valle, was decoyed into an ambush this morning and then fired upon by a superior force of Mexicans, according to a report that reached General Funston tonight.

This version of today's fight was given to General Bell in El Paso by Americans who passed through Villa Ahumada this afternoon. With this report General Bell sent the report of the circumstances surrounding the fight that had been made public by the Mexican officials at Juarez, and which placed all the blame on the Americans, charging them, among other things, with shooting a Mexican dispatch-bearer under a flag of truce and then charging the Mexican force. No other report was received by General Funston, and it was thought probable that the news of the fight had not yet reached General Pershing, to whom it must be carried overland by courier.

The American whose version of the fight was included in General Bell's report speaks and understands Spanish, and listened to the conversation of Mexicans on the train and civilians and soldiers on the Villa Ahumada Station platform. They were boasting and congratulating each other on the cleverness which enabled them to capture seventeen American prisoners and kill a number of others. He said the men on the train listened eagerly while the story was told of how the Americans had been enticed into a narrow pass and swept down with a machine gun.

Up to a late hour tonight General Funston had not issued any order to General Pershing or to General Bell as a result of the attack by Mexicans. He said he would wait until he received an official report from the American side. But unofficially the attack is considered here as the breaking point in the relations of the two countries.

The Tenth Cavalry is a negro regiment and has participated in several skirmishes with bandits during the Pershing campaign. Carrizal is about 70 miles northeast of El Valle, one of the points on the Pershing line of communication. The connecting links between are the Santa Clara Canyon and a pass which leads to El Valle, and it was to patrol this pass and canyon that the scouting party was so far from its base, as it had been reported that the Mexican soldiers were being massed near the pass, preparatory for an attack on the American line of communication.

General Funston's latest information from General Pershing had contained no reference to any scouting party so far east of the line of communication, and it was with surprise that he learned of the presence of any force near Carrizal. He received today a report of a detachment sent toward Guzman to investigate a report that a considerable force of Carranza's troops had arrived there and was moving toward the American lines. It was thought at first that the detachment attacked today might have been the same, but Guzman is a long way from Carrizal.

General Funston assumed, however, that the force engaged with the Mexicans today was sent by Pershing to investigate rumors that General Trevino was sending westward from Villa Ahumada a heavy force. To reach Carrizal it was necessary for the Americans to pass through a long valley, almost a canyon, before reaching Carrizal. It was thought at General Funston's headquarters as not improbable that it was in this valley that the Americans were forced to meet the machine-gun fire of Gomez's force.

General Funston did not retire tonight until late, but no report from Pershing came. It was thought possible that Pershing himself had not learned of the fight until advised tonight by Department Headquarters. Survivors of the expedition would have had to send the news by courier seventy miles.

VILLA'S WIFE DEPORTED.

Sent with Sister and Sister's Child from El Paso to Juarez.

EL PASO, Texas, June 21.—Mrs. Luz Torres Villa, wife of Francisco Villa, was arrested by the police tonight, and, with her sister and her sister's child, about five years old, and a German nurse, Maria Hagador, was deported to Juarez on orders from Mayor Lea, who gave no reason for the act.

Mrs. Villa arrived here this afternoon, ostensibly from New Orleans, but the police believe she came from Los Angeles. She said she intended to go to Chihuahua to look for her husband.

ARMY BILL TAKEN UP BY HOUSE IN HASTE

Amendment Voted Increasing Appropriation for Air Service to Over Three Millions.

JOBS SAVED FOR GUARDSMEN

None in Government Service to Suffer—Move to Pay Expenses of Civilians Training at Camps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Laying aside the Sundry Civil bill the House today began debate on the Army Appropriation bill, carrying $157,000,000. The Mexican situation and the approach of a new fiscal year caused the House to put the army budget ahead of other business.

Two important amendments were added during the debate today. On motion of Representative James R. Mann, the Republican floor leader, the appropriation for army aeronautics was increased by $2,000,000. The bill as reported provided $1,222,100 for air craft and appliances for the aviation section of the Signal Corps. The House increased this amount to $3,222,100.

Representative Hicks of New York obtained the adoption of an amendment which enables Government employes to serve in the National Guard in the present Mexican crisis without danger of losing their positions. The amendment stipulates that every National Guardsman called from the Government service into active service with his regiment shall step back into his position at the same pay upon returning. The amendment applies to all persons on the Government payrolls, whether or not under the classified service.

Representative Hill of Connecticut urged Chairman Hay of the Military Committee, in charge of the bill, to offer an amendment to continue the salaries of Government employes while serving with the National Guard. Mr. Hay did not indicate whether he would offer such an amendment. Under present conditions Government employes who are members of the Guard sacrifice their Government salaries while away from their desks except for the regular period of thirty days' leave, plus fifteen days for military training, although the Hicks amendment preserves the position itself for the employe upon his return from the front.

Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania sought adoption of an amendment increasing the pay of the private of the National Guard from $15 to $20 a month.

Proposes Increased Pay.

"It ought to be at least $20," said Mr. Moore. "Thousands of young Americans are being sent to the border, Heaven knows for how long. We are sending these young men down into a foreign country to live amid cactus and sand dunes, and we are giving them fifty cents a day to pay their household expenses back home—rent, food for their families, and clothes for their babies. It is a great tribute to the patriotism of our young men that they are going under such circumstances, and it is a reflection upon us to begrudge them enough to keep their families alive."

The amendment for an increase went out on a point of order made by Chairman Hay.

Announcement was made by Mr. Hay that he would propose an amendment increasing from $500,000 to $2,000,000 the appropriation for civilian training camps. As a committee amendment this doubtless will be adopted.

"When the committee reported the bill," said Chairman Hay, "we did not know how many civilians would desire training at these camps. The War Department now estimates that at least 30,000 civilians will patronize these training camps, and I will offer an amendment for a $2,000,000 appropriation.

"The amendment will also provide that the expenses of citizens training at these camps shall be paid. We believe the Government should pay these expenses, but the expense allowance will go only to civilians in training between the ages of eight and forty-five years. We would not care to pay the expenses of those older or younger than the ages specified."

Arms and Ammunition.

Representative Augustus P. Gardner of Massachusetts criticised the Military Committee because of the smallness of the appropriations for arms and ammunition for the National Guard and engaged in an extended colloquy with Mr. Hay. In his speech Representative Gardner said:

"This bill appropriates $3,000,000 for artillery for the National Guard. At that rate of appropriation, it will take a little over forty years to accumulate the cannon necessary to equip a National Guard of the size provided in the new Army act. This bill also appropriates $3,000,000 for ammunition for the artillery of the National Guard. At that rate, thirty-four years will elapse before we can accumulate sufficient artillery ammunition to equip the citizen soldiery which we have just voted to provide during the next five years.

"When General Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, came before Chairman Hay's Committee on Military Affairs he told the members that over $65,000,000 for field guns must be appropriated in the next four years if the new National Guard is to be equipped according to the estimates laid down in 1911 by the so-called Greble Board of Officers. General Crozier pointed out, however, that twice this amount of money would be necessary in the next four years if the recommendations of the Treat Board are followed.

"The Treat Board, so called after its Chairman, Colonel Treat, has recently reported on the needs of the United States Army in the matter of artillery. The Treat Board was appointed in consequence of the changed conditions arising out of the European war. Unquestionably Congress must, in the end, follow the judgment of this latter board rather than the judgment of the old board which reported in 1911.

"General Crozier asked for the modest appropriation of $1,600,000 for machine guns for the National Guard. For some reason this item was entirely omitted from the bill; besides, the machine gun appropriation for the regular army is far too small. It is calculated on the basis of five machine guns to a regiment, whereas the War Department has now calculated on twelve guns to a regiment."

ARMY INCREASE BEGINS IMMEDIATELY

General Funston Ordered by War Department to Form Ten New Regiments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Orders have gone to Major Gen. Frederick Funston to form immediately in his department four new regiments of infantry, two new regiments of cavalry, two new regiments of engineers and two new regiments of light artillery. These are to be new units of the regular United States Army and are part of the increase for the regular army authorized by the Hay-Chamberlain National Defense act of June 3, 1916.

Altogether, seven new regiments of infantry, two new regiments of cavalry, and three new regiments of artillery are to be formed, while the three existing battalions of engineers are to be augmented by three engineer regiments. The minimum strength of these organizations will be 11,320 men additional for the regular army, of which 7,508 enlisted men will represent the minimum strength of the regiments that General Funston will organize along the border.

Three of the new infantry regiments will be formed for overseas service, one each in Hawaii, the Philippines, and the Canal Zone. One of the new artillery regiments also will be formed for overseas service for use in Hawaii. One of the three regiments of engineers will be organized for service in the Canal Zone. All the rest of the new regiments will be formed in the South, under General Funston's jurisdiction, for service in the United States and are destined for the Mexican border service.

There are now thirty regiments of infantry in the army. The new infantry regiments will be the Thirty-first, Thirty-second, Thirty-third, Thirty-fourth, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, and Thirty-seventh. The army now has only fifteen cavalry regiments. The two new units will be the Sixteenth and Seventeenth. There are six regiments of Field Artillery in the regular service. Consequently the two new artillery regiments will be designated the Seventh and Eighth. The order for the formation of these new units, representing the first installment of the increase authorized by the Hay-Chamberlain bill, was approved by Secretary Baker today, and photostat copies of the general order of approval, signed by Major Gen. Scott, were mailed tonight to Generals Funston, Woods, and other department commanders of the regular army.

AERO CLUB URGES MORE.

Says $15,000,000, Not $3,000,000, Is Needed for Army Air Service.

The Aero Club of America issued a statement last night complaining that the appropriation for aeronautics in the Army Appropriation bill, although increased by amendment by $2,000,000 to $3,222,100, was inadequate. The matter came up before the executive meeting of the club yesterday afternoon. After the meeting Alan R. Hawley, President of the Executive Committee, said:

"The army has only twelve aeroplanes available for Mexican service, and no schools, aeroplanes, or other equipment necessary for training army and National Guard officers, and only a small portion of the $3,222,100 proposed goes to buy aeroplanes.

"It would take $5,000,000 to establish ten aviation schools where 300 army and National Guard officers and civilians could be trained so as to promptly get 100 aviators for the Mexican campaign; it would take $773,550 to organize, equip, and maintain each of the five aero squadrons needed for the Mexican expedition, and there ought to be allowed funds to supply aeroplanes for the National Guard of the different States so they could form aero companies.

"Steps should also be taken immediately to begin constructing dirigibles and observation balloons. For these $2,000,000 should be allowed.

"It is to be hoped that the Senate will give the army what the House has denied."

VISITORS KEPT OUT OF CASAS GRANDES

Pershing Had Prepared for Trouble Day Before Clash Occurred.

By FRANK B. ELSER.

Special Correspondent of The New York Times.

TEMPORARY FIELD HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL PERSHING, NEAR CASAS GRANDES, Chihuahua, June 20, (via Army Radio to Columbus, N. M., June 21.)—THE TIMES correspondent visited Casas Grandes in an automobile today, watching a small force of Carranza soldiers from Pearson leave a train. He was ordered from the town by a Carranza officer, who strode up to the motor car and said with rigid politeness, although without any show of anger: "You will have the kindness, senor, to leave town immediately." Heretofore we have been able to visit the town with impunity.

Radio bulletins today told the men at General Pershing's Headquarters of the increased tension of the Mexican situation and General Pershing, as was the case after the Parral episode, has made every preparation to meet eventualities, though still insisting that the demeanor of officers and men shall not provoke a clash needlessly. Upward of 200 Mormons remain in Colonia Dublan, adjacent to Casas Grandes. So far there has been no friction with the Carranza garrison.

The capture and subsequent release of the straggler from the Twenty-fourth Infantry detachment, which hiked north to this camp today has not tended to promote good feeling between our army and the Carranzistas. The soldier, a negro, dropped out of the column this afternoon while passing eastward of Casas Grandes, and was surrounded and taken prisoner by Carranzista soldiers. Notwithstanding the fact that he had not entered the town he was taken to the cuartel, stripped of his arms and subjected to a rigid cross-questioning with reference to the disposition and strength of the American forces, especially the artillery. He refused to give the information and was held prisoner.

When the word reached General Pershing, seated in his tent only three miles away, the General summoned Scout Moreman and gave him the following message to deliver to the Carranza commander:

"If that man is not released in one hour I will attack your garrison."

In the meantime a squadron of the Tenth Cavalry saddled their mounts and rode forward. Before the message could be delivered the prisoner was released, but General Pershing had already sent a supplementary demand to obtain his confiscated arms.

MANN BITTER OVER MEXICO.

Says Outrages Are to Everlasting Shame of United States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The problem presented in Mexico was briefly discussed in the House today by Representative James R. Mann, the Republican floor leader, and Representative William P. Borland, Democrat, of Missouri.

Mr. Borland said that United States troops should not be withdrawn from Mexico until a stable form of Government had been established there.

Representative Mann read into the Record the paragraphs in Secretary Lansing's note, made public yesterday, relating to the murders, outrages, and burnings that have been perpetrated against American lives and property in Mexico during the past three years. He added:

"If these things be true, and I have no doubt they are true, they are to the everlasting shame of the United States."

This statement was applauded by Republicans and Mr. Mann took his seat without further comment.

69TH IN CAMP; OTHER TROOPS ARE HELD HERE

Departure of 7th, 12th, and 71st Regiments Delayed on Gen. O'Ryan's Orders.

WAR MOTORS OFFERED

Thousands Cheer the 69th as It Entrains Here—Hikes Through Rain and Mud Into Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WHITMAN, June 21, (via Newburg.)—Through muck and mire which covered their boots and leggings and added weight for their unseasoned muscles to carry, the members of the Sixty-ninth Regiment marched a mile and a half late this afternoon from Green Haven, where they detrained, to the camp site here.

A heavy rain poured down on them, drenching their uniforms and equipment, and at the end of their tramp there was waiting for them, not a comfortable armory and a change of warm clothing, but a dreary expanse of rain-soaked grass and mud in which they had to set to work at once to dig drainage trenches for their tents. It was a taste of what war conditions might prove to be such as no guardsman probably had contemplated when he departed from New York, eager and enthusiastic, to begin camp life.

To add to the troubles of the soldiers the draft horses did not arrive with the men, and there was no way to bring up their camp equipment except to haul it along by their own main strength.

Well into the evening teams of forty or fifty stout members of the famous regiment were struggling with a long rope, hauling regimental wagons loaded with tenting and provisions through deep mud holes and up steep places, where the few horses available could not carry or drag them. These animals were the thirty-two mounts of the officers of the regiment. They were put to work hauling equipment, but the wagons had to be unloaded and man power was found necessary on account of the condition of the roads following the heavy rain. Only a part of the freight of the regiment could be deposited on the site of Camp Whitman.

The Camp Assignments.

The Sixty-ninth has been assigned to the extreme left of the camp, and with it will be stationed the Seventh, Seventy-first, and Twelfth, all under Brig. Gen. Dyer. The Third Brigade, comprising the up-State companies, will occupy the extreme right of the 850-acre camp that was at one time the tramp colony.

In front of headquarters will be stationed the Second Brigade, under General Eddy, while the Fourth Brigade will be stationed in the rear. Headquarters is located in the centre of the camp, with the Twenty-second Engineers and Signal Corps alongside. All the horse troops will pitch camp on Fishkill Creek, where there is an adequate supply of water and clover for the animals. A large tract has been reserved for manoeuvring.

The cook stoves and provisions of the Sixty-ninth, which the commissary deemed immediately necessary, were landed at the camp late in the afternoon, and men and horses battled their way through heavy mud and steep, improvised roads until late in the night.

Most of the wagons were drawn along the main road to a piece of rising ground which had been selected as the camping place for the regiment. The main road was joined by a steep incline to this hill. The rain had turned this junction into a quagmire. It was not ordinary mud. There are many brick kilns near Camp Whitman because of the thick and sticky character of the soil.

As fast as freight was unloaded at the entrance to the camp it was carried by sturdy militiamen to the companies to which it was allotted. This was no easy task, as the site of the camp was covered with tall, thick, and wiry grass. During the heavy downpour the militiamen bedded the grass, covered the hill with small shelter tents, and erected the cook stoves. The first day's rations, of which the mainstay was beef, bacon, onions, potatoes, and coffee, were eaten by hungry, hard-working men.

Engineers Hard at Work.

Colonel Lucas, who, with his staff, has been at Camp Whitman for several weeks, has been working out problems of water supply, sanitation, road building, and quartering of troops. His task originally was to prepare the camp for the National Guard by July 9. With the arrival of most of the members of his regiment Colonel Lucas expects to have the camp ready considerably before that time. It is not ready, however, at present for many more than the 2,000 militiamen now encamped there.

The most urgent problem is that of water supply. The boring of six wells was completed today. The wells will be tested tomorrow. If they prove to be capable of supplying something like 100,000 gallons of water a day, the rest of the work will go on. This will include the erection of two huge storage tanks, which have already arrived at the station at Beacon. Pumping machinery will have to be installed. A supply system, which includes concrete conduits and about eight miles of piping, is already under construction.

There is work ahead for several days before the water system can be completed. No word had been received tonight as to the days when new regiments are expected to arrive. It may be several days before additional regiments are sent to the camp.

THOUSANDS CHEER AS 69TH MARCHES

Famous Regiment Gets an Ovation as It Leaves for Camp —Engineers Off, Too.

New York City's famous Irish regiment, the Sixty-ninth Infantry, under command of Colonel Louis D. Conley, left for the mobilization camp at Beekman yesterday, and the command got a send-off from the thousands who witnessed its departure which its personnel will be a long time in forgetting. Not since the days of the Spanish war has New York witnessed a demonstration like that given to Colonel Conley and his men.

Fifth Avenue from Twenty-fifth to Fifty-seventh Street was lined with people who cheered each company as it swept by, the men baring their heads as the colors passed. Bishop Patrick J. Hayes, as the personal representative of Cardinal Farley, blessed the regiment just before it left the armory, and more than 5,000 persons cheered wildly when the special trains on which it left the city started for Beekman.

The regiment assembled in its armory at Twenty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue at 7:30 A. M. Outside in Lexington Avenue and in Twenty-fifth and Twenty-fourth Street throngs jammed the sidewalks waiting the opportunity to join in the demonstration that was to last all the way from the armory to the New York Central yards at Sixtieth Street and North River.

Busy Scene at the Armory.

Colonel Conley, Lieut. Col. Phelan, Majors Moynihan and Lynch, and the regimental and battalion staff officers were at the armory by sunrise. From 6 o'clock on until within half an hour of the time that the regiment filed out of the armory and headed west in Twenty-fifth Street the men of the regiment continued arriving in squads.

At 8:30 A. M. Bishop Hayes arrived at the armory with Father Francis P. Duffy, the regimental Chaplain. Bishop Hayes wore the sacred robes of his office and was escorted to the eastern gallery overlooking the drill hall where the regiment, more than 1,000 strong, was assembled. When he entered the armory the band was playing "The Wearing of the Green" and the men in the ranks were yelling themselves hoarse.

When the cheering ceased Colonel Conley appeared by the side of Bishop Hayes and a moment later the Bishop began to speak. He expressed the regret of Cardinal Farley at his inability to be present in person. He emphasized the fact that the regiment might be going forth to fight for peace in a troubled land and not in a war of aggression.

"This is no war of conquest," said the Bishop, "but a mission to uphold the dignity and the honor of your country and your homes. On such a mission it is fitting that we should ask the blessing of Almighty God, and we may feel secure that it will be granted to men in such a mission as is yours. God bless you all."

While the Bishop blessed the regiment the throng outside had become so great that the reserves from three precincts had to be called out to clear the street entrance to the armory for the departure of the regiment at 9 o'clock. A few minutes before that hour the order "Attention" of the officers rang out and a great cheer went up from those outside, for they knew the Sixty-ninth was ready to go.

Regiment Marches Out.

Lieut. Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt, representing Major Gen. O'Ryan, had joined Bishop Hayes and the group of invited guests in the gallery. Promptly on the stroke of nine the regiment moved out, the band leading and Colonel Conley heading the command on horseback. There were approximately 1,000 men in the ranks. More than 400 recruits, who will be sent on as soon as they get their equipment, remained behind in the armory.

As the regiment turned into Twenty-fifth Street the band struck up "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and the throng started to cheer. From hundreds of throats came the parting good-byes to "Pat" and "Mike" and "Jerry" and scores of other Irish youngsters whose friends were legion.

Into Fifth Avenue and north the regiment proceeded, the band playing one Irish tune after another and the crowds on the sidewalks and in the hotel and shop windows shouting farewells and good wishes. The police estimated that at least 2,000 persons to a block witnessed the marching away of the Sixty-ninth.

Up Fifth Avenue to Fifty-seventh Street the regiment received a continuous ovation. Tw hundred members of the Union League Club stood at attention with bared heads in front of their clubhouse at Thirty-ninth Street as the command passed. Employes and customers of stores rushed to doors and windows and joined in the demonstration. Many prominent men lined the walk in front of the Democratic Club at Fiftieth Street, and every window in every hotel along the route was crowded with men and women and children who joined in the cheering.

Reviewed by Priests.

On the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral as the regiment swung by stood Mgr. Lavelle, Rector of the Cathedral. With him were a dozen priests. They uncovered as the flag was carried by and each company in turn they saluted.

Turning into Fifty-seventh Street and heading west the regiment passed between lines of spectators. In front of Carnegie Hall two young women ran out and one of them threw a big American flag at Colonel Conley. It landed on his shoulders. Colonel Conley removed it and passed it back to a member of his staff to keep. To the flag was attached a card and on the card was written:

"God is with you under this flag. Right is right."

At Fifty-seventh Street and Tenth Avenue about fifty children were lined up in front of the entrance to St. Joseph's Day Nursery. Each waved a tiny American flag, and every officer saluted in appreciation of the compliment. At Sixtieth Street the trains were in waiting and also about 5,000 friends and relatives of the officers and men.

The last section of the special train pulled out at exactly 10:30 o'clock.

Colonel Vanderbilt, who accompanied the regiment to the entraining point, expressed his satisfaction, as staff representative of General O'Ryan, with the manner in which the Sixty-ninth had carried out its orders to mobilize.

Engineers Off for Camp.

The remaining six companies of the Twenty-second Corps of Engineers left for Beekman an hour before the Sixty-ninth. Lieut. Col. Lucas, commander of the corps; his staff, and two companies went to Beekman on Tuesday. The companies which went yesterday were commanded by Major Frederic N. Whitley. So rapid has been the recruiting for the engineering arm of the guard that nearly every one of the six companies left only about twenty men short of war strength. The total strength of the six companies was about 700 officers and men.

The engineers marched out of the armory at 168th Street and Fort Washington Avenue at 9 A. M. About 3,000 persons witnessed the going away, and relatives and friends, among them hundreds of children, followed the guardsmen to 129th Street and North River, where their special train was waiting. The corps was led by its band of thirty pieces, and as the train pulled out the musicians struck up Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever, while the soldiers on the train cheered and waved their hands in response to the cheers from those they were leaving behind.

Major John D. Fairchild did not accompany the command, but remained behind to direct the work of recruiting the corps to war strength.

O'RYAN WILL AVOID DANGEROUS HASTE

Commander Won't Risk Military Blunders of Other Wars in Assembling Divisions.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE CAMP, PEEKSKILL, N. Y., June 21.—Shortly after 2 o'clock today Major Gen. O'Ryan, accompanied by Colonel Edward Olmstead, Division Adjutant, motored to Camp Whitman to witness the arrival of the Sixty-ninth Regiment and to get first-hand facts about the progress of the work of preparing the site of mobilization. He was gone four hours, and upon his return said that he was satisfied that the entire State Guard would be in camp within the next week or ten days.

General O'Ryan announced that he had countermanded the order issued yesterday, directing the Seventy-first, Fourteenth, and Forty-seventh Regiments to go to camp tomorrow. The regiments will stay at their bases until directed to move, perhaps on Friday. He gave out this statement tonight:

In the first place the families of our young soldiers should understand that in all probability there will be no immediate movement of this division to the border or to Mexico, and there will be ample opportunity for families to see or communicate with officers and enlisted men before such movement.

In order that the public may intelligently understand what is involved in the mobilization of a division, the following information is given:

A tactical division consists of three brigades of nine regiments of infantry, a brigade of two regiments of field artillery, a regiment and—in the case of our division—an additional squadron of cavalry, a pioneer battalion and—in the case of our division—a pontoon battalion, a battalion of signal troops, three field hospitals, four ambulance companies, an aero squadron, an armored motor battery, a field battery, supply train, and ammunition train.

This force will approximate nearly 25,000 officers and men. War is efficiently conducted, not by trained soldiers, but by trained divisions, which means much more. The difference may be illustrated by reference to the automobile, with the efficiency of which the public is well acquainted.

If we were to move in a hasty and ill-considered manner the various parts of the division to a mobilization site which had not been properly fitted for the purpose, we would not have mobilized a tactical division any more than if we were to ship to a vacant lot many of the parts of an automobile and then announced that we had a machine ready for movement. Our military history is replete with the evils flowing from ignorant haste in matters of this kind. The mobilization of the division means much more than the transportation of organizations from their home stations to the designated camp.

Regiments are required to be brought to war strength; that is to say, each regiment of infantry will be recruited to a strength of 1,915 officers and men. The difference in number between existing strength and war strength will be clothed, equipped, and armed with property shipped for that purpose by the Federal Government, as under the regulations this additional property is not maintained by the organizations in time of peace, but is held in Federal supply depots pending mobilization.

The newly enlisted men will have to be physically examined and innoculated against typhoid fever. Their clothing and equipment will have to be fitted, issued, and stenciled. More than 7,000 horses and mules have to be obtained, examined, accepted, branded, and assigned. Property to be left at home stations must be inventoried, much of it packed for storage, and all of it invoiced for transfer to the commanding officer of the depot unit, who will be the custodian of the armory during the absence of the parent organization.

Need for Retired Men.

The depot unit is an organization brought into being at the time of mobilization to perform State functions during the absence of the parent organization in the Federal service.

It is desired that discharged National Guard soldiers who are not available for active service promptly apply to the depot units of their old organizations for service in such units. The depot units have their important functions, for they are to assist in receiving and giving elementary instruction to recruits who are to bring the parent organizations to war strength.

The mobilization site must be prepared as a camp suitable to receive organizations upon their arrival. This means the installation of a water supply with its wells, motors, pumps, storage tanks, and distributing pipes. The water consumption of the division will average more than 300,000 gallons per day.

Crematories for the incineration of waste which might breed disease will have to be constructed. Roads will have to be constructed which will render the highway readily accessible for wagon and motor transportation to every regimental camp. Stagnant pools in the vicinity will be sprayed with oil to prevent the breeding of mosquitos. Lines of telephone communication for the rapid transmission of orders and reports will be installed between all brigade and regimental camps and the division headquarters.

The Quartermaster corral for the care of transport animals will be constructed and an emergency animal hospital will be provided. A service station for the supply of gasoline, oil, and minor parts for motor trucks and a field repair shop for making minor repairs will be provided.

The camp facilities will include a Post Office, a telegraph office, an information bureau, public telephone stations, and a post exchange with branch stores which, on account of the size of the camp, will resemble the modern department store.

The feeding of this large number of men, and foraging of so many animals will require an efficient freight service, and hence we are now engaged in the installation of a spur from the main line of the railroad, with necessary sidings, platforms, station and storage facilities. Carloads of forage, refrigerating cars of meat, and tons of other supplies have been purchased, and are now en route to the camp.

Camp Must be Complete.

As these and other facilities are developed to a point to adequately care for troops, organizations will be forwarded to the mobilization camp, but not before. More men have died of disease than by bullets in most of our wars, and we propose to contribute our share toward improving on past performance. Major Gen. Wood has rigid standards in the matter of sanitation and hygiene and we plan to meet his requirements.

Let me take this opportunity to discourage the ambition to join the New York division of all those men who seek enlistment, but who may have a misconception concerning the discipline which is inforced, the never-ending work required, the quiet, soldierly bearing and self sacrifice exacted, the constant verboten, and, finally and to be especially emphasized, the absence of liquor. In other words, men who aim to be swaggering, lazy, drinking soldiers, if they value their comfort and freedom, should avoid enlistment in the New York division as they would the plague, and the public will aid us in our work and confer a public service if they will write me personally, stating fully the facts affecting violations of these standards by soldiers of the New York division.

As to the movement of the division after its mobilization, I know nothing. That will be up to Major Gen. Wood, commanding the Eastern Department, under whose orders we will be and who will have charge of a number of other divisions. I have noted from the press that employers of our men are generally measuring up to their patriotic duties by granting leaves of absence wth pay. This is as it should be, for it distributes the obligation involved in serving the country, and is real practical patriotism. On behalf of Governor Whitman and the officers and men of the division, I wish publicly to express appreciation to such employers for this patriotic action.

I have received letters from public-spirited citizens offering financial assistance in providing things which mght be needed and which are not furnished under regulations or, if furnished, concerning which there might be delay in receiving. We do not desire to accumulate any unauthorized property which would only become an incumbrance in the event of movement ment of the command. However, motor trucks are always in demand, and we find it difficult to obtain officers' chargers of required standards, both because of the cost to the officers and of their scarcity. If public-spirted citizens are willing to loan motor trucks or saddle horses suitable for chargers to the division thty can be used to advantage.

Statement by General O'Ryan.

At 9 o'clock General O'Ryan called the correspondents to his tent and gave them an informal talk. At this time the news of the reported attack on the Pershing expedition had not reached camp. General O'Ryan gave the newspapermen the impression that he was handling his great task with coolness, precision, and orderly dispatch. He gave out much confidential information which he asked to be withheld from the public in order to let the reporters get a clear insight into the situation so that they may be guided in writing their dispatches.

"I think that Camp Whitman is an ideal site to mobilize our men," said he, "and the all-important question of an adequate water supply has already been met. The topography of the camp is serviceable alike for all arms of the service.

"My visit to camp today was to determine the practical value of the National Guard in the field. I found the Sixty-ninth to be practical. I discovered many skilled mechanics in the ranks, and at this time that is just what we need. One thing that impressed me was the fact that no less than sixty-seven steamfitters are members of the Sixty-ninth. You know that we have seven miles of pipes to connect up, and tomorrow that sixty-seven will get on the job. In an armory these men would be just soldiers, but now they are giving two-fold service to their country.

"I have received offers from the great motor building companies throughout the country in which they state that they will, when we ask them, hold up contracts made with the European belligerents and turn over to the use of the United States, motor trucks, ambulances, and automobiles, which were designed for use in the European war.

"We shall organize at once a motor truck company to work in conjunction with the Quartermaster's department. This will be started with twenty-eight two-ton trucks, contracs for which have been closed. We expec to receive the first of the trucks tomorrow and the others within five days."

General O'Ryan declared that the mobilization would be complete within ten days.

VAN CORTLANDT PARK NOW A MILITARY CAMP

Artillery and Cavalry Commands Assemble There to Await Marching Orders.

Dreary, but warlike, describes the northern part of Van Courtlandt Park as it appeared yesterday. On the extreme northern edge of the big city reservation the tents of the First Field Artillery are pitched and behind them is the corral which by tonight will contain more than 600 horses, with more still to come.

With the exception of the two up-State batteries attached to the regiment, the entire organization is now at Van Cortlandt and will remain there until some time next week. About 350 heavy draught horses, purchased in Oklahoma for the regiment last week, are due here on special freight trains this morning and for the next week the artillerymen will be kept busy breaking them in for war duties.

The batteries of the Second Field Artillery, under command of Colonel George A. Wingate, the home stations of which are in Brooklyn and the Bronx, began moving on Van Cortlandt Park last night and by this afternoon this regiment will have mobilized there to await further orders and incidentally to whip into shape more than 300 horses which will be delivered to the organization today. The new horses of the Second, like those of the First, were purchased in Oklahoma. The arrival of the Second at the park will make a total of ten batteries mobilized there.

Neither of these regiments is up to war strength, but every effort is being made to recruit the desired total. At war strength each of the eight batteries will require 200 horses, or a total of 2,400 for the two regiments for battery work alone. This does not include the animals used for pack purposes and by the headquarters staff. Battery B was the last one of the First to quit the armory at Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway. It joined the rest of the command yesterday morning. The batteries in the park are B, D, E, and F of the First, and C, D, E, and F of the Second. A and B of the Second will proceed to the park some time today.

Owing to the shortage of horses Major James B. Richardson, commanding the Bronx Batteries of the Second, had to order those units moved in sections. Yesterday morning more than 1,000 persons, most of them relatives and friends of the Bronx artillerymen, gathered in front of the armory at 166th Street and Franklin Avenue, to witness the departure of the command. About half of them followed the battery to the camp site at Van Cortlandt.

In order that Corporal Bernard Schneider of Battery E of the Second may remain at the side of his wife, who is seriously ill in Fordham Hospital, Captain W. T. Bright of that battery, yesterday appointed Schneider an acting Quartermaster Sergeant. As a Quartermaster Sergeant it is not necessary for Schneider to accompany his battery to camp. Mrs. Schneider, who is suffering from heart trouble, does not know that her husband has been ordered into the Federal service for possible duty in Mexico.

Sergeant Edward Burnius of Battery E, who has been married less than two weeks, will not ask to be relieved on the ground that he is a married man. He will go with the regiment, he said yesterday, and his bride will live with his mother while he is away.

Following an inspection by Major William B. Wright, commanding Squadron A, yesterday morning, Troops A and B of that command proceeded to the temporary mobilization camp in Van Cortlandt Park to await further orders. There they were later joined by Troops L and C of the First Cavalry of Brooklyn. Promptly at 1 o'clock the Squadron A units cantered out of their armory and headed for the park. Both troops were far under war strength, Troop A numbering only sixty men and Troop B less than fifty. The recruiting of the squadron to war strength and the acquirement of additional horses are the chief problems confronting the officers. The remaining two troops of the squadron and the machine gun troop will mobilize at Van Cortlandt today, as will also the remaining New York City troops of the First Cavalry.

OLD GUARDSMEN RUSH TO COLORS

Volunteers for Service Pour In at Albany from Scores of Veterans.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 21.—If there were any doubts of recruiting the State Guard up to full strength, that idea was dispelled today, for reports received at the Adjutant General's office indicated that every organization was fast approaching war footing.

Adjutant General Louis W. Stotesbury declared tonight after a conference with Governor Whitman in which the whole situation was gone over that the recruiting had exceeded not only his but the expectations of the guard's officers. When the Governor returned this evening from the Smith College and Williams College commencements he found many letters pledging support in furnishing the proper quota for services in the Federal forces. Nearly all were from ex-commissioned officers of the guard.

Colonel Abrey J. Parody of New York asked the authority to raise a company of volunteers to be composed principally of Spanish-American war veterans and Major Elliott Warren of New York, commanding the Veteran Artillery Corps, offering the services of the entire organization. This offer of Major Warren was first made before the call of President Wilson for State troops. The other tenders of service from old military men to be utilized in the active forces now came from the following:

Major Gen. Charles E. Roe, New York; William Cary Sanger, former Assistant Secretary of War, New York; Lieut. Col. Percy E. Nagle, New York, former Deputy Police Commissioner; Major Stephen F. Hart, New York, Third Deputy Police Commissioner; Captain J. J. Kingsbury, Buffalo, Governor's staff; Colonel Eugene E. Austin, New York; Major Newbold Morris, Lenox, Mass.; Lieut. Col. William M. Amory, New York; Captain William L. Fish, New York; Lieut. Col. John C. Kerby, New York; A. F. Luzzi, New York, member of the Old Guard, and Lieutenant Henry L. Kip, New York.

Messages came from scores of other veteran Guardsmen offering their services to the colors. An ex-officer cabled from Honolulu, asking if the State had any use for him, saying that he was ready to sail at a moment's notice.

Colonel Charles E. P. Babcock and other officers of the Sixty-fifth Regiment of Buffalo have applied to the Washington authorities under the Federalization act for permission to reorganize as a regiment of heavy artillery. The application was referred by the War Department to Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who sent it back to Washington with his approval.

There is no such organization now in the guard. The lessons of the war in Europe and the great success of heavy artillery organizations there has led to preparations for this new branch of arms in this country. It is understood that necessary guns for such a regiment are now being made at the Watervliet Arsenal. If the Buffalo regiment is reformed it is believed that it will be held within this State pending actual warfare. A regiment of heavy artillery consists of 28 officers, a band of 36, and 1,156 enlisted men, and an equipment of 24 guns, probably six-inch howitzers or 4.7s, 22 caissons, four-reel cots, six store wagons, six battery and nineteen field wagons, 848 draft horses, 398 saddle horses, and seventy mules.

Three of the recently graduated Albany Law School class appeared today at the State Bar examinations clad in the khaki uniform of the Tenth Regiment. Tonight the Albany Battalion of the regiment paraded for enlistment purposes. On its armory were placards urging enlistment. One read:

"Tickets free to Mexican border. Join the Tenth tonight."

Troop B, Captain Ernest L. Miller, which is recruited to its full strength, mostly of old members, is under orders to move to the Beekman camp tomorrow. This evening Troop 18, Boy Scouts, tendered its services to the Albany County Chapter of the Red Cross Society. Three-quarters of the boys are trained in first aid and can be used in the making of bandages.

Passenger department officials of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, under a dispatch from the Quartermasters' Department of the regular army, are getting together the necessary equipment to convey an ambulance company from Plattsburg to San Antonio, Texas. The provisions are for 157 officers and men, 126 horses and mules and 22 wagons. The special train will go by the way of Binghamton, Buffalo, and St. Louis.

RUSH OF RECRUITS TO CITY REGIMENTS

Various Commands Fast Approaching War Strength in Their Ranks.

The Seventy-first Regiment was ready to start for Beekman at 8 A. M. today, but late yesterday afternoon Colonel Bates received word from Division Headquarters in the Municipal Building that the departure of the regiment had been postponed. No new date for the departure was set.

All day long crowds waited in front of both the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Street entrances to the armory. Inside hundreds of relatives and friends of the officers and enlisted men remained all day, thinking it was the last day the Seventy-first was to spend in New York for perhaps months to come. Then came the rescinding order, which was received with joy by the relatives of the Guards, but with undisguised chagrin by the men of the command.

Recruiting of the Seventy-first is proceeding briskly, and the strength of the regiment is nearing the 1,500 mark. This means that since President Wilson issued his order calling out the Guard nearly 300 men have joined the command. Among the "rookies" who joined the regiment a few weeks ago is "Kid" McCoy, the former pugilist.

On the official roster of officers of the Seventy-first appears the name of Second Lieutenant George E. Hart of Company E. Lieutenant Hart resigned from the regiment several months ago, and is now in Flanders as junior officer of a British infantry regiment.

Drill Sergeants of the Twelfth Regiment were busy yesterday at the armory, Sixty-seventh Street and Columbus Avenue, putting recruits through the elementary stages of military instruction. The regiment is still far from its full strength, and the officers are bending every effort to remedy this condition, being spurred on by the reports of the readiness of other commands to leave for either camp or border at short notice.

The Seventh Regiment is ready at a moment's notice to start for Beekman. It already numbered more than 1,200 men when the President called the Guard into the Federal service. Since then the recruiting officers have been busy and recruits are being added daily to the roster. Within two weeks it is expected that the Seventh will be at war strength.

What is the legal meaning of "Committee"?

WHEN a person is incompetent to take care of his own property a Committee may be appointed to take charge of his affairs. The appointment is made by the Supreme Court.

In selecting the Committee, the Court usually carries out the wishes of those asking for the appointment.

When the Trust Company is selected to act as Committee of an incompetent's property, an individual is usually appointed to act as "Committee of the person."

The legal fees for this service are based on the care and responsibility involved and on the amount of money received and paid out by the Committee.

NEW JERSEY TROOPS NOW ALL MOBILIZED

Of 5,000 Arriving at Sea Girt, 1,100 Are Minus Uniforms or Equipment.

RECRUITING IN STATE BRISK

Militiamen Will Go to Rifle Ranges Today — Drillmasters to School Rookies.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA GIRT, N. J., June 21.—New Jersey's citizen soldiers, called to arms by Federal orders, are mobilized tonight, and Governor Fielder has telegraphed Secretary of War Baker that they are ready for service.

Approximately 5,000 men are encamped, of whom about 1,100 are recruits, most of them without equipment or uniform, who arrived with the infantry regiments. The first detachment of troops, the Fourth Infantry of Jersey City, detrained at Camp Fielder here at 10:47 o'clock this morning and, with the regimental band playing and the rookies whistling the "Rocky Road to Dublin," Colonel Arthur L. Steele led his command in review before Governor Fielder and his staff, assembled on the porch of his Summer home, to the camp position allotted.

The First Regiment of Newark followed, and the Fifth of Paterson was the last in camp. Members of the Fifth Regiment were caught in a cold rain which began to fall late this afternoon, and they were soaked through before their tents were pitched and the regimental quarters established.

The cavalry squadron, the two companies of field artillery, the Jersey City Signal Corps, and the hospital corps arrived early this afternoon and proceeded to establish camp on the Buckalew farm, a mile west of the State grounds.

Colonel Henry D. Styer, U. S. A., arrived in camp today. He will assist the brigade command in mobilizing the forces. His headquarters adjoin those of Brig. Gen. Edwin W. Hine, commanding the brigade. Colonel Steele, comanding the Fourth, whose rear guard consisted of about 300 unequipped recruits, reported that recruiting was going on at regimental headquarters in Jersey City and that scores of applicants were prevented from entraining for the camp because they had not been reached by the examining physicians. Colonel John D. Fraser of West Orange, commanding the First Regiment, reported brisk recruiting in Newark.

According to an announcement by General Bird W. Spencer, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, the Guardsmen will be sent to the ranges tomorrow for practice. Meantime the rookies will be undergoing their first training at the hands of drill officers.

Colonel Austin Colgate, one of the Republican candidates for Governor, who is Assistant to the Adjutant General, reported to General Sadler this morning. Later the Colonel, who is also a State Senator, was the luncheon guest, along with other Senators, of Governor and Mrs. Fielder in the "Little White House."

Adjt. Gen. Sadler's office force was brought from Trenton today and established in headquarters here.

PATRIOTIC SCENES IN JERSEY.

Troops Leaving for Sea Girt Camp Cause Rousing Demonstrations.

The departure of the First, Fourth, and Fifth Regiments of the New Jersey National Guard for the mobilization camp at Sea Girt yesterday caused demonstrations in several cities that recalled the early days of the Spanish-American war. Crowds cheered the militiamen, flags were flown everywhere, and there were innumerable relatives and others to bid fond farewells to the citizen soldiers at the trains.

The Fourth Regiment left its armory at Bergen and Mercer Streets, Jersey City, at 8 o'clock in the morning. The men marched along Mercer Street, past the City Hall, and down Montgomery Street to the old Pennsylvania station to their train. At the City Hall Mayor Fagan and the City Commissioners reviewed the troops.

As the Commissioners had declared a holiday, all city departments were closed until noon. The line of march was flag decked, and there were flags flying throughout Jersey City. The sidewalks were jammed with sightseers. Colonel Arthur L. Steele led the regiment, which was about 1,500 strong. Colonel Steele said that he would have his command recruited up to full war strength within a day or two.

Several city firemen marched with the regiment, having received leaves of absence with pay. They were all men who had seen military service before joining the department.

Three hundred rookies in citizens' clothes, but carrying rifles and the other equipment, marched at the rear of the First New Jersey as it swung down from the Hill in Newark to the Broad Street Station in the morning. They awakened an enthusiastic demonstration. With the First were two cavalry troops. From the armory to Broad Street, a distance of a mile and a half, the crowds were banked in all places ten and twelve deep on both sides of the street, and at corners and other centres of traffic the soldiers had to force their way through the throngs. Flowers rained on them as they marched and there was a continuous cheer. Twenty thousand persons were massed in front of the station. Mayor Raymond reviewed the troops at Broad and Market Streets.

The greater part of the Fifth Regiment left from Paterson, where it has headquarters. It had been joined by its companies from Ridgewood, Hackensack, and Englewood. These companies, with the machine gun company, marched to the Market Street Station of the Erie Railroad, escorted by G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans.

The Paterson police estimated that nearly 75,000 persons saw the Fifth march along Market Street to Carroll, to Broadway, to Main, to Market, and to the station. The route was decked with flags and bunting.

Ten thousand persons remained outside of the Fifth Regiment Armory in Paterson until midnight Tuesday, and it was after 2 o'clock yesterday morning before the last relatives who had been admitted to the galleries of the armory were through saying good-bye.

Company A of the Fifth, which has its armory at Passaic, had forty-nine men on its roster Monday morning. It marched yesterday morning 106 strong and expected to have its full war allowance by today. Passaic turned out a crowd of 12,000 to watch the company march. Five thousand school children, each waving a flag, formed a hollow square about the station, and for a half mile down the track as the trains went past were flag-waving crowds.

Orange gave a rousing demonstration when Companies H and I of the Fifth Regiment left there. There were no buildings along the short route of march from William Street along Centre to Main and to the Erie station in West Orange that was not flag decorated. Crowds lined both sides of the street. The two companies numbered 214 men. When the train pulled out whistles were blown on factories and church bells rang. When the train passed the Thomas A. Edison works in West Orange a recess of five minutes was declared in all departments so that the employes could line up near the tracks and cheer the troops. The two companies were joined at Forest Hills by the Montclair company.

KOLEHMAINEN WON'T FIGHT.

Finnish Runner Says He Didn't Understand Enlistment.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the champion long-distance runner and member of Company L, Fourteenth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., of Brooklyn, had not joined his regiment at the armory last night and, according to Kolehmainen, he had no intention of doing so. Colonel John H. Foote said he hadn't determined what to do in Kolehmainen's case, but probably should do nothing, as he realized the justice of Kolehmainen's contention that he was financially unable to leave his wife and week-old baby while he went to concentration camp or possibly to war.

Colonel Foote declared, however, that there was absolutely no truth in another reason advanced by the Finnish runner for his failure to join the colors. Kolehmainen had said that he joined the regiment only at the request of its members, who wanted to benefit by his athletic prowess and that he had received assurances he would not have to serve as a soldier or perform any of the duties performed by the other men. Kolehmainen, who cannot read English, said he had wanted to take a Finnish interpreter with him when he went to the armory on last Jan. 10 for physical examination before joining the regiment, but friends, he said, had advised him this was not necessary, and, as a result, he had signed his enlistment papers without knowing what was contained in them.

Colonel Foote was highly exercised when he heard of this, following Kolehmainen's refusal late on Monday night to obey the peremptory order to appear at the armory immediately, but last night the Colonel had recovered his good nature and said he was inclined to heed Kolehmainen's first excuse and disregard his second entirely, although he insisted that the runner was as much a member of the regiment as any other private or officer and declared no special dispensations had been made in his case.

SOUTH IS FILLED WITH MARTIAL SPIRIT

Mobilization of Militia Makes War Peril With Mexico Seem Close to People.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 21.—It took the calling out of the National Guard to arouse the South to the real seriousness of the Mexican crisis, but now that it has been aroused the South seems to be preparing to go to war in earnest. At least that is the impression one gains in a trip here from New York. At every little wayside station on the way down by the Southern Railway there was visible evidence of it. The men who got on the train at various stations said that until a week ago the South was apathetic regarding the Mexican situation, and took it for granted that, as during the last five years, each new crisis would be passed safely. But it is different now.

At every little station in Virginia, the carolinas, Georgia, and Alabama were to be seen a handful of young men in khaki. In many of the larger towns the martial airs of military bands were to be heard from the passing train. And the one topic of conversation is the Mexican crisis. The newspapers of the towns passed through are brought aboard by porters and newsboys, and in them is reflected the spirit given birth in the calling out of the militia by President Wilson.

"Here's a chance for adventure and nerve, and only men with good red blood and a reasonable amount of gray matter need apply"—an item in yesterday's Atlanta Constitution exclaimed, in urging recruits to join a machine gun company.

"These are boys who will be called upon when there's trouble ahead of a marching column. These are the fellows who will be yelled for when the enemy is pouring it in good and hot. They will be chaps who will pour a shrieking stream of fire into the charging lines," and so on it continues; and the imagination of the people seems to have been genuinely fired by the "call to the colors," as the calling out of the guard is generally being termed throughout the South, and everywhere it seems to be taken for granted that out-and-out war is to follow in short order. One of the papers tossed on the train yesterday, The Mobile Item, announced that the Guard would parade in Mobile that day, and in headlines said that this was "probably the last opportunity to see the National Guard."

The newspapers also recorded the fact that a number of wives and sisters and other women appeared at the armories to urge that certain members of the various National Guard organizations be excused from duty. Together with these, however, were announcements that new recruits were pouring in with surprising rapidity.

Mobile laid claim to the South's first war bride. A Mobile paper announced that the wedding of one D. A. Stewart and his fiancée had been moved forward ahead of schedule so that Stewart, a private in a machine gun company, could join his regiment at once. Practically all of the papers had announcements from manufacturers and employers that National Guardsmen would receive full pay while on duty. The Mobile City Commissioners voted three months' full pay to the city employes in the National Guard, and everywhere along the line there were tales of veterans of the civil war who were applying for permission to join and arguing indignantly that they still had lots of good fight in them.

Here in San Antonio the attitude seems a little different. The people here are more accustomed to feeling that they are on the verge of real trouble with Mexico. They've felt that way for several years, and now they seem to feel that things may be smoothed over temporarily again this time, but that an open break is inevitable in the long run.

$10,000 RISKS FOR MILITIA.

New York Life Puts That Limit on Policies—Mutual Unlimited.

The New York and Mutual Life Insurance Companies announced yesterday that war risk premiums would be paid by militiamen engaging in military operations on policies purchased hereafter. The Metropolitan Life and Equitable Insurance Companies announced on Tuesday that policies not in excess of $2,000 would hereafter be sold to persons who already were members, or were to become members of the National Guard or Naval Reserve.

The maximum amount of insurance to be sold hereafter by the New York Life to National Guardsmen, militiamen, and persons in the Red Cross and other relief service is $10,000, it was announced yesterday. The Mutual Life Insurance Company has placed no limit on the amount of life insurance sold, but will exact an additional premium of $5 per $1,000 on all policies sold hereafter to persons engaging in military or war relief service. None of the companies changed the terms of policies already in existence.

GERMAN BANKER IS FREED.

Washington Is Convinced He Did Not Violate Neutrality.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Chief A. B. Bielaski of the Department of Justice's Bureau of Investigation today telegraphed to his El Paso agents to drop charges against Frederick Griese, a German banker of Mexico City, detained there yesterday for alleged attempts to violate American neutrality. Investigation convinced officials here there had been no violations.

Griese was suspected by Department agents of taking a leading part in anti-American propaganda in Mexico, and was arrested as he was preparing to cross the border. No evidence was discovered on which he could be held.

EL PASO, Texas, June 21.—Frederick Griese, German banker of Mexico City, detained here by Department of Justice agents on the suspicion that he had violated American neutrality, was released today on receipt of orders from Washington. It was said Griese was detained because he had uttered anti-American sentiments and had sent several code messages to Mexico City.

WILSON REVIEWS MILITIA.

Watches District of Columbia Guard March Off to Camp.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Wilson got his first view today of militia mobilization for Mexian border service. Standing on the curb of Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House with Secretary Baker and Colonel Harts, his military aide, he reviewed the District of Columbia National Guard as it marched by on the way to camp across the Potomac River at Fort Myer.

"They are mighty nice-looking boys," the President remarked to Secretary Baker.

Mr. Wilson wore a straw hat and stood without an umbrella in a drizzling rain. He manifested special interest in the signal corps and a battalion of negro militia. Secretary Baker recognized one of his messengers, who is a Captain.

The President doffed his hat in saluting General E. W. Harvey of the District Guardsmen, and also when color bearers passed by with flags flying.

WOMEN MOVE TO AID SOLDIERS' FAMILIES

Aim to Find Work for the Needy and to Ease the Way for Those Left Behind.

PLANS FOR ANY EMERGENCY

Committee to Act in All States—Comfort of the Men at the Front to be Looked After.

New York women started early yesterday to prepare for the comfort and care of the men who are to go to the front and for the helpless families many of them will leave behind.

One of the first bodies of women to get together were those called for a meeting at the headquarters of the Vacation War Relief Committee, 38 West Thirty-ninth Street. They had a two-hour session and formed what is to be called the "National Patriotic Relief Committee," with sub-committees in every State.

The committee did not commit itself to any special line of work yesterday, but announced that it would be in "readiness for any emergency work which the present situation might develop."

A plea was sent out asking all existing relief societies to co-operate with the work of the new committees, so as to eliminate duplication of organization and work.

"There is no occasion for hysteria," says the plea. "Let us organize in a spirit of preparedness and lose individual identity in the big organization."

An Executive Committee was appointed with Miss Maude Wetmore Chairman, Mrs. Wendell Baker, Mrs. James Cushman, Mrs. A. Dike, Mrs. Kenneth Frazier, Miss Therese O'Donohue, Miss Robinson-Smith, Mrs. Louis B. Stillwell and Miss Anne Morgan, who is Chairman of the Vacation War Relief, ex officio. Mrs. Charles Chapin is Chairman for New Jersey. An Executive Committee meeting is to be held this morning.

Mrs. Lindon W. Bates, Chairman of the Woman's Section of the Movement for National Preparedness, whose work is strictly educational, said yesterday that while this work will go on as before, arrangements will be made to take up also more material work for the aid of those left behind by the men going to the front, if necessary, and the Chairmen in the twenty-four States in which the organization is represented will be requested to be ready in case of need.

Relief work was actually begun by the Woman's National Committee of the American Defense Society, which held a meeting yesterday morning at 303 Fifth Avenue, Mrs. William Cumming Story, the Chairman, presiding. A general committee was appointed to conduct the work for relief and the preparation of hospital supplies, with two sub-committees, one to conduct an employment registration bureau, and another to collect magazines and books for the soldiers.

An initial donation of 500 recent publications was announced by the second sub-committee at the close of the meeting, and an offer was received by the General Committee from a prominent woman who said she would give a place in her home this Summer to a woman with a child, wife of a Guardsman, to assist her in the direction of the household. An application for work was received from a Brooklyn woman whose husband and son will go to the front and who will need to support herself during their absence. Another woman who applied for work has been a nurse and would like to be a nurse-companion during the absence of the men of her family.

Options have been taken on several stores in the central part of the city, and one of these is to be selected immediately for headquarters and workroom. Mrs. Story had a letter prepared yesterday which she will send to thousands of women. She asks their aid in making supplies for the men in Mexico if they should be needed, and the women are requested to report their willingness to work to the American Defense Society headquarters, 303 Fifth Avenue.

Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, as Chairman of the Committee on Literature, prepared a letter to be sent to every magazine publisher in the country asking how many magazines they would give to the soldiers, and she also asks people having old books and magazines to communicate with her at the Defense headquarters. A third letter was prepared by Mrs. Dewing Hutchinson, Chairman on Employment Bureau, to be sent to reputable firms in the city who might have work for women, telling of the employment bureau which has been opened for members of families of men in Mexico, and asking them when in need of help to notify the committee before looking elsewhere.

Women dependents of soldiers who will need aid are requested to notify Mrs. Story at the Defense Society Headquarters. In making application they should name the command in which the breadwinner of the family is serving, the work the applicant is willing to do, and the number dependent upon her for support.

Should the present Mexican trouble give evidence of lasting long it was said at the defense headquarters that employment bureaus similar to that in New York will be started in every State in the Union.

Mrs. Charles B. Goldborough is Chairman of the General Committee appointed yesterday. Mrs. Dewing Hutchinson and Mrs. Sterling Story are Vice Chairmen, and the members are Miss Florence G. Finch, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. John H. Hanan, Mrs. Simon Baruch, Mrs. Alfred P. Hanan, Jr., Mrs. Joseph H. Coit, Mrs. J. A. Ruthven, Mrs. Arthur J. Singer, Mrs. C. S. Thompson, Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, Mrs. Henry C. Quinby, Mrs. R. H. Clark, and Mrs. E. T. Herbert.

There are two organizations of military young women in New York who are going to do what they can to keep the town in order if the men all go to war. These are the American Woman's League for Self-Defense and Preparedness, Mrs. Ida Powell Priest, President, and the Interstate Order of Military Women, with Mrs. J. Hungerford Milbank at the head. The 500 or more young women members of the two organizations have not gone much further in their preparations for war than to be measured for khaki uniforms, but they are going after the rest on the double quick and expect to be ready to protect the city by the time they are needed.

EMPLOYERS IN RACE TO HONOR THE FLAG

"Hyphenism" Thrown to Winds as Companies Grant Leaves with Full Pay.

MOVEMENT SWEEPS NATION

B. R. T. Will Lose Between 100 and 200 Men, Who Will Receive Wages for Three Months.

There are no "strings" to the American patriotism exhibited in the desire of employers to aid their workers in the performance of their duty to the Government, according to secretaries of associations and to employers in all businesses interviewed yesterday for THE NEW YORK TIMES. Regardless of descent or of apparent "hyphenism" as revealed by firm names or by the character of businesses, all employers have given their soldier-employes all the support and encouragement in their power, the secretaries believe.

"Why shouldn't they, all of them, come to the support of the flag in an impending crisis?" said an official of an association that has attached to its resolutions recommending leaves of absence with full pay the names of many firms with an unmistakable foreign spelling. "Whatever our pros and antis, our prejudices, and our admiration for this or that nation, we are all Americans."

Corporations and firms, large and small, in all parts of the country yesterday announced that they would pay full salaries to all employes called to the colors, and that these payments would not cease during terms of service. All jobs will be waiting for the soldiers when they return from mobilization camps or wherever else the orders of the Government may take them.

In the cases of many national corporations the numbers remaining on the payrolls will run into hundreds, and among the transit companies and factories in New York City the numbers may be almost as large when complete censuses of the militiamen are made by employers.

Insurance Rate Not Affected.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company yesterday announced that between 100 and 200 men would be called from its service to that of the country, and that all men would be kept on full pay for three months. If the service is to last longer than that the company will consider the problem again at the end of that period. It was said, too, that the rate of insurance carried under the B. R. T. group insurance plan would not be affected. In serving the country the B. R. T. employes will not lose their seniority rating, but will resume their jobs with the same standing and chances of promotion.

All the soldier-employes of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company yesterday received a letter expressing a desire of the company "to co-operate with its employes in carrying out its share of the common duty of all," and explaining the plan to support those dependent upon the militiamen. By the Goodrich system the employe or his dependents will receive the difference between his average wage in the service of the company and that paid by the Government. Married men or single men with dependents will receive two-thirds of their average wage, while all others will receive one-half. The ruling is to continue in force one year, while the conditions of pensions and group insurance will not be affected.

Other companies whose workers in many States have been called, yesterday made announcements of plans to pay full wages, without knowledge of the numbers of men affected. A few of these companies were: The National Biscuit Company, United Cigar Stores Company, United Zinc Smelting Corporation, and the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company. According to figures already gathered the Loose-Wiles Company will lose more than 100 men, but has notified its soldiers that salaries will be paid indefinitely.

Others Promise Full Pay.

Two other department stores, Bloomingdale Brothers and A. I. Namm & Son, of Brooklyn reported that they would pay full salaries with insurance of $500. Other stores announcing a system of giving full pay with leaves of absence were: James A. Hearn & Son, Franklin Simon Company, James Butler, Inc.; Oppenheim, Collins & Co., McEnery's, of Brooklyn, and Sheilas & Chestnut of Brooklyn.

Following the departure of Thompson W. Decker, director and Treasurer of the Sheffield Farms-Slawson Decker Company, with the Seventh Regiment, and of twenty-two other employes of the company, the Board of Directors yesterday decided to keep all their soldiers on the payroll until the end of the period of service. Similar action was taken by R. Hoe & Co., in their press manufacturing shops and by Jacob Ruppert in his breweries and other businesses.

Importers, exporters, hotels and other businesses have given their employes leaves with full pay. George Borgfeldt & Co., importers and exporters, have given leaves with pay. Fifteen bellboys who are to leave the McAlpin and the Claridge Hotels received more than leaves with pay. L. M. Boomer, manager of the two hotels, gave them a dinner and a dance in McAlpin roof garden, and all the boys' "best girls" were there with their new pink dresses.

The boys discarded their working uniforms and stalked about proudly in the uniforms of real soldiers.

"One thing about my boys" said Mr. Boomer as he proudly watched them dancing their farewell, "if they get in a tight place and have to run no Mexican bullet will ever be fast enough to catch them."

Pennsylvania Grants Leaves.

While most the railroads are considering methods of aiding the families of militiamen the Pennsylvania has announced that it will give its 400 guardsmen on the lines east of Pittsburgh indefinite leaves of absence with full pay. The New York Central, Lehigh Valley, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and the Erie are gathering figures from their departments. The New York Telephone Company, is also considering giving pay to the militiamen.

Among Wall Street firms and banks the Columbia Trust Company, and W. R. Britton & Co., announced no deductions in pay-all employes in the army. Among the twenty who leave the Columbia Trust Company, are: George E. Warren, Vice President, who is a member of Squadron A; Vernon P. Baker, Assistant Manager of the Harlem Branch, a member of the Seventh Regiment; John J. Dean, Captain of Company L, Twelfth Regiment; and S. I. Bateman, Second Lieutenant in the Fifth Infantry of the New Jersey National Guard. James E. Miller, a Vice President who is a First Lieutenant in the Aviation Corps, also expects to be summoned.

Charles E. Miller, the automobile accessory jobber of 97 Reade Street, has guaranteed leave of absence with full pay to all of his employes who are National Guardsmen and are forced to leave their places by the mobilization order.

The Commissioners of Hoboken voted yesterday to grant leaves of absence with pay to all city employes who are members of the National Guard, while the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn has released its guardsmen-members from payment of dues. It is expected that other clubs will follow.

Other companies that will make decisions upon the problem of aiding the militiamen are the Butterick Publishing Company, Westcott Express Company, American Lithographic Company, Ward Baking Company, Cushman's Sons, Borden Condensed Milk Company, Clover Farms, Incorporated, and many companies operating factories and packing houses.

The American Piano Company, announced yesterday that it had sent out a letter to all its factories and sales departments giving leaves of absence with full salaries. The order includes the Knabe factories in Baltimore, the Chickering factories in Boston, and the Foster-Armstrong factories in East Rochester, N. Y. Similar action was taken by the Amalgamated Paint Company, except that its orders, unlike those of all other companies, also promises leaves of absence with full pay to all employes who enlist for service in the United States Army as well as in the guard companies.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., June 21.—John D. Rockefeller has demonstrated his patriotism through an official announcement by J. F. Welborn, President of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, that all employees of the company who go with State militia to the state mobilization camp or the Mexican border will get back their old jobs when they return. Married men will receive half pay from the company.

Consul Silliman Leaves Mexico.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, June 21.—United States Consul J. R. Silliman arrived here early today from Saltillo, coming by way of Monclova, owing to the cessation of railroad traffic between Monterey and Nuevo Laredo. He expects to remain here several days. Mr. Silliman is the last American Consul to leave Mexico.

ARGENTINA HOPES WAR WILL BE AVERTED

Thinks Conflict Would End Mexican Troubles But Disturb All American Opinion.

BUENOS AIRES, June 21.—In its comment on the situation between the United States and Mexico, La Razon says it considers the solution of the question a difficult one. War, it believes, would put an end to the revolution, but the conflict would prove an interminable one and is not desired by the United States because it would mean a failure of the American ideal.

La Nacion expresses profound regret over the situation between the two nations, which it says acts as a disturbance of all American opinion. Argentina, it declares, would protest if the United States were seeking territory, but it knows that is not the case, as General Carranza authorized American troops to penetrate Mexican territory.

El Diario condemns the action of Mexican bandits, but regrets the prospect of interevntion.

SHILLITONI SHOOTS GUARDS, ESCAPES

a few yards from Shillitoni's cell. At the time the prison authorities were undecided whether the man had lost his nerve or was feigning in the hope of establishing an appearance of insanity which might lead to a commutation of his sentence.

Shillitoni's escape from the Death House could not have been accomplished but for two things—his possession of a revolver and the fact that McCarthy had the keys to the Death House in his pocket.

Pistol Brought By Woman.

The last circumstance was due to the death of Angelo Leggio in a cell in the Death House some months ago. Leggio hanged himself in his cell and his body was in view of the keepers who could have saved him for nearly twenty minutes while the keys to the Death House were being sent from the prison office. At that time keepers in the Death House were not permitted to carry keys. They had been taken away from them at the time of the Pallister and Roehl escape and when they wished to leave the place they had to telephone to the office for some one to bring the key and let them out. Warden Kirchwey restored the keys to the keepers after Leggio's death.

How Shillitoni secured a revolver, however, is a mystery to the prison officials, unless it were brought to him yesterday by a visitor. His brother and sister-in-law visited him yesterday. According to Confidential Clerk Miller women visitors to the death house are never searched and it is supposed this woman dropped the revolver from beneath her skirt while the attention of the keeper was distracted by the telephone ringing, and that she kicked it or Shillitoni reached through the double screen separating him from his visitors, and grabbed it.

The last previous escape similar to Shillitoni's was that of Thomas Palliser and Frank W. Roehl, who, on a stormy night in April, 1893, lured two guards into their cells, where they overpowered them, took away their weapons, and, without discoverey by other officials, got over the prison wall and into a small boat moored near by in the Hudson. It was some time later that this boat was found floating bottom up, and later still that the bodies of Palliser and Roehl were recovered, both with mortal bullet wounds. How they came to death has never been learned.

WOMEN ARE EAGER TO SERVE ON BORDER

Red Cross Offices Besieged with Applications of Would-Be Nurses.

NEW INSTRUCTION CLASSES

More Than 600 Now Enrolled Here Can Be Sent at Once to Front, Headquarters Announces.

The headquarters and the branch offices of the American Red Cross were running at full force yesterday, with many applications by would-be workers both in person and by telephone. Many of these had to be refused, as no opportunity for immediate service could be promised. The majority of the women who volunteered their services to go to the Mexican border stated emphatically that they wished to be sent to Mexico at once. Many of these said they were wives of National Guardsmen who had been mobilized.

More than 200 telephone calls from earnest volunteers were recorded yesterday at the branch office at Thirty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue. At headquarters of the society, 122 East Twenty-second Street, where no record of calls was kept, the number was said to exceed 200. It was said that more than 600 were enrolled.

The office and class room of the West Side Branch of the American Red Cross at Broadway and Sixty-seventh Street resembled a recruiting office all day yesterday. Applicants for membership in the instruction classes which have been conducted by the branch during the Winter came in rapidly.

On account of the number of applicants, the instruction classes which are held at the branch have been increased to three. A new course in First Aid and Home Care, subjects which have formerly been taught in separate classes, are to be combined.

"Our troops in Mexico will present a new problem to us," said one of the nurses today, "as there will be a great need for certain kinds of drugs to allay special and uncommon forms of fevers which we may nave difficulty in procuring."

One of the interesting aspects of the situation for us in talking to applicants to our classes," said an assistant, "is the enthusiasm which new members display for being Red Cross nurses and going to Mexico, all at once. Many of them don't want to delay for a little preparation. They want the glory of nursing our brave soldiers, want to show their courage. They've read of the heroism of Red Cross nurses at the front in Europe, and can't wait for the opportunity of showing themselves just as brave and patriotic as their sisters over the seas. The hard work of training in the end proves no barrier or check to their enthusiasm."

At the Court Street Headquarters of the Red Cross in Brooklyn a roster of certified nurses disclosed the fact that there are 325 duly qualified Red Cross nurses in Brooklyn, all willing to volunteer their services, should they be required. During the week the supply headquarters of the society has been sending cases to the Bush Terminal for shipment. Mrs. Clarence Hyde, who is the head of the supply headquarters on Montague Street, has been besieged with applications for service with the society.

Women who have completed the required course in first aid with the society have been asked to sign a muster roll at Bellevue Hospital, in order to signify their willingness to serve in Mexico when the official call shall have been sent out.

The following statement was given out yesterday from the headquarters of the society:

"Jefferson R. Kean, Director General of the Red Cross Military Relief Committee at Washington has placed at the disposal of the Government nurses and doctors for work on the border of Mexico. The plan is to supplement the existing nurses' corps of the army until this corps can be increased to a point equal to the present emergency. This offer has been received by the Surgeon General of the army and it is probable that many of the nurses will be accepted. More than 600 nurses have been enrolled in New York City and can be sent at once to the border if needed."

Dr. William B. Brinsmade, director of the naval hospital unit which Brooklyn is to furnish to the American Red Cross, said yesterday that he had chosen the personnel of the unit, but the names had not yet been authorized. Many more than the required number of applicants necessary to make up the staff had offered their services, he said, but many volunteer helpers for kitchen work and packers would be needed in addition to these.

RED CROSS AWAITS ORDERS.

Gen. Murray Announces Organization Is Ready for Mexican Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Major Gen. Arthur Murray, Vice Chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, said today that the Red Cross was ready for such emergencies as the Mexican situation might lead to. The society is now prepared to equip field units sufficient to do hospital service for an army of 100,000 men, and is trying to bring its equipment up to a basis fit for 250,000. Just now it lacks field equipment, as, owing to the shortage of storage rooms, supplies have not been accumulated, but these can be bought with funds on hand to the extent that will probably be needed in the near future.

Base hospitals require staffs of 225 doctors, nurses, and orderlies each. Hospitals all over the country have enrolled part of their staffs with the Red Cross. Harvard University has placed both a base hospital unit and a field column unit at the Red Cross's disposal.

Officials of the Red Cross are now waiting for orders from the War and Navy Departments. Once units are sent out for a special service they pass under naval or military command, as the case may be. Only within the last year has the Red Cross begun organization for war purposes, but the work has progressed satisfactorily.

EIGHT-SHIP PROGRAM TO GO BEFORE SENATE

Tillman Says Sub-Committee Will Favor Four Battle Cruisers and Four Dreadnoughts.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A proposal for four battle cruisers and four dreadnoughts in this year's naval construction program was discussed today by the Senate sub-committee, before which the Naval bill is pending. While no decision was reached, Chairman Tillman predicted after the conference that the eight capital ship plan would be approved, and Senators Swanson and Lodge, the two other members, said a substantial increase was certain over the House building program of five battle cruisers and no dreadnoughts.

President Wilson and Secretary Daniels outlined to Senators Tillman and Swanson at a White House conference yesterday their belief that the House building provisions should be expanded. The Administration's determination, Mr. Tillman said tonight, had found a ready response in the sub-committee, which had indicated its willingness at least to meet the President's recommendations. It is understood that eight capital ships will more than satisfy the Administration, and that four battle cruisers and three dreadnoughts is the most it has hoped for.

"We are going to give the navy the entire increase in personnel that they ask for, too," said Senator Tillman. "I think the total enlisted strength they want is about 70,000 men, or an increase of 20,700 men. The sub-committee already has practically agreed on that. We are seeking to get the revised bill to the full committee the last of the week and will try to get it in the Senate early next week."

The record of Secretary Daniels was defended in the Senate in a prepared speech by Mr. Thomas. He declared that the criticism of the Secretary originated with those who "could not use him" and with self-seeking contractors.

FORCE TO GUARD WALL ST.

Volunteers Will Have Weekly Drills in Maritime Exchange.

Preparedness plans, having their root in the recently proposed Home Defense League, are making progress in the financial district. The purpose is to prepare a volunteer force to guard the Wall Street territory at times when the police, army and National Guard are drawn to other parts of the city or away from New York as the result of war, riots or any other crisis.

Police Captain Fahey, it was learned yesterday, has already enrolled more than fifty acceptable volunteers for emergency service. The Maritime Exchange has offered the use of its big floor for drilling purposes on Wednesdays between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

MORE GUARDS WED ON EVE OF DEPARTING

Suffragists Fit Up Altar in Marriage Chapel in Municipal Building.

CAKE FOR EVERY COUPLE

Women Also Furnish Bouquets for the Brides and Badges for the Bridegrooms.

The prospect of the National Guard being sent to Mexico was responsible for more weddings yesterday of persons who didn't wish to wait perhaps until a war was over.

The soldiers who were married in the City Marriage Chapel in the Municipal Building couldn't get away until they had pinned on their bosoms woman suffrage buttons, which they promised to take into Mexico if they got a chance. In repayment for this the suffragists gave the brides and bridegrooms wedding cake, bouquets, and good wishes.

Deputy City Clerk Frank Goodwin performed three "military" weddings yesterday. The first was that of Private Mouraid J. Kaelin, Company K, Seventy-first Infantry, of 145 East Forty-eighth Street, to Miss Emma Wigget of the same address. They had intended to be married next Spring, but changed their plans suddenly yesterday morning.

A little later Private George Schieder, 2,500 Eighth Avenue, and Miss Pauline J. Froehlich, 653 Eagle Avenue, the Bronx, arrived, and they were married by "Parson" Goodwin. Just before the chapel closed in the afternoon Corporal Frank F. Oser, Company M, Seventy-first Infantry, and Miss Florence Emily Koehler of 32 Washington Square South came into the room in a hurry, and Corporal Oser explained that he had just got a special pass from his commanding officer to leave the armory at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street so that he could be married before he had to leave the city. Miss Koehler explained that they were to have been married in September, but when Frank was called to arms she thought there was no time like the present. They then were married.

Along with all the other brides and bridegrooms who went to the chapel yesterday, the "military" couples found themselves surrounded by women with white and yellow sashes, who handed suffrage pamphlets to the brides-to-be and pinned suffrage buttons on the bridegrooms. After the ceremony there was a nice little white box filled with wedding cake for each couple.

Sergeant Thomas Dorrington Wadleton of the Signal Corps, who lives at 745 Riverside Drive, obtained a license yesterday morning at the Municipal Building to marry Miss Margaret Jeanne Kerns, daughter of John Kerns, 521 West Eleventh Street. The ceremony was performed yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Ascension.

First Lieutenant M. Fredjk Jensen of the Fourteenth Infantry of Brooklyn and Miss Laura Jacobson, a nurse in the Kingston Avenue Hospital, Brooklyn, were married in the Fourteenth Regiment Armory Tuesday night.

Sergeant Peter M. Depps, also of the Fourteenth Infantry of Brooklyn, married Miss Louise A. Steubner of 401 East Seventy-first Street in the rectory of Grace Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, Tuesday night.

FRENCH GUNS HALT GERMAN ASSAULTS

Two More Violent Attacks on the East Bank of the Meuse and One on the West.

NEW DRIVE NEAR RHEIMS

Germans Try to Advance After Mine Explosions—Berlin Silent on the Operations Around Verdun.

LONDON, June 21.—Two more violent attacks after an all-day bombardment were made yesterday by the Germans on the French positions west and south of Fort de Vaux. Curtains of fire and machine guns stopped the assaults, according to tonight's Paris report, and the Germans suffered heavy losses. Another German attack on the west bank of the Meuse against the positions recently captured by the French south of Le Mort Homme also was checked by French fire.

Northwest of Rheims, where there has been little activity reported for some time, an offensive was undertaken by the Germans after the explosion of two mines. The Paris report of this afternoon says this effort "was defeated completely."

No mention of Verdun is made in the German statement today.

The official communication issued by the French War Office tonight reads:

> On the left bank of the Meuse a German attack against new trenches conquered by us on June 15 on the slopes south of Le Mort Homme was completely arrested by our fire.
>
> On the right bank, after a violent bombardment with big shells which lasted all day in the region of Hill 320, the Chapitre Wood, and Fumin-Le-Chenios, the Germans attacked our positions west and south of Fort de Vaux. Our curtains of fire and the fire of our machine guns twice broke the assaults of the enemy, who suffered heavy losses.
>
> There was an intermittent cannonading on the rest of the front.
>
> Aviation.—On the night of June 20-21 one of our bombing groups dropped 210 shells on the station at Arnaville and 276 on the military establishments and the Metz station.

The text of the French statement of this afternoon follows:

> South of the Somme, before Maucourt, a detachment of the enemy which attempted to approach our lines was dispersed with rifle fire.
>
> Northwest of Rheims the Germans, after exploding two mines, delivered an attack against the trenches at Hill 108, south of Berry-au-Bac. Checked by our curtain of fire, this attack was defeated completely.
>
> On both banks of the Meuse (Verdun front) our artillery and that of the enemy were rather active during the night.

Today's official report from German Headquarters says:

> At various points between the Franco-Belgian frontier and the Oise there was considerable activity on the part of the artillery, the aerial service and mining detachments. As a result of incursions by patrols in the vicinity of Berry-au-Bac and near Frapelle, east of St. Dié, some French prisoners were brought in.
>
> A British aeroplane plunged to earth near Puisieux, northwest of Bapaume, having been brought down by the fire of our heavy aircraft guns. One of the occupants of the machine was killed. A French aeroplane was compelled to land near Kemnat, northeast of Pont-a-Mousson. The occupants were captured.

The following official communication was issued by the British War Office tonight:

> The day has been devoid of any important incident. It passed very quietly on most parts of the front. Intermittent shelling occurred near Hebuterne, the Souchez Valley, and Frelinghein, while mining continued briskly near Neuville-St. Vaast and the Loos Salient. Near La Bassée yesterday evening five of the enemy's ammunition lorries came under the fire of our artillery. One of them was hit, and all of them exploded.

TWO AMERICANS WOUNDED.

Jacob Wendel and H. H. Hollinshed Hurt at Verdun.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 21.—Jacob Wendel of 106 East Thirty-fifth Street, New York, and Harry Howard Hollinshed of Sparta, N. J., attached to Captain Richard Norton's field section of the American Ambulance at Verdun, have just been brought to Neuilly Hospital with shrapnel wounds received while moving the wounded.

Neither is in a dangerous condition, though Wendel was operated on to extract a ball which, striking a trouser button near the hip, was deflected into the spine five inches deep. Hollinshed has a flesh wound in the arm.

Miss E. M. Hollinshed of Sparta, N. J., a sister of Harry H. Hollinshed, said last night that she had received a message from him on Tuesday telling her that he had been wounded.

"Jacob Wendel and my brother were friends," she said, "and were about to take a ten days' holiday, which they were going to spend at Cambridge University, where Mr. Wendel was educated."

Miss Hollinshed said that her brother had studied law at New York University, and was practicing his profession when the war broke out. He felt that he ought to do something to help the Allies, because his parents were English, and that is why he went over, she said.

ALLIES' ADVANCE IN AFRICA.

British and Belgians Extend Their Hold on German Colony.

LONDON, June 21.—Allied forces which are invading German East Africa are continuing the advance successfully. It was announced officially today that the column moving from British East Africa into the northeastern section of the German colony had occupied Handeni. Another column, advancing from the south, has taken Alt Langenburg, near the head of Lake Nyasa.

"Handeni was occupied on Monday," the statement says. "The enemy continued to retreat toward the Central Railway, sustaining losses in rearguard actions. There is nothing new from Kondoa-Irangi.

"In the southern theatre Brigadier General Northey's force, having occupied Alt Langenburg on June 13, drove off a counterattack, the enemy retiring to the northeast.

"In the northwest theatre Belgian columns occupied the line between the head of the Tanganyika and the southwestern extremity of Lake Victoria."

SEACONNET TOTAL LOSS; NEW EVIDENCE OF MINE

Bits of Metal Found on American Ship Passed on by Naval Experts of Embassy.

LONDON, June 21.—The American steamer Seaconnet, which was run ashore on the Scroby sands on Sunday last after having been damaged by an exterior explosion, has been abandoned by the salvage operators and declared a total loss. Captain Butcher, who remained on board until the chance of salving the steamer was seen to be hopeless, has reported, with other officers of the vessel, to American Consul General Skinner, who took their affidavits for transmission to the State Department in Washington.

The affidavits add nothing to the details already known. The British Admiralty is making an investigation in the Seaconnet case, but no report as to the result has yet been issued.

The metal fragments from the hull have been examined by the naval experts at the American Embassy and the general impression is that they are parts of a mine. The reports of the naval attachés will be communicated to the State Department.

ITALIANS GAIN GROUND.

Rome Reports Advances Despite Heavy Austrian Attacks.

ROME, June 21.—The following report was given out by the War Office today:

> Between the Adige and Astico Valleys artillery actions occurred. At the head of the Posina Valley detachments of our Alpine troops in the midst of a heavy storm captured a strong position southwest of Monte Purche. Engagements on the western slopes of Monte Cengio resulted in favor of our infantry.
>
> Southwest of Asiago on the night of June 19 the enemy attempted three successive surprise attacks against our positions at Monte Magnab and Oschi. All were repulsed with heavy loss for the enemy.
>
> North of the Frenzela Valley we continued the difficult advance across the rough ground, hindered by the stubborn resistance of the enemy and driving back frequent counterattacks. On the remainder of the front there were no events of importance.
>
> Hostile aircraft dropped bombs on our lines of communication, wounding a few persons and causing some slight damage. Squadrons of our Caproni and Savoia aeroplanes, in which were thirty-four machines, bombarded the aviation station at Pergine, at the head of the Sugana Valley. They were fired on by numerous anti-aircraft batteries and engaged by the aerial defense squadron of the enemy, but returned safely after bringing down three hostile machines.

BERLIN, June 21, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The following report from Austrian Headquarters of operations against Italy has been received here:

> On the Dolomites and Isonzo fronts the activity has ebbed to the normal level. Renewed Italian attacks upon several points on the front between the Brenta and the Astico were repulsed.

HINDER IRISH SETTLEMENT.

Three Cabinet Members Said to be Standing Out Against Lloyd George.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, June 22.—The Chronicle's Parliamentary correspondent writes:

"The tangle over the negotiations for a settlement of the Irish problem is not yet straightened out, but the impression prevailed in the lobby yesterday that the situation was easier. Sir Edward Carson is understood to be anxious that negotiations should be allowed to proceed. It is not he who has taken alarm at them but three members of the Cabinet, Lord Lansdowne, Walter Long, and Lord Shelborne. The two first named Ministers always have been closely associated with the South of Ireland Unionists.

"It is one of the ironies of the situation that after both the Ulster Unionist and Irish Nationalist Parties had shown and are showing an accommodating spirit trouble should threaten from quarters far less vitally interested. Lloyd George was requested to undertake the conduct of the Irish negotiation by the unanimous desire of his colleagues in the Cabinet. Now before his task is completed some of his Cabinet colleagues seem anxious to hamper his beneficent activities. It would have been better not to have embarked on negotiations than that they should be impeded now in mid career after high hopes had been raised and great decisions taken."

40 GERMAN AIRMEN ATTACK 3 AMERICANS

Prince and Balsley Shot Down, but Save Themselves by Skillful Landings.

MACHINES TORN BY BULLETS

Their French Captain Gave Them Up for Lost—Texan Wins Military Medal for His Feat.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 21.—Three Americans, Prince, Rockwell, and a San Antonio novice, Corporal Clyde Balsley, with a French squadron Captain, put up a thrilling fight last Sunday against forty German aeroplanes, including fifteen of the latest Aviatiks, faster than the French Nieuports and carrying a passenger to manoeuvre the rear and flanking fire of a mitrailleuse in addition to the pilot's gun forward.

The battle took place over the German lines before Verdun, where the Americans with the Captain, were ordered to protect a squadron of slow artillery observation planes.

The four Nieuports had barely reached the appointed position when the Germans appeared in regular formation. Despite the ten to one odds, the quartet singled out the nearest German on whom to concentrate their fire. Evidently hard hit, the enemy machine began to fall in a zigzag toward the French lines, with the Americans after him. But the manoeuvre proved dangerous, as the rest of the German fleet, utilizing their superior height, swooped like hawks upon the little group.

Apparently riddled by bullets, Balsley and Prince capsized and fell headlong. The French Captain, thinking them finished, signaled to Rockwell for full speed home. Prince, however, managed to right his machine a scant 300 feet from the ground, just above the French trenches, where he succeeded in grounding safely by a swift volplane on to the field half a mile from the firing line.

Though the machine was holed in several places, the airman had nothing worse than a bullet hole through his leather helmet.

Balsley was less fortunate, but he had an equally miraculous escape from death. Wounded in the hip by an explosive bullet, he fell upside down. He thought himself doomed, but, held in by the straps, he was just able to right his machine enough to land right side up, though the crash was so violent as to smash the plane and momentarily stun the pilot. The Texan's luck held further, for he grounded behind the French communication trenches, whence help was speedily forthcoming. The wound proved less serious than was expected. Balsley is not likely to be incapacitated for more than a few days. He said afterward his mitrailleuse jammed at the first shot and left him defenseless, expecting certain death. He was awarded the Military Medal.

Chapman, whose wound is practically healed, and Rockwell received the same award, and Thaw is due to receive the Legion of Honor.

IMMELMANN KILLED BY FALL, BERLIN HEARS

German Aviator Was Credited with Having Brought Down Fifteen Enemy Aeroplanes.

BERLIN, June 21, (via London.)—Lieutenant Immelmann, whose daring exploits as an aviator have made his name known throughout the world, is reported to have been killed in a fall with his aeroplane.

The Lieutenant's name was first mentioned in an official report from the German War Office on Oct. 2, 1915, when it was related that he had shot down his fourth aeroplane. The last mention of his name in an official communication was on May 17, when he shot down his fifteenth aeroplane.

Lieutenant Immelmann received various decorations, ending with the highest order, Pour le Mérite, when he disposed of his eleventh adversary. When he shot down his twelfth Emperor William wrote him an autograph letter of commendation. Before the Emperor had finished the letter the report came that the Lieutenant had bagged his thirteenth adversary. The Emperor crossed out the word twelfth and substituted thirteenth, saying: "One cannot write as fast as Immelmann shoots."

The Lieutenant was a native of Dresden, born in 1890. The newspapers devote much space to his exploits. Some of them compare him with Captain Otto Weddigen, the submarine commander, who gained fame by sinking three British cruisers in the North Sea, and later met his death on the U-29.

In the district of Lokatchi, southeast of Vladimir-Volynski, the capture of 1,300 Russians, one cannon, and three machine guns is reported. RUSSIANS GRATIFIED BY AMERICAN LOAN Expect National City Bank Branch in Petrograd to Promote International Transactions.

By MONTGOMERY SCHUYLER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, June 21.—The long-pending loan to the Russian Government by an American syndicate headed by the National City Bank of New York was brought to a successful conclusion today, and the final contract was signed. The loan will be a $50,000,000 three-year credit.

As it is the first important financial transaction of the kind between Russia and United States capitalists, conditions to be confronted and settled were many and perplexing. H. Fessender Meserve, representing the National City Bank, has been in Petrograd more than six months. Six weeks ago Samuel McRoberts and Charles V. Rich, Vice Presidents of the National City Bank, arrived in Petrograd, and ever since they have been in almost daily conference with the Minister of Finance and other high Rusian officials.

The successful conclusion of this loan, which, it is expected, will be the first of a series of financial transactions ultimately putting Russian Government securities on the American market, has been hailed by Russian financial circles as one of the most important of recent events in the financing of the war. A branch of the National City Bank will be opened in Petrograd in the near future, it is now definitely announced, and this will still further tend to bring about the more direct commercial relations between Russia and the United States which are so essential to both countries.

Americans resident in Russia are much gratified by this news and are looking forward to establishing their interests in such a fashion that they may be able to take advantage of the great opportunities arising at the close of the war, based on permanent connections and not dependent on temporary demands for munitions and war supplies.

WARNS THE SWEDES GERMANY CAN'T WIN

Representative Trade Journal Urges Those Interested Not to Mistake the Issue.

FOOD SITUATION IS BAD

Serious Lack of Both Meat and Vegetables—Swedish Business Circles Much Impressed by the Article.

STOCKHOLM, June 21, (via London, June 22.)—The Swedish trade journal called Affarsvarlden, representing the best business interests in Sweden, today prints a remarkable editorial commenting on the war, in which it says it is time for the Swedes to realize that the outcome cannot be favorable to the Central Powers. The food question, says the newspaper, will decide the war, and it declares that the bad situation in Germany is responsible for the "reckless offensive at Verdun and the recent attempt to win a naval battle." Textually the article says:

"From the very beginning it has been pointed out that for Germany the food question was to have a decisive influence on the war. The food situation in Germany is bad, and much worse than the Swedish people generally think. Swedish conceptions as to how peace will be concluded have not taken sufficiently into consideration the importance of the campaign of starvation against Germany.

"We will not attempt to prophesy on the conclusion of peace, but it is important for our business men, irrespective of sympathy or prejudice, not to be too sure of their calculations, as there may be a surprise in store for them. The Central Powers cannot obtain a peace advantageous to them.

"It is said in a long German article regarding the central disposition of food that the butchers are unable to supply more than one-third their normal quota, and that Germany in the very near future must feed her people chiefly on vegetables. Even if it is possible to train the population to a vegetarian diet, this cannot be done unless there is plenty of bread, butter and eggs, turnips, beans, and such other vegetables; but none of these, not even potatoes, can be had in the quantities the people require them. Especially there seems to be a lack of bread, beans, peas, butter, eggs, rice, oats, and all the nourishing vegetarian foods. As a matter of fact, there is greater lack of these than of meat.

"According to an article in the Berlin Boursen Courier a large number of housewives in cities cannot get sufficient food for their families, and consequently central kitchens are the last resort. It is obvious that such a state of affairs cannot go on year after year. It is in this condition that we have the nearest reason for the reckless offensive at Verdun and the main attempt of an offensive at sea. It may seem out of place to discuss these things in a business paper, but the subject is one of the decisive issues of the war, and all business speculation must adapt itself to the outcome of the war."

Swedish business interests are generally supposed to be friendly to Germany, as for many years trade with that country has outweighed that of any other, and this article in the representative trade journal warning business men as to the outcome of the war is regarded here with much interest.

SEIZED TREASURY AT LUTSK.

Russians Also Found Gallows Used for Wholesale Executions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, June 21, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Refugees from Lutsk are already returning to that place.

The Russians captured the Austrian Treasury and cash in the Bellevue Hotel at Lutsk, and in the gardens behind the law courts found a gallows which had been used for the execution of Russian prisoners who attempted to escape and of civilians accused of espianoge.

The inhabitants state that executions took place daily, sometimes as many as forty in a single day.

NEW FOOD SCHEMES ORDERED IN GERMANY

Special Kitchen for the Sick—Leipsic Homes Inspected to Prevent Hoarding.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 21.—Another step in the food organization has just been decided on as a result of the complaint of the Physicians' Association that under present conditions it was exceedingly difficult to get the necessary foods for those for whom a special diet had been prescribed. At a meeting between a physicians' committee and the authorities in the Rathaus the problem was solved by deciding to establish at once a municipal central kitchen for the sick. Special foods prescribed by physicians will be delivered by this central kitchen to the homes of the sick and convalescent.

The Berlin Magistrat has issued a warning that lost food cards will not be replaced, adding: "The public will therefore do well to treasure up their food cards with the same care they use in keeping paper money."

Among the day's interesting food news is that Vienna has gone Berlin one better by introducing coffee cards.

Registration lists for the first experimental week of mass feeding in Berlin, beginning July 1, closed today, and the authorities were surprised by the fact that the burgers evincing a desire for municipally cooked food at cost for the middle classes and below cost for the poor were far less numerous than was expected. The psychological explanation, however, was revealed by numerous letters to the papers, pointing out that registration lists were distributed and collected by house owners or janitors. Many sensitive tenants kept from signing application for the bargain meals because their landlord would know about it. The municipal authorities are expected to secure in the future more confidential means of securing registrations.

Trial household searches being carried on by the police authorities in various large cities throughout the empire show interesting results. In almost every case it was disclosed that there was no hoarding. In Leipsic the kitchens and larders of nearly 1,600 households were selected at random, regardless of rank, social position, or financial status. They were investigated by plain clothes men, whose instructions were to cross-examine housewives in the presence of their cooks and to be considerate but insistent and thorough. The detectives have found no food hoards so far in Leipsic.

Food Director von Batocki is touring the Rhenish Westphalian industrial region at present. Receiving delegations of laboring men, he promised special consideration would be shown to the hard-working industrial population in the distribution of food, and expressed hope of mastering all food difficulties in time.

NO POTATOES FOR COLOGNE.

Vorwaerts Says Sale Will Be Stopped in a Few Days.

AMSTERDAM, Thursday, June 22, (via London.)—According to Vorwärts, a potato famine is threatening Cologne. The quantity available at the present time is two and one-half pounds per head per week, but, the paper declares, the sale of potatoes is to be completely stopped in the next few days.

SKIRMISHES IN CAUCASUS.

Local Successes in Various Places Reported by Petrograd.

PETROGRAD, June 21.—Concerning the operations on the Caucasus front the War Office today issued the following:

> Near Diarbekr our scouts ambushed and shot down a strong enemy detachment which was on the way to relieve outposts.
>
> In the direction of Mosul, in the region of Revanduzo, our detachments, including Georgian tribesmen, put to flight a strong band of Kurds, who left a large number of dead.
>
> In the direction of Bagdad Turks were driven by Cossacks from the region of Kola-y-Shabin.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 21, (via London.)—The War Office today issued the following statement on military operations:

> Caucasus Front.—On the left wing a surprise attack attempted by the enemy failed owing to our fire.
>
> On Sunday nine enemy aeroplanes attacked El Arish (on Egyptian frontier) with bombs and machine guns for two hours, but inflicted no damage. Two aeroplanes were brought down, one of them aflame, by our fire.

CHANCELLOR REJECTED ANNEXATION PLANS

Socialist Declares Bethmann Holweg Made a Positive Statement on the Subject.

BERLIN, June 21, (via London, June 22.)—That the Imperial Chancellor is opposed to the annexation of Belgium and other far-reaching plans of the Pan-German expansionists—a fact which has often been referred to by intimation in these dispatches, although the censorship restrictions forbade open discussion of this subject—was flatly announced by the Socialist, Philipp Scheidemann, in a speech at Breslau last night. Herr Scheidemann's statement was based on the Chancellor's own declarations to the Socialist leaders, and it was made before a great Socialist meeting which had assembled to receive an account and explanation of the attitude of the majority of the Socialists in the Reichstag.

Referring to a recent publication by the Belgian Minister of State, Emile Vandervelde, in which the Imperial Chancellor's policy was described as aiming at the annexation of Belgium and all the occupied French districts, Herr Scheidemann declared:

"Those ascribing to the Imperial Chancellor such intentions do him a great wrong. I know he has no thought of such plans. When six pan-German associations a year ago submitted to the Chancellor their well-known project of conquest, I and several party friends made representations to the Chancellor in protest against such plans, and referred to our declaration in the Reichstag of Aug. 4. We heard from the Chancellor's own mouth that he wished to have nothing to do with such plans. He rejected them decisively, and most firmly disapproved of them, like all similar plans."

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK.

The Aquilla Torpedoed by Austrian U-Boat Off Marseilles.

LONDON, June 21.—The Norwegian steamer Aquilla has been torpedoed by an Austrian submarine 100 miles off Marseilles, according to a Reuter dispatch from Christiansand, Norway, today.

The crew was saved.

A GOOD ADDRESS

Some manufacturers say, "I have been located so long where I am that all my trade know just where to find me. I fear that to move to another section would mean a large loss at least temporarily in my business." Let us tell you that none of our tenants has had such an experience. Quite to the contrary, they have found that in addition to obtaining the lowest rent, power, labor, insurance and trucking costs, the address "Degnon Terminal, New York City," has brought them even greater business.

SENIORS IN KHAKI LEAD MARCH AT YALE

Place of Honor at Commencement for Members of the University Battalion.

DEGREES AWARDED TO 786

Of These Thirteen Are Honorary—Howland Memorial Prize Goes to Rupert Brooke, Patriot and Poet.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—Yale's 216th year closed today when 786 degrees were conferred, 13 of them honorary, 300 to members of the senior class of the Academic Department, 304 to the Sheffield Scientific School seniors, 50 to Doctors of Philosophy, 35 to Law School seniors, 15 to the School of Forestry seniors, 18 to the graduating class of the School of Religion, and 6 to the Medical School seniors, while 19 persons received the degree of Master of Arts.

Especially impressive, through their military atmosphere, were the commencement exercises. The annual march from the campus, through the historic New Haven Green, to Woolsey Hall, in which the university officials, members of the senior classes, candidates for degrees and invited guests took part, included also the members of the Yale Battalion. Of the graduating class 91 are members of the battalion, under orders to report at the State encampment at Niantic immediately. They were clad in khaki uniforms during the march, as were the members of the Sheffield class of 1906, who lived in tents during the four days of their stay here at commencement to illustrate military preparedness.

Not since the civil war had members of a Yale class appeared to receive their degrees upon graduation wearing military uniforms. The seniors in uniforms received the place of honor in the commencement procession, leading the candidates for degrees. The contrast formed by their uniforms and the sombre black of the gowns of the other seniors was sharp and picturesque.

Honorary Degrees Awarded.

In Woolsey Hall President Hadley awarded the diplomas to the candidates for degrees, Professor Theodore S. Woolsey presenting the thirteen candidates for honorary degrees. The honorary degrees awarded were:

Doctor of Laws—Simeon E. Baldwin, ex-Chief Justice of the Connecticut Supreme Court, ex-Governor of Connecticut, and member of the Yale Law School Faculty; Vi Kyuan Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister at Washington; John Singer Sargent, the painter; Elmer Bragg Adams, Judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Eighth Circuit.

Doctor of Divinity—The Rev. Charles Allen Dinsmore of Waterbury, Conn.

Doctor of Science—Professor Theobald Smith of Princeton.

Doctor of Letters—John Jay Chapman of New York.

Master of Arts—Herbert Adams, President of the National Sculpture Society; Arthur Dean Bevan, Professor in Rush Medical College; Frank Miles Day, "specialist in college planning" and supervising architect at Yale; George Sherwood Eddy, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Russia and the Orient; David Russell Lyman, member of the Connecticut State Tuberculosis Commission; Lewis Perry, Principal of Phillips Exeter Academy.

The John Addison Porter prize of $500 was awarded to Dr. Richard J. Purcell of Minneapolis. The following announcement was made of the award of the Henry Howland Memorial prize:

"The Henry Howland Memorial prize of $1,500 is awarded each second year 'to the citizen of any country, for marked distinction in literature, fine arts, or the science of government.'

"On an isle in the Aegean, under the olives by the sounding sea, lies buried a young Englishman, a poet, a soldier, dead, on his way to Gallipoli.

"To Rupert Brooke, patriot and poet, the Howland prize this year is given."

Year's Gifts $1,700,000.

Total gifts to Yale during the last year will increase the funds of the university by over $1,700,000, it was announced at the commencement meeting of the Yale Corporation today. Contributions received for principal of the Alumni Fund amounted to over $26,000, and over $46,000 was received for income. Counting pledges not yet paid, the total of the fund is $144,951.68. The class of 1876 gave $10,000, making the aggregate gifts since graduation $76,000. The class of 1886 gave $9,850, making the aggregate total of the class found $50,000.

Otto T. Bannard, '76, of New York City, was re-elected alumni fellow for a term of six years.

It was voted that a limited number of graduates of approved women's colleges be hereafter admitted to the School of Medicine. A University Board of Health was authorized to have charge of the physical and medical examination of all students in the university.

The following degrees were granted:

HUGHES LIONIZED AT COMMENCEMENT

Brown Students and Alumni Shout Approval of Brief Talk on American Spirit.

HE MARCHES IN THE PARADE

And Is the Centre of Interest Throughout the Day—Confers with Roosevelt Lieutenant.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 21.—Responding to the cheers of 2,000 alumni and undergraduates of Brown University, Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President, delivered a vigorous address this afternoon in which he told something of the ideals that would guide his course if placed in power by the voters next Fall.

"I wanted a draught of the old spring before I plunged into the fight," he said. "I had never expected to be in this position. I dreaded the responsibility of it. I know what problems will be in America after this war is over. I know what constructive power we possess must be drawn upon to make good. I am here with the traditions of Brown to be of such service as I can render, if it is desired, to our common country."

While Mr. Hughes was careful to explain that this statement was the only one in his address which was to be considered of a political nature, the men and women in the great tent which had been pitched on the campus for the meeting seemed to find significance in almost every utterance.

Mr. Hughes told of the thoughts and desires which guided his life while he was at college, of his admiration for the then President of the university, Ezekial Robinson, in whom he had seen "a man that nothing can swerve from a purpose that he thinks right," a man who possessed an ideal that no power on earth could take away from him. He had felt then in regard to "old Zeke," Mr. Hughes said, this sentiment which he would now repeat:

"There is a man who, if we can emulate and in some degree achieve his firmness and resolution and in some way catch the clearness of his vision, will mean to us our redemption and success."

Remarks like these brought cheer after cheer. His hearers jumped to their feet waving hats, handkerchiefs, and pennants when he said: "I am just a Brown boy trying to do my duty."

Both Mr. Hughes and a speaker who preceded him, Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, who was a guest of honor at the meeting, discussed the American spirit.

A State of Bewilderment.

In opening his address, Mr. Hughes explained that "an extraordinary combination of circumstances over which I had no control has led to this addition to your program.

"I heard the other day," he went on, "of a bewildered citizen whose bewilderment exceeded the limits of sanity. He was visited by a friend, who found him marching up and down with a shawl thrown over his shoulder like a toga, and his friend said: 'Who are you today?' 'I am Julius Caesar,' he said. 'How is that? I was here two weeks ago, and you were Alexander.' 'Ah, by another wife.'

"Now this is not a case of dual personality. I am here as a member of the class of '81—a class once called the smallest and worst in college. We had only forty-two in our class, and the entire college, I think, at that time numbered only about 250. What difference does it make? You can't make a college out of bricks and mortar, out of a swimming pool, a gymnasium, important though they are.

"Out of six class dormitories we didn't have one whole pane in the dormitory windows. Why, talk about 'American spirit,' that is what kept us warm, that is what kept us alive. That is the reason we are here. When I come back to Brown I am thinking of the buildings only as shrines; I am thinking of men.

"Brown today is maintaining the old traditions. You can go to the Faculty and find warm-blooded and true-hearted American men, filled with passion for democracy and jealous of the educational spirit, of the vision which alone will send a young man into the world to deal with problems which democracy, our democracy, is now facing and must settle.

"We have the American spirit. That is a fire that each generation must feed. It is not to be fed by cynical comment; it is not to be fed in the classroom by such a nice balancing that conviction is notorious by its absence. It is to be fed by men who have thought it out, who have reasoned it out from every point of view but finally believe something."

What Americans Fight For.

In his speech, Secretary Lane said that "sad, lugubrious declarations in New England newspapers that Americans were losing their national spirit and becoming soft, self-satisfied weaklings" had pained him; that the American spirit of achievement was as strong today as ever, and that there had been no weakening in national spirit or lowering of national ideals since the birth of the Republic.

"The spirit of America," said Mr. Lane, "is against war, not because we have grown cowardly and fear death, nor because we have grown flabby and love softness, nor even because we have become conscious converts to the Prince of Peace. But we in America have something larger to do. We are discovering our country. We have no time for war. We are doing something so much more important. We are at work. That is the greatest of all adventures. When war comes to a democracy it comes because we are not allowed peacefully to work. What would we fight for? For what Roger Williams fought for—to be let alone, to have the opportunity to show what man can do for man."

Throughout the day Mr. Hughes was the most conspicuous figure. He marched in the academic parade in the morning, with other members of the Class of 1881. Brown University established a precedent, after many years, by cheering him lustily. It has been the custom to refrain from such demonstrations for any of the university's sons.

Demonstrations for Hughes.

The campus saw the greatest crowd that ever attended commencement exercises here, and there were frequent demonstrations, which interrupted the proceedings. The tent meeting was the feature of the day, and during the demonstrations there the scene was much like that at a convention.

Mr. Hughes sat with his classmates, although urged to occupy a seat on the speakers' platform with President Faunce, Mr. Lane, Roscoe Thayer, the historian; Governor Beeckman, Judge Arthur L. Brown, President of the Alumni Association, and others.

Mr. Brown in his remarks referred frequently to Mr. Hughes, once stirring enthusiasm by saying:

"Where on the campus is there a place for a statue, a large statue of a President of the United States? Well, if there be no objection, we will refer this matter to the next annual meeting."

Mr. Brown introduced Mr. Hughes as the master mariner who had been selected by half the people to direct the ship of state. As he concluded his remarks Mr. Hughes walked out from among his classmates on the floor, and the crowd rose and applauded. The demonstration lasted a full minute and was brought to an end by a college yell which ended with the words "Charlie Hughes" shouted three times by a thousand voices.

Mr. Hughes entered fully into the spirit of the day, which wound up with a reception at the Republican Club, where he shook hands with 1,400 persons and a dinner given by Governor Beeckman in honor of the nominee.

After the tent meeting Mr. Hughes went to the Hope Club, where he met George von L. Meyer, Secretary of the Navy under Roosevelt, who organized the Roosevelt Republican Committee in the late pre-convention fight. Mr. Meyer came direct from a conference with Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and significance was attached to his conference with Mr. Hughes. It started the talk that shortly there would be a complete reconciliation and that Colonel Roosevelt had sent a message to Mr. Hughes through Mr. Meyer. Mr. Hughes smiled at these reports and would make no comment on his talk with the former leader of the Roosevelt forces. Mr. Meyer also remained silent and left town soon after his conference.

Mr. Hughes will reach New York tomorrow morning soon after 7 o'clock and will go to the Hotel Astor for a series of conferences with political leaders, including members of the Crane Steering Committee.

COLONEL'S LETTER WILL BACK HUGHES

Message to Progressives, Due Monday, Expected to Indorse the Republican Nominee.

NEW ATTACK ON WILSON

Close Friends of Roosevelt Now Confident That He Will Join in the Hughes Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., June 21.—Colonel Roosevelt's letter declining the Progressive nomination has been finished, and its final draft approved by trusted political advisers. The letter, it is reported, will bear a stinging indictment of the present Administration and a plea to Progressives to join in defeating Wilson. Its publication, it can be stated on high authority, will range the Colonel once more with the Republicans.

After next Monday, when the letter is to be handed officially to the Progressive National Committee in Chicago, a conference may be looked for between Colonel Roosevelt and Mr. Hughes, at which all possible differences between the two men will be settled. Those who know him best are confident that mid-Summer will see Colonel Roosevelt engaged in a vigorous campaign to elect the Republican nominee.

It is admitted that Mr. Hughes must ask the favor of active support from the Colonel before the latter will think of taking the stump, but no one doubts that at the proper time Mr. Hughes will make the request. Many of the conferences which have been held by Colonel Roosevelt lately here and in New York have been with mutual friends of himself and Mr. Hughes. The conferees in several instances have come directly to the Colonel after seeing Mr. Hughes. It is reported that arrangements for a meeting have been worked out, and it will be held at what is considered the psychological moment.

The thing that is bothering Colonel Roosevelt and the conservative Progressives now, it is reported, is how the radicals in their party may be brought to vote the Republican ticket. As it stands now, any number of the Colonel's callers have informed him frankly that if they may not cast their vote for him in November, they will do their utmost to re-elect President Wilson, contending that there is no fundamental difference between the two candidates, and that Republican treachery should be punished.

In answer to such arguments, those in the confidence of Colonel Roosevelt who believe as he does, that Wilson must be beaten at any cost, are relying first of all on his letter declining the Progressive nomination, and then for strong words from Colonel Roosevelt himself to the obstinate radicals. His letter, it is confidently hoped, will have a great effect on recalcitrant Progressives, and many who are bitter now with disappointment over the Republican failure to nominate the Colonel, may later become willing voters, if not willing workers, for Mr. Hughes.

The letter, it is reported, will attack the Administration for a wavering policy in dealing with Mexico and the European situation. It is expected that the Mexican crisis will be used to show cause why President Wilson should not receive Progressive support.

Preparedness will be urged in all that it involves. The part that will especially touch upon Mr. Hughes's candidacy will emphasize Americanism. The talk of Hughes as the candidate of the German-Americans is becoming less and less frequent among the Roosevelt adherents. It is said now that the Colonel will not insist on any stronger American sentiments from Hughes than contained in statements already published.

Colonel Roosevelt spent a quiet day and Sagamore Hill did not see a single politician. The Colonel will motor to New York tomorrow and expects to see party leaders at the Hotel Langdon and discuss the political situation. Although Mr. Hughes also will be in town, it is not expected here that there will be a meeting between the two men at this time.

SWAN SONG OF THE PARTY.

Colonel's Message Presaged as Disbanding the Progressive Wing.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Thursday, June 21.—A dispatch from New York to The Boston Herald says today that Colonel Roosevelt on Monday next will come out in complete and whole-hearted support of Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican nominee for President, and on the same day the Progressive Party, through its National Committee meeting in Chicago, will accept the statement as final and officially pass away.

"The Colonel's decision," says the dispatch, "has been made after many heart-burning conferences with personal friends like Senator Lodge, who remained in the old party, and nearly all the important men who burned bridges and followed him into the new. It is unalterable, without equivocation, and has no string. The pronunciamento will take the form of a statement to the Progressive Committee, and the first draft has already come from Secretary John McGrath's typewriter. The Colonel has spent much time on it and calls it his masterpiece.

"He will point out that not only can a third party ticket fail to advance the cause of Progressive principles this year, but its continued efforts as an independent organization would be a positive harm to the nation in its international relations. The Colonel will take the ground that after all the Progressive Party has lived up to its intentions and has done much toward the advancement of Progressive principles in legislation. He cannot see any further use in maintaining a separate party organization, and plainly states that if he accepted the nomination given him at Chicago by the Progressives and make a campaign it would only mean another term for the present Administration with its un-American policies."

HUGHES WILL BE HERE TODAY.

Republican National Chairman May Be Announced Next Monday.

Charles E. Hughes will return to New York from Providence this morning, and is expected to meet Senator Harding of Ohio some time during the week to arrange for the Republican notification meeting.

There will be little activity about the campaign headquarters in the Hotel Astor until a Chairman of the National Committee is selected. This selection is expected to be made next Monday after the meeting of the Progressive National Committee in Chicago. It has not yet been decided who will be named to head the National Committee, but half a dozen or more names are being considered, including James R. Sheffield, Darwin R. James, George B. Cortelyou, William Loeb, William Hayward, and William R. Willcox.

A pamphlet entitled "The Hope of America" and described as "a program of action" was being circulated yesterday. The program contains these suggestions: "Put Hughes in the White House. Put Roosevelt in the United States Senate. Make Root Secretary of State. Make Wood Secretary of War. Put Taft on the Supreme Court bench."

To Conduct Hughes Fight in Kings.

Jacob A. Livingston, Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Kings County, yesterday appointed a committee of nine leaders to take charge of the Hughes-Fairbanks campaign in Brooklyn. The members of the committee are Livingston, Bridge Commissioner F. J. H. Kracke, Charles S. Devoy, Marcus B. Campbell, Jacob Brenner, Lewis M. Swasey, Alfred E. Vaas, Charles F. Murphy, and John T. Rafferty.

PINCHOTS TELL OF UNCLE.

Gifford and Amos R. E. Testify in Eno Will Contest.

Mrs. Helen Desperrins, housekeeper, testifying yesterday at the continuation of the contest before Surrogate Cohalan and a jury of the will of Amos F. Eno, who left the residue of his estate, estimated at $5,000,000 or more, to Columbia, declared that she had seen several drafts of wills lying around the house. She admitted that she had read them to see if she had been remembered. Austin G. Fox of counsel for the proponents, who conducted the cross-examination, brought out the fact that Mr. Eno had not been confined in bed for a single day during the last Summer in Saratoga.

Mrs. Desperrins said that she thought it was her duty to testify in behalf of the Eno family because she believed the will was unreasonable. Mr. Fox then introduced two letters written by the witness to Mrs. Wallace, a friend, who was also mentioned by Mr. Eno, in one of which she had said: "If they break the will no one will get anything."

"Did you wish very strongly that the contestants should succeed?" she was asked."

"Yes."

"You thought you would be better off?"

"No," was the reply.

The attorney then read a second letter, written later, in which she said: "They intend breaking the will. It will be the better for us, so pray they will win."

Gifford Pinchot told of having visited the house of his uncle and finding a hamper half full of letters and papers belonging to Mr. Eno behind the furnace. Examination of the papers disclosed the fact that there were many important business letters among them, he said. Mr. Pinchot also described the irrationality of a sister of Amos F. Eno.

Amos R. E. Pinchot, another witness, testified that he did not know that he was an executor under the 1912 and 1914 wills of his uncle until after the temporary administrators had been appointed. He asserted that Lord, Day & Lord, the attorneys for Mr. Eno, never notified him.

The trial will be resumed this morning.

CONNAUGHT TO QUIT CANADA

Report That Curzon Will Succeed Him as Viceroy.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 21.—Canada will have a new Governor General this Autumn if present plans are carried out. It is learned that the Duke of Connaught will probably close his term as Canadian Viceroy some time in the Fall. There is a report that Lord Curzon of Kedlestone, former Viceroy of India, will be his successor.

The Duke of Connaught had arranged to leave Canada in September, 1914, and the Prince of Teck had been announced as his successor. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught with the Princess Patricia had made preparations for their departure for England and the Prince of Teck was about to sail from England when the war broke out. The Prince went to the front with the British forces, and is likely to remain there, as it is said he is anxious to remain in active service.

Asks $20,000 for Tube in Shoulder.

Alleging that surgeons had left a rubber tube in his shoulder after an operation, Johann Lindstrom of 133 Stegman Street, Jersey City, yesterday filed a suit for $20,000 in the Hudson County Circuit Court against the Christ Hospital, Jersey City. He says that he complained of pain in his shoulder after the first operation and that surgeons failed to take the tube out in a second operation. Because of the pain suffered and work and money lost he asks damages of $20,000.

BROTHER'S TESTIMONY READ

Letter by A. C. Burrage Stated Engineer in 1911 Found Mine Rich in Copper.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 21.—Nearly all of today's session of the suit of William Guggenheim against his five brothers to recover $10,000,000 was taken up in reading by counsel for the plaintiff of testimony given by Daniel Guggenheim before the trial and taken before Referee Wilfred O'Neil on March 28 last.

Part of the testimony read into the record was that given by Daniel Guggenheim in July, 1914, at Boston in an action brought by Louis Ross against Albert C. Burrage. The purpose of reading the testimony was to show, if possible, that the five defendants in the present action knew before Jan. 4, 1912, when William Guggenheim released his claim on the Chuquicimata prospect in Chile, that the copper mine would produce a fortune, that they had caused it to be explored and examined, and that, although Daniel Guggenheim was the man who conducted nearly all the negotiations for the purchase of the mine, he kept his four brothers in touch with all that was taking place in regard to it.

The testimony read today disclosed that Daniel Guggenheim had a talk with A. C. Burrage, the promoter, on Jan. 3, 1912, in which he asked Mr. Burrage to put in writing his proposition for the sale of the Chuquicimata prospect. The written report of Mr. Burrage, the testimony showed, stated that Burrage a year previous had sent Fritz Muller, a mining expert, to the Chile prospect and had received reports from him. In the letter Mr. Burrage said:

"Your engineers, some of whom have examined the mine, agree with me that there are many million tons of ore carrying one and three-fourths per cent. copper, which is just under the surface and which is the best in the world."

On Jan. 12, 1912, the contract for the purchase of the option from Mr. Burrage was signed carrying with it the agreement that Burrage was to receive more than $40,000 for moneys he had advanced in obtaining the option.

The testimony showed that Mr. Burrage had previously made it clear in his conferences with Daniel Guggenheim in France in the Summer of 1911 that he would not deal with any subsidiary company of the Guggenheim firm, but would only deal direct with the partnership itself.

Daniel Guggenheim testified before the trial that when negotiating with Mr. Burrage he was acting for himself and his four brothers, defendants with him in the suit. He admitted that prior to Jan. 4, 1912, he was aware that G. A. Catlin Smith, the noted chemist, was making laboratory tests in a small way at the request of Pope Yeatman, the chief of the Guggenheim staff of engineers, on Chuquicimata ore furnished by Mr. Burrage. A confidential statement prepared by Burrage and issued by the Chile Copper Company of Delaware, dated April 9, 1913, the testimony showed, stated that the deposit of copper in the Chuquicimata prospect would last forty-one years.

William D. Guthrie, in opening remarks to the jury today, declared that he would prove that the agreement of Jan. 4, 1912, was prepared at the suggestion of William and Benjamin Guggenheim, and that when the business was sold out in 1900 William Guggenheim declared he had enough to live on, having, according to Mr. Guthrie, an income at that time of $250,000 a year. Twenty-five million dollars has been put in the copper mine up to date by the five brothers, Mr. Guthrie said, and not a dollar of dividends had come out of it. It is expected, however, that it will be enormously profitable, added the lawyer.

Samuel Untermyer, in concluding his opening remarks to the jury today, said that it was not until July, 1912, that William Guggenheim had evinced any interest in the business, and this when he learned, Mr. Untermyer added, that favorable reports about the drilling of the Chuquicimata mine were coming in. He then asked for an interest, the lawyer continued, and Daniel Guggenheim told him that he could come back in the firm if he would stop his speculating and idleness.

"I will give you an interest and lend you the money," Daniel told William, according to counsel. "You can't come into this one; it is closed, but you can come into all ventures hereafter."

William replied, said Mr. Untermyer: "No; if you won't give me an interest in the Chuquicimata, I will not come back."

Pope Yeatman, the mining expert, will be put on the stand tomorrow as the first witness for the plaintiff, it is understood.

WILSON PORTRAIT TO WIFE.

Gift Committee Appeals for Funds to Buy Painting.

A Wilson Presentation Committee has been organized to purchase and present to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson a life-size portrait of the President. The presentation will be some time in July at the White House. Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby is Chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Nathan Straus, honorary chairman.

The portrait was painted by G. C. Langenberg, who died recently and represents the President facing the Public Square as he was seen addressing the American people on Inauguration Day, March 4, 1913. The committee asks for subscriptions to purchase the painting and it is to go to Mrs. Wilson as a gift of the American people. The appeal for funds sent out by the committee, reads:

"Never before in our history has a gift been made in this manner to the First Lady of the Land and, as an admirer of President Wilson, we appeal to your generosity and patriotism to assist us in carrying out our purpose."

The portrait is now on exhibition at the headquarters of the committee, 27 West Eighty-seventh Street.

AIR PIPE BURSTS IN STREET.

Geyser of Dust, Paving, and Planks Puts Broadway Throng Into Panic.

Thousands in Broadway about Thirty-fourth Street were alarmed yesterday morning when a six-inch compressed air main used by the United States Realty and Improvement Company in its subway work in Broadway burst with a roar that was heard fifteen blocks away. The force hurled fragments of pavement and planks high into the air. This was followed by a geyser of dust which sent the crowds scurrying to safety.

The only casualties were caused by the hurry of pedestrians to get out of the way. Persons fell over one another, and some ran into street cars and vehicles with which the streets were congested.

The air pipe lay along the elevated structure on the west side of Sixth Avenue, just north of Thirty-fourth Street. Two feet below it was an eighteen-inch gas main, which was shattered by the explosion, and scores of persons were nearly overcome by gas.

The explosion was attributed to a weak pipe by T. C. Desmond of the realty company, which at the time of the accident was under eighty pounds' pressure and had been tested up to 200 pounds. The break was repaired shortly after noon.

ENGLISH HORSES GO CHEAP.

Five Head, Sold by the Government, Bring Only $455.

Small prices were realized yesterday at the sale of the five horses which arrived here from England on March 29 consigned by T. J. Benson of London, to S. L. Frank of New York, and described as being valuable full-blooded animals. The consignee contended that the horses should be admitted free of duty, but the Government disagreed, and, when the duty remained unpaid, ordered yesterday's auction sale, which took place at Stoddard's U. S. Bonded Stables, 598 Greenwich Street.

The Battler, a chestnut stallion, 9 years old, out of Rhoda B, considered the finest animal of the lot, was bought by Stoddard, the stable proprietor, for $250. Myopia, bay mare, 3 years old, by Myram out of Villa Vista, sold for $95, and the other three horses together brought $110, making the total proceeds of the sale $455.

According to J. H. Storey, who was in charge for the Collector of the Port, the boarding of the horses since their seizure has cost $420 and the fee of the auctioneer was $22. This leaves $18 for Mr. Benson, the shipper of the horses.

PLEADS 'TRUE' IN LIBEL SUIT

Hapgood So Answers Ex-Ambassador Wilson in $350,000 Action.

Norman Hapgood, through his counsel, Emery R. Buckner and Jesse C. Adkins, filed yesterday in the Federal Court in Washington a plea of truth in the $350,000 libel suit started against him recently by Henry Lane Wilson, formerly Ambassador to Mexico. The suit grew out of the publication in Harper's Weekly, of which Mr. Hapgood was editor, of a series of articles on Huerta and Mexico, by Robert H. Murray.

Mr. Wilson complained that the articles held him up to public ridicule and raised the question as to whether he had any knowledge of the plot to assassinate President Madero.

Teachers of Defectives to Confer.

There will be a meeting of teachers of handicapped children at P. S. 27, Manhattan, on July 5, 6, and 7. It will be the first meeting of the kind ever held in America. Problems relative to the education of deaf, blind, cripples, tuberculosis, delinquent, and mentally defective children will be discussed. The meeting will be open to the public.

COURTROOM CROWD OPENLY PRO-TANZER

Sympathetic as Safford Tells of Arrest for Identifying James W. Osborne.

APPROVES GIBES BY SLADE

One Man Admonished by the Judge for Muttering "Unfair!" After Prosecutor's Questions.

The crowd that filled the Federal District Court yesterday, where Rae Tanzer is on trial before Judge Wolverton and a jury charged with having committed perjury, was plainly sympathetic with the defense, and there were audible expressions of approval when Benjamin Slade, counsel for the defense, made comments regarding the Government's conduct of the case. This happened again when a witness from the stand said that he had been "railroaded."

Franklin Safford, former clerk at the Kensington Hotel in Plainfield, N. J., testifying for the defense, repeated with emphasis that James W. Osborne, the lawyer, was the man who visited the Kensington with Rae Tanzer in October, 1914.

It was for testifying to this statement on a prior occasion that Safford was convicted of perjury—a conviction that has been set aside by the Court of Appeals. When Special Prosecutor William Rand, Jr., asked if he had not been sentenced for perjury, he shouted that he had been "railroaded" to jail.

He, like Dora and Rose Tanzer, identified James W. Osborne as the wooer of Rae Tanzer. Unlike the other witnesses, however, he said Oliver Osborne was about 65 years old, adding twenty-five years to previous estimates.

During the cross-examination of the witness Mr. Rand told Judge Wolverton twice that he could not proceed if "a man" sitting at the counsel table did not stop making such remarks as "Tricky!" "Unfair!" and "We will show you up before we are through!" He did not mention any one by name, but the court said such remarks must stop.

On cross-examination Safford admitted that, when he was employed at the cigar counter at the Broadway Central Hotel he had given a due bill for $20 difference in his accounts and had not paid the money back. He also told of differences in his accounts with two other firms, but insisted that it was unfair to leave the inference that he had stolen money. The discrepancies, he said, were mistakes in bookkeeping. During the course of the examination Mr. Slade referred to Safford's prosecution as "persecution."

"That," said Mr. Rand sharply, "is not only a cheap pun, but a direct insult to the court."

Mr. Slade refused, however, to withdraw his remark, except as it might be construed to apply to Judge Wolverton and Mr. Rand. The remark was stricken from the record.

Under redirect examination the witness was led to tell of his arrest for testifying before Commissioner Houghton that James W. Osborne was the man who took Rae Tanzer to Plainfield. There was audible and sympathetic comment when Mr. Slade exclaimed impassionately that about the time Safford was indicted by the Grand Jury "every one was being indicted then."

"Now," commented counsel, after Safford had told of identifying James W. as Oliver Osborne, "that brings us down to Easter."

"Yes," said Safford, "that brings us down to the snowy Easter night when I was inhumanly arrested."

The fall of Clerk Leary's gavel brought silence in the court.

Safford said he had been taken through the storm to the Greenwich Street Police Station and there, wet and cold, forced to spend the night in a cell with two Chinamen.

"You were eventually given a so-called trial?" asked Mr. Slade.

This brought a protest from the Government attorney, and Judge Wolverton said the remark was a bad insinuation, irregular, and improper. Mr. Slade insisted that his remark was the expression of a higher tribunal, but he was admonished not to repeat it. Under both direct and cross examination the witness was led to tell that he had received $50 because of his trouble and that David Slade gave him $15. To this was added the fact that at one time he was so poor that he pawned his watch for $2.

A new witness in the case was Mrs. Ethel Curtiss of 600 West 138th Street, a widow, formerly employed at the Imperial Hotel. She said she had been friendly with James W. Osborne in a business way. She denied having received letters from Mr. Osborne signed "Count Hannibal," but said that Mr. Osborne gave her a book "Count Hannibal" on Jan. 1, 1913.

James W. Osborne visited the Tanzer home eight or ten times between October and December, 1914, according to Miss Rose Tanzer, a sister of the defendant and the first witness of the day. Mr. Rand read from the testimony given by the witness before Commissioner Houghton that Osborne had visited the Bronx flat during the first week in October, 1914.

"If I said that I was a nervous wreck at the time," responded the witness.

Questioned by a juror as to how, if she could neither read nor write, she could recall the date of Oct. 18, 1914, the witness, weeping, replied that she could never forget that because it was the date on which all their trouble began.

Then Rae Tanzer began to sob and a recess was ordered. Dr. J. R. Le Compte, who was called to attend Rae, reported to Judge Wolverton that she would be unable to go on for two or three hours. An adjournment was then taken until 2 o'clock. Dr. Le Compte said the defendant's condition was a result of her court experience and not due to any organic trouble.

The case will be continued today.

HOME FOR AGED ASKS AID.

Funds Needed for Maintenance of Amsterdam Avenue Institution.

The forty-third annual report of the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples, at 1,060 Amsterdam Avenue, was issued yesterday. According to the report, the home has been kept full during the last year, new applicants being admitted from a waiting list as often as death removed one of the inmates. There are now fifty-eight old persons in the home.

Despite an increase in the invested funds of the home, the report said, it was necessary recently for $3,000 to be transferred from the Permanent Fund Committee to the Treasurer for current expenses. The trustees, therefore, made a special appeal for contributions.

The announcement was made that, during the year covered, two single rooms in the home were endowed from the bequest of $10,000 from the late Miss Penelope McCrea, one double room from the bequest of Mary Louisa Van Wagenen, and another double room from the bequest of Emily Chamberlaine.

The report also announced the death of Daniel E. Seybel, one of the trustees, and the resignation because of ill-health of Charles B. Going as Treasurer and Chairman of the Committee on Maintenance and Repairs.

8,000 SICKLY BABIES AIDED.

Welfare Association Reports on Year's Work in New York.

More than 8,000 sickly babies were helped in 1915 by the Babies' Welfare Association, according to the report issued yesterday. Active co-operation was maintained among 100 organizations. The central office acted as a distributing centre for fifty organizations which dispensed 3,000,000 pounds of free ice last Summer.

A plan for systematic after care of discharged maternity cases was developed, and as a result more than 1,000 cases were transferred from maternity hospitals to milk stations in March, 1916. Information about destitute women was tabulated and distributed to all nurses and organizations doing parental work.

A junior auxiliary was formed for girls interested in helping to save babies. Two baby improvement contests were supervised and lectures were arranged in connection with them. Prize essay contests were held for the benefit of the Little Mothers' League. More than 50,000 pieces of educational literature were distributed.

The year's receipts were $1,384, the expenses $1,588, and the deficit $204.

Woman Suicide in Rectory.

The Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, D. D., pastor of Calvary P. E. Church, at Twenty-first Street and Fourth Avenue, smelled gas in the rectory yesterday, and investigating found the body of Jane Foers, 35 years old, his housekeeper, lying face downward in the bathroom. The doors and windows had been locked. Dr. Sedgwick could assign no reason for the suicide.

GREEK CABINET RESIGNS OFFICE

Ex-Premier Zaimis, at King's Request, Is Trying to Form a New Ministry.

BLOCKADE PROTEST MADE

Identical Note from Athens Presented to United States and Latin-American Countries.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, June 21.—The Skouloudis Cabinet has resigned. The retiring Premier declares the resignation is not due to pressure by the Entente Powers. The Ministry, he says, did all that was possible, but found the situation impossible in regard to the Entente Powers. That being so, he decided to retire, and the King agreed it would be the wisest course.

Last evening an urgent royal summons was sent to former Premier Alexander Zaimis, who had just left Athens for a short stay in the island of Aegena. A few hours afterward M. Zaimis arrived at the capital and at once left for the King's country seat at Dakali. He had another interview with the King this morning, and later it was announced that he had consented to attempt the formation of a new Cabinet.

Only the urgency of the situation could have brought about this result. Even since his retirement from office M. Zaimis has kept apart from politics. He made no secret of his dissatisfaction with the Chamber as at present constituted and of his hesitation to accept the weight of the political burden that he would have to take over in assuming office.

The Entente Powers are showing every consideration to Greece in the present emergency. It is quite possible that if the Greek Cabinet is reconstituted on lines sympathetic to the protecting powers the demands of the Allies may be modified in form with the view of saving Greece from the possibility of humiliation.

It is understood, however, that the Crown is still anxious that the Skouloudis Cabinet should remain until a settlement has been reached of the difficulties with the Entente Powers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, June 21, (Dispatch to The London Daily Mail.)—M. Zaimis so far has been unwilling to assume the Premiership without receiving guarantees that he will be able to govern independently of the Chamber, which would have to be adjourned indefinitely.

The allied Ministers here declare that they cannot say whether the mere fall of the Ministry would end the crisis.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, June 22.—The Daily Chronicle this morning says:

"M. Zaimis is eminently 'safe,' cautious, and upright. In policy he is a neutralist, but his sympathies are with the Entente Powers."

Greece Protests Against Blockade.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—An identic note protesting vigorously against interference by the Entente Allies with the maritime trade of Greece has been presented by the Greek Minister to the State Department and the diplomatic representatives here of the Latin-American Governments.

It asserts that "traditional principles" have been violated and that Greece has been unable to obtain any official explanation in response to inquiries. Since June 6, it says, the Greek coast has been subjected to a limited blockade, ships being held up and searched and taken to naval bases established by the allied forces. Various vessels flying the Greek flag have been taken to Bizerta, Algiers, and there converted into transports by the Allies.

As a result, it is declared, Greece's food supplies have been cut off and her maritime commerce, "the essential of her national economy," stopped.

NEWARK PUPILS GET THE TIMES PRIZES

Public Presentation Made at St. James's and St. Bridget's Schools.

CROWDS AT THE EXERCISES

George McAneny Praises Competitors for Ability and Loyalty to School and City.

The first public presentation of prizes to pupils in the public and parochial schools who were winners in the Newark Historical Essay Contest, recently conducted by THE NEW YORK TIMES, took place last night at the commencement exercises in two of Newark's parochial schools, St. James's Parochial School on Madison Street, and St. Bridget's Parochial School on Plane Street. Large crowds of relatives and friends of the pupils were present at each of the schools, and the audiences showed much interest and enthusiasm in the prize winners and in the other pupils who took part with them in the exercises.

Six silver medals and six certificates were distributed to the first and second prizewinners respectively at St. James's School, where the graduating class were boys, and two silver medals and two certificates were given at St. Bridget's to the graduating class of girls. The girls at St. James's will have their exercises next week, when winners among them will receive their prizes.

The prizes at St. James's School were presented by George McAneny of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who was introduced by Mgr. Cody, the rector of the parish. In a brief address to the school, Mr. McAneny said in part:

"The representatives of THE NEW YORK TIMES who have been engaged in the work of the essay contest have been greatly impressed with the result of the competition. The competitors have shown excellent ability in their essays, as well as loyalty to their school and to their city—a city of which we are all proud. It is a city well planned and well built and a city of a great future.

"The boys who have taken part in this competition from this school may not be experts on the history of their city and of its City Government, but their work in this essay contest shows that they know a great deal more about these two subjects than many others. As I have said, the standing of the papers submitted is excellent. Of the 6,400 essays submitted by the pupils of the public and parochial schools 1,200 of them were received from the parochial schools. THE NEW YORK TIMES is glad to be of service in this celebration of the 250th anniversary of the City of Newark."

The prize winners at St. James's School were:

Eighth Grade (Boys' Department)—First, GEORGE KIERNAN; second, JAMES GARRIGAN.

Sixth Grade—First, EDWARD L. O'NEILL; second, WILLIAM GRIFFIN.

Sixth Grade—First, JAMES MULVIHILL; second, AUGUST J. KROZSER.

Fifth Grade, A—First, VINCENT DE PAUL TORPPEY; second, EDWIN L. SMITH.

Fifth Grade, B—First, JOSEPH H. MEEHAN; second, JOHN H. GOLDEN.

Fourth Grade—First, WILLIAM CAIN; second, JOHN KEOUGH.

Each of the prize winners received a double round of applause, first when his name was called, and then when he had received his prize and had bowed his acknowledgments to Mr. McAneny and to the audience.

The prize winners at St. Bridget's School were:

Seventh Grade—First, HELEN MONAHAN; second, IRENE GILMAN.

Eighth Grade—First, HELEN TREACY; second, ROSE A. DOWLEY.

James Garrigan, one of the prize winners, delivered the class salutatory, and told in connection with the coming fiftieth anniversary of the church and its jubilee celebration something of its history and the work of Mgr. Cody, referring especially to his work in completing the parish hospital.

OWNERS TO OFFER CARS FOR USE OF GOVERNMENT

Motor Truck Club of America Starts Plan for Army Transport Reserve Corps.

The Motor Truck Club of America put under way last night at a meeting held at the Automobile Club of America a plan whereby owners and users of motor trucks will put them at the service of the Government to form what is to be called an army motor transport reserve corp.

Much interest was displayed at last night's meeting and at its close many members signed agreements to place their trucks at the disposal of the Government whenever called upon. It is also planned to have chauffeurs volunteer to the American Legion, so that when the trucks are called out, men will go with them who are familiar with their use. The owners feel confident many of the chauffeurs will volunteer for this service.

As soon as the plan is well under way, the trucks will be organized into convoy companies, trucks of similar capacity and style to be placed together. Auxiliary vehicles will be added to each group and the necessary personnel drilled, so that each group will be a complete organization.

Each machine is to be described accurately on a blank to go with the owner's offer. A valuation will be placed upon each machine and it will be inspected by some agency acting for the Government. Thereafter it will be inspected at least every six months, and when it finally reaches a certain stage of depreciation due to use it will be placed in the second class. The machines to be offered are those in regular use by their owners, whether individuals or corporations, in connection with their business.

If the machine is commandeered by the Government, it is stipulated that it shall be paid for at the valuation mutually agreed upon, less the depreciation from its value at the time the tender was made.

Among those who addressed the meeting were Roderick Stephens, resident of the club and member of the Consulting Board of the army's General Staff Committee on Motor Transportation; R. N. Dickinson, Secretary of a special committee of the club which has the matter in charge; Colonel J. D. Ballinger, Quartermaster of the Department of the East; Alfred Reeves, Secretary of the National Automobile Board of Trade; George H. Pride, and Ellis L. Howland.

Colonel Ballinger told his hearers the army was behind where it should be in transportation matters.

"What you propose doing," he said, "is a most practical solution of the problem facing us. It is something the Government should have done long ago. By doing this you will either make the Government accept your offer or cause it on its own part to organize these things all over the country—which is what we are hoping for."

Mr. Pride suggested that in order to get the shirkers to do their share there should be an understanding, expressed or implied, that in case of need the Government should first commandeer the trucks of all owners who had not volunteered at least 10 per cent. of the number of their machines.

SEND $250,000 TO JEWS.

Commission Will Go Abroad to Distribute War Relief.

A meeting of the Joint Distribution Committee of Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, consisting of representatives of the American Jewish Relief Committee, the Central Relief Committee, and the People's Relief Committee, met yesterday afternoon at the office of Felix M. Warburg, Chairman, 52 William Street, and appropriated $250,000 for the immediate relief of Jews who, through the present movement of troops upon the borders of the eastern war zones, may be compelled again to evacuate their homes.

The committee also decided that it was desirable that the distribution of American relief funds in occupied territories should be undertaken only through American agencies. It has been further decided to send abroad as soon as possible a commission of American citizens to make suitable arrangements for the distribution of American Jewish relief funds.

URGE UNITY OF JEWS IN CONGRESS PLANS

Carnegie Hall Speakers Ask American Committee to Support Movement.

DIVISIONS NOW DEPLORED

Rabbi Wise Says: "We Are Too Busy to Call Any Man Un-American; We Do Important Things."

Nathan Straus, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and other Jews of prominence in New York City and elsewhere in the United States spoke in favor of the Jewish congress movement at Carnegie Hall last night. This movement has for its purpose the calling of a democratic congress of Jews in Philadelphia to demand equal rights for Jews in all lands.

The American Jewish Committee, of which Louis Marshall is President, and which has opposed a congress being held until the war in Europe is over, was invited by all the speakers to send representatives to the Philadelphia meeting. A message was read from Secretary of War Newton D. Baker expressing his sympathy with the congress movement, and deploring the prejudice and ignorance that had resulted in discrimination against Jews.

"Regrettable as it is that we do not stand united, we must respect the views of others, even if they differ from ours, and certainly not hurt our cause and our position before the world by bitter attacks and unworthy actions which only reflect on ourselves," said Mr. Straus, referring to the disagreement with the American Jewish Committee. "We won't have personal attacks under any conditions. We cannot expect to have everybody of the same opinion, and while it is a great loss to the cause to have good and noble men so at variance concerning vital problems, we will have to make our campaign and carry it to a successful issue along our line, but without bitterness, and recognizing the sincerity of those who do not agree with us."

Rabbi Wise said American Jews were confronted by the necessity of restating an absolute and unshaken faith in the "wisdom and inevitableness of the Jewish Congress Movement," if Jews were to remain a self-respecting people.

"The Jewish Congress Movement is a wide expression of Jewish consciousness," he said. "A gathering of the people as the trustees of the Jewish people. We demand equal rights for our people, and European Governments must know that the Jewish people are insistent on equal rights, and that this insistence is not that of a few men, but of all Israel. We are not here to denounce any man or any set of men as un-American. We are too busy doing important things.

"The only rule Jewish people will accept is the rule of self-mastery. Benevolence may ameliorate but cannot justify undemocratic rule."

Judge Hugo Pam of Chicago, Joseph Barondess, Rabbi Maximilian Heller of New Orleans, Dr. Harry Friedenwald of Baltimore, B. Zuckerman, Rabbi Bernard Drachman, Julius I. Peyser of Washington, D. C.; Dr. C. Zhitlofsky, and others spoke in similar vein. One of the prominent women on the platform was Mrs. Joseph Fels, widow of the single-taxer and philanthropist.

The American Jewish Committee has opposed the congress movement in the belief that injudicious expressions while the conflict on the other side of the Atlantic was in progress might hurt the Jewish cause and handicap efforts at amelioration. The difference between the two classes of Jews was responsible for heated discussion in the Kehillah at its meeting recently.

MARSHALL EXPECTED TO CONTEST ARREST

Report That the District Attorney Will Resist Contempt Warrant With Habeas Corpus Writ.

United States District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall refused yesterday to discuss the action of the House at Washington in voting him guilty of contempt. It is expected that an Assistant Sergeant at Arms will arrive in New York some time today with the warrant for Mr. Marshall's arrest. It is understood that he will find the District Attorney unwilling to accompany him to Washington, and it was predicted yesterday in the Federal Building that his coming would mark the begining of a long legal fight, the first step in which would take the form of a writ of habeas corpus.

A precedent for such a proceeding was pointed out in the case of George Carr Henry, a member of W. Salomon & Co. of 25 Broad Street, who, in March, 1913, was accused of contempt in refusing to answer questions before the Pujo Committee. He obtained a writ of habeas corpus and the case was taken on appeal to the United States Supreme Court. In November, 1914, that court decided against Henry.

An Assistant United States District Attorney was quoted yesterday as saying: "There will be lively doings when the Sergeant at Arms arrives. Mr. Marshall will not go to Washington in the officer's custody."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—It is expected that an Assistant Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives will go to New York tomorrow with a warrant for District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall, voted in contempt of the House. Contrary to expectation, Speaker Clark did not sign the warrant today. The delay was occasioned by a desire to have the form correct beyond dispute. The warrant will be presented for the signature of the Speaker in the morning. Kenneth Romney of Montana has been selected as the officer to serve the warrant.

House leaders believe a long contest in the courts will come before sentence is passed.

5 DIE IN ARMS EXPLOSION.

Workmen Trapped by Fire Which Follows in Canadian Factory.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., June 21.—At least five workmen were killed and twenty seriously injured here today in an explosion followed by fire in the plant of the Canadian Explosives, Ltd. The explosion occurred in a shrapnel factory, housed in a large building, which was destroyed. The cause of the explosion was unknown. About seventy men were at work in the building at the time.

The majority of the workmen escaped in time, but others were either killed or injured by the explosion or burned by the flames before they were rescued. Every doctor in town was rushed to the scene. Two of those who lost their lives died in hospitals. It was feared that others might be in the smoldering ruins, which firemen were searching late tonight.

BELIEF GROWS GREGORY WILL SUCCEED HUGHES

If Attorney General Goes to Supreme Court, J. W. Davis May Take His Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The belief that President Wilson would name Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory of Texas to succeed Charles E. Hughes as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States was encouraged officially today. No formal announcement, however, was authorized by the President, and there has been no intimation of a final choice as yet.

When the question was put to Mr. Gregory himself at the Department of Justice whether he could affirm or deny the statement, he replied that he had nothing to say at this time.

If Mr. Gregory goes to the Supreme Bench it is expected that Solicitor General John W. Davis of West Virginia will succeed him as Attorney General.

There have been rumors that because of the warm friendship between the President and Mr. Davis the latter would be his preference for the Supreme Bench. The North Carolina Senators called at the White House today to urge the appointment of W. R. Allen of the Supreme Court of their State as a successor to former Justice Hughes. The President took the recommendation under advisement.

A serious consideration in naming Attorney General Gregory for the Supreme Bench is that he has appeared for the Government in a number of cases before the Supreme Court, and would therefore be disqualified to sit in the hearing of a number of cases. Justice McReynolds, who was appointed to the Supreme Bench from the position of Attorney General, is for the same reason prevented from sitting in several cases.

Justice Day detained at his home in Ohio by illness and one or more Justices barred from participating in the trial of various important cases, the bench might be temporarily very much weakened by the appointment of Attorney General Gregory.

KANSAS MOOSE FOR HUGHES

Electoral Ticket Withdrawn and Party Members Go to Republicans.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 21.—Following a conference between William Allen White, National Committeeman, and U. S. Sartin, State Chairman of the Progressive Party, the Moose Presidential electors were withdrawn from the nomination records in the Secretary of State's office today. This is construed to mean that all the big men in the Progressive Party in Kansas with the possible exception of Victor Murdock will be back under the Republican banner in November. Mr. White takes this view:

"There will be no Progressive ticket in Kansas this year, so far as I know. A majority of the electors already have notified me of their intention to support Hughes. They virtually withdrew themselves, and we withdrew the rest of them. Letters received since returning from Chicago indicate that a large majority of the Progressives in Kansas will be for Hughes in November."

COUNSELS EDITORS TO STAND BY WILSON

Secretary Daniels Tells of "That Patient Man" Seeking to Avert War as Did McKinley.

A LESSON FROM THE TIMES

Adolph S. Ochs Attributes Success to Principles of Honesty, Fairness, and Independence.

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels called on the editors of the nation to stand by President Wilson in the Mexican crisis in a speech before the National Editorial Association at the McAlpin yesterday. Secretary Daniels referred to the President as that "patient, brave man," who is speaking for America as did that "other patient, brave man, President McKinley," when the nation was confronted by war with Spain.

"There is no room for politics in questions touching the honor and the safety of America," said the Secretary. "Politics stop at the shore line. William McKinley was vilified by certain newspapers because he tried to settle the great question confronting the country at that time without resorting to the arbitrament of the sword. Political parties were sharply divided. Yet when he sent his message to Congress and asked for an appropriation, as the final act before the war, every Democrat and every Republican gave him his support.

"Today when delicate and difficult conditions confront the republic, and the National Guard is being mobilized in every State; when there are dark clouds on the horizon, among newspaper men of America there is no politics. We are all for American rights. I believe that the great Decatur put into the phrase the opinion of America today when he said 'In its foreign relations may my country always be right. But my country, right or wrong.'

"Europe is writing its history today in blood instead of with ink, and the conditions to the south of us should make us pause and pray that the worst will not come. It is the duty of the newspapers not to print anything that might precipitate the worst conditions.

Power of the Newspaper.

"As in the days of McKinley, that patient, brave man, we must today uphold the hands of that other patient, brave man who speaks now for America."

Secretary Daniels said he recognized the peculiarly powerful service editors of newspapers and of other publications could render their readers and their country.

"If I were to engage in reminiscences," said Mr. Daniels, "I should refer here to my own ambition to belong to our great newspaper profession. I published a newspaper as big as your two hands when I was 15 years old. Then later I had a hard time to spend the $40 a month which I made as editor of a weekly paper. But we have come now to a time when an editor's compensation is equal to his ability in the field in which he labors. If you will look over the length and breadth of this country you would not have to come to the metropolis to find great editors. I have found them in small villages, lifting the people to great living, therefore strengthening and refreshing the country and the Republic.

"We have lived this year to see our editors come out of the cellar and take seats at the table. When our two great political parties recently assembled in convention at Chicago and St. Louis, each selected an editor as keynoter. These two editors keynoted so well that one of them, Editor Harding, well satisfied the convention. The Republicans, therefore, dispensed with other Chairmen and made the editor the whole thing. Editor Martin H. Glynn, on the other hand, made such a great speech in the Democratic Convention that he received an ovation exceeding any ever accorded either to Mr. Roosevelt or to William Jennings Bryan."

Mr. Daniels then spoke of the opportunities in great cities for editors from country papers. He emphasized that their principles were alike.

Wants All the News.

"The first duty of any editor," said Mr. Daniels, "is to print all the news. He has no business to deny his readers reports of everything that touches mankind. I agree with Lyman Abbott that I want no expurgated newspaper. I do not want to take up my morning newspaper and feel that the editor has presumed to give me such news as he thinks is good for me, and to cut out the balance. If that were true then the very good editor would cut out all the stories of crime. Or the editor of low ideals (I thank God we are having fewer of them every year!) would treat me to a mess of garbage from the gutters. We must have both sides, for if we read only the good we will think this world is only a heaven. If we have before us only the bad, we think it is all hades.

"Then the complement must be the editorial pages containing what the editor thinks. This is the life of the paper. I believe that a reader who follows an editorial page devotedly comes to know the editor better than he knows himself. Then we hear sometimes of the business department and the editorial office as if they were two separate things. But there must be in every newspaper a coordinating power so that the business office can never dictate to the editor what the paper shall say."

Country Editors' Chances.

Mr. Daniels spoke in detail of the opportunities of the country editor for powerful work in his own community. He said he was sorry for editors of metropolitan dailies for what they lack. He said that they wrote editorials about public men with no personal, intimate knowledge of them, therefore, seeing them from formal, strained viewpoints, whereas the country editor had every opportunity to see his fellow politicians at lunch, at clubs, in church, and at home. However, he believed that this brought to the country editor the responsibility of doing the work that was at his own backdoor, rather than writing viciously about political matters far away from him.

President Lee J. Rountree of the National Editorial Association caught up a large American flag as Secretary Daniels finished speaking, and the audience rose and sang "America."

Newspaper reporters surrounded Secretary Daniels as he left the platform and asked him if the call for more men in the navy indicated that naval reserves were to be summoned for possible duty in relation to the situation in Mexico.

"The call is only for regular men in the navy and at the present time does not affect naval reserve organizations," he said. "Nor is there any present intention to call out the Atlantic fleet. But marines will be landed in Mexico whenever there is occasion to protect American citizens."

Secretary Daniels in his address paid a tribute to Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who preceded the Secretary on the platform. Mr. Ochs, who, twenty-five years ago had by invitation addressed the same association at its meeting in St. Paul, appearing on that occasion as the publisher of a small newspaper, the Chattanooga Times, which he still owns, spoke in part as follows:

Mr. Ochs's Address.

My experience in newspaper-making affords an opportunity for close observation of what is going on in its many ramifications throughout the country, and justifies me in making the broad assertion that never before did there exist so many splendid opportunities to win honor, fame, and fortune in the profession of journalism.

In all its angles there is in American journalism a demand and an urgent need for men of ability; men possessing the cardinal virtues—prudence, justice, temperance, and fortitude; faith, hope, and charity; men who love their country and their fellow-men; men of courage and convictions; men with vision and imagination; men who are thorough and painstaking—who take a pride in their work and whose heart and soul are in it; men who do not think they know it all, but can learn from others; men who are constantly seeking for and acquainting themselves with the newest, the best, and the most effective work done by others, and with the intelligence to understand what they learn and to apply the knowledge to their undertakings; men who are thoroughly grounded in the very rudiments of newspaper-making; men who know a proof-press, a shooting-stick, and quoin, a rotary press, linotype, and autoplate; a monkey dash as well as a column rule; with not only a nose for news but with olfactories to scent odors and detect rottenness; men with a sense of proportion and of values, and with an eye for impressive and pleasing typographical display; men who in circulation know the real from the artificial, and in advertising know the genuine from the deceptive; above all, men with the practical equipment and the sincere and vigilant purpose to present the news honestly and without prejudice, and to interpret it with independence and fairness. * * *

Acid Test After Twenty-five Years.

Twenty-five years ago I appeared by invitation before this association at its annual meeting at St. Paul, Minn., introduced as the publisher of a small interior daily newspaper. * * *

I have been persuaded to speak to you today of my personal affairs and to review my address of twenty-five years ago in the light of my experience; to apply, as it were, the acid test to the views then expressed, for I had the temerity to compare the small daily newspaper, as I knew it, to the metropolitan newspaper as I thought it existed.

It may surprise you to hear that I have not only not changed the views then expressed, but that I am strongly confirmed in them, and that the principles then suggested for the successful conduct of a small daily newspaper have been found to apply with equal force to the larger enterprise. I have tried as best I could to practice them—with what measure of success it is for others to say. * * *

You may be interested in knowing what has been the practical result of applying the principles suggested at St. Paul twenty-five years ago for the publication of a newspaper in a great city.

Twenty years ago THE NEW YORK TIMES, as I have said, had scarcely 10,000 daily circulation; today its net paid circulation exceeds 325,000. The gross annual income of THE NEW YORK TIMES in 1896 is now exceeded every month in legitimate income from advertisements and circulation.

One of the greatest factors in achieving this result was not mentioned—because not then fully appreciated—in the St. Paul catalogue of the qualifications required successfully to manage a daily newspaper. It was a great omission, as my years of experience have taught me, and I wish now to add it and give it the utmost emphasis by marking it "top of column," and that is, that the successful manager should have the ability to judge and appreciate other men's qualifications, to secure their assistance, and to win and retain their respect and confidence in his plans and good intentions.

Must Have Employes' Respect.

I have been most fortunate in this respect in the management of THE NEW YORK TIMES. I could not wish for more loyal and capable men than those holding the responsible positions in THE TIMES organization. They have been untiring, ever enthusiastic, and ungrudgingly giving the best of their abilities to the upbuilding of the newspaper, to preserve its best traditions, and maintain the highest standards of journalism. They have given to the task what money or reward cannot buy, and that is a pride in their work. If I wished to boast of anything I personally may have accomplished, it would be that I was able to secure the co-operation of such high-minded and talented men, and have them confidently believe in the soundness and sincerity of my aspirations. So I wish to say that a publisher should have the respect and confidence of all his aids and lieutenants, from editor in chief to office boy; for then only he will secure the best service they are capable of performing, and his publication will transmit this excellence to the reader and translate it into good-will. In other words, a newspaper's reputation is created in its own household.

A distinguished man—a New York editor and publisher—some time ago told some mutual friends that I had come to New York and taught the newspapers something new. I replied that I thought he was inaccurate; that if we had done anything worthy of note it was that "we had reminded them of something they had forgotten." I brought no new journalism to New York City; we have practiced, as best we could, old journalism—the journalism that succeeds in small towns where the high standards of the profession are demanded and practiced by self-respecting men. * * *

Opportunities Still Open.

I wish to say in concluding that the success of THE NEW YORK TIMES, reflected in its growing good-will and the confidence it is gaining throughout the land, is an expression of encouragement and support to conservative journalism that should inspire every newspaper-maker. What I have been able to accomplish, with my limited abilities and without capital, except that which was created in my business, should give encouragement to every man engaged in our profession; for there are innumerable opportunities throughout this country such as it was my good fortune to find in New York City. Perhaps there is another such opportunity here; certainly, as I view it, there are similar opportunities in many other big cities; and this is certain, that there is not a metropolitan newspaper office that would not make room for and welcome into its organization a successful, experienced, thoroughly equipped small daily newspaper editor and publisher—one who is respected and esteemed in his home town and there recognized as too big for his town and capable of greater responsibilities.

Mr. Ochs received a vote of thanks for his address.

Before going to Long Beach, where the members heard addresses last night by several speakers, the National Editorial Association adopted the following resolution:

"The National Editorial Association, in convention assembled, in New York City, this 21st day of June, 1916, hereby urges the United States Department of Justice, the Federal Trade Commission and both branches of Congress immediately and thoroughly to investigate and remedy the present high prices and scarcity of all paper supplies, and especially the trouble with the white news paper product."

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected: E. H. Tomlinson of Morristown, N. J., President; H. C. Hotaling, Mapleton, Minn., Vice President; George Schlosser, Sioux Falls, S. D., Secretary; J. Byron Cain, Belle Plaine, Kan., Treasurer; Homer Harwood, Warren, Mich.; G. L. Caswell, Iowa; F. E. Gannett, Elmira, N. Y.; Edward Albright, Gallatin, Texas, and Dietrick Lamade, Williamsport, Penn., Trustees.

The next meeting will be held in Minneapolis. Today the editors will take a sightseeing boat trip around Manhattan Island, and visit the Brooklyn Navy Yard and the factory of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn. On Friday the editors will visit New Jersey Summer resorts and conclude their convention in New York on Saturday.

State Association Election.

Frank E. Gannett of Elmira, N. Y., was elected President of the New York State Press Association at the annual meeting at the McAlpin Hotel yesterday. The association has been holding its sessions in conjunction with the National Editorial Association.

Louis Wiley, Gardner Kline, W. O. Greene, W. B. Sanders, and W. A. Allen were elected Vice President, and Elias Bair, Secretary and Treasurer. Those elected to the Executive Committee were C. H. Betts, Garry A. Wingard, H. D. Burrill, James H. Potts, John K. Walbridge, L. C. Sutton, Frank Walker, Lee W. McHenry, and J. F. Flugrath.

NASTIEST SPRING ON RECORD

Gives Way to the Coldest First Day of Summer in Nineteen Years.

If on the frosty first day of Summer that arrived in furs and mittens at 1:24 P. M. yesterday the poet had returned to ask, "What is so rare as a day in June?" all this frigid city might have been tempted to answer him with hoary breath: "Search us! We haven't got it."

For that old bandit Winter, with fine disregard for equinoctial boundary lines, raided into territory not his own and threw into his Santa Claus bag many hours of the three months, two days, fourteen hours, and fifty minutes kindly allotted to us as our Summer this year by the sun and cynically unreliable astronomers. At last reports the old bandit, ignoring ultimatums from the Weather Bureau and threats of the coal barons to set up a de facto government for poor, much-abused Summer, was still ripping through the streets, while New York shivered in its too-soon Palm Beaches and legless lingerie.

The Weather Bureau kindly announced that we had just passed through the coldest Spring in forty-three years and were experiencing the coldest first Summer day in nineteen years. The coldest mean temperature, likewise the meanest cold temperature, known in any Spring before was 64; but the one just past was the lowest down ever. Its average, and a mighty mean average, too, was 61.3.

NEW THEATRE FOR FRENCH.

J. J. Shubert to Build Comedie Francais, Also the Apollo.

A lease was signed yesterday by the Théâtre Français Compagnie whereby it will occupy upon completion for a period of ten years a new playhouse to be erected on the north side of Forty-fifth Street, just west of Broadway. The theatre will be one of two to be built by J. J. Shubert across from the Booth Theatre. Excavating for the buildings is now under way, and the contracts call for their completion by Nov. 1.

The signers of the lease for the Théâtre Français Compagnie were Otto H. Kahn, Theodore Roosevelt, and Robert Goelet. The playhouse will be known as the Comédie Français, and will be devoted to French drama acted by French artists. Lucien Bonheur, who founded the company which had a successful season at the Berkeley Lyceum last Winter, will be director of the new theatre. He will sail Saturday for France to engage additional artists. The theatre will have a seating capacity of about 1,000.

The other playhouse will be known as the Apollo. It will seat about 1,500, and will be under the management of the Messrs. Shubert. For some time negotiations have been going on between the Messrs. Shubert and Cohan & Harris for the unexpired lease of the Astor Theatre, and if they secure this they will have six theatres between Forty-fourth and Forty-sixth Streets.

Margaret Anglin in the Movies.

A company has been organized to present Margaret Anglin in motion pictures. The company is to be known as the Margaret Anglin Picture Corporation, and James D. Barton is its President and James Shesgreen, who has been Miss Anglin's manager for the last four years, its Vice President. The studios will be in New York and Detroit, Mich., and eight pictures will be made. Arthur Voegtlin, formerly, director of the Hippodrome, and Livingston Platt will have artistic and technical direction of making the pictures.

A Comedy Role for Jane Cowl.

A comedy by Ralph Renaud, entitled "Betty, Behave," has been secured by Selwyn & Co. for Jane Cowl next season. The piece will be given some preliminary performances out of town in July and will be seen here about Thanksgiving time. The supporting cast will include Orme Caldara and Henry Stephenson. Richard Ordynski will stage the play, which will present Miss Cowl for the first time in a comedy rôle.

For the Italian Student.

Students of the Italian language and literature should be especially interested in the Summer season of the Teatro di Varieta in Third Avenue, where last Monday Mr. Vitale began a program of plays by contemporary Italian dramatists—plays never before given in this city in English or Italian. Pieces by Bracco, D'Annunzio, and others will be given on Mondays and Saturdays and on other days if the patronage warrants.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Leoncavallo's cinema opera, "The Queen of the Roses," will be shown in the Candler Theatre shortly after the conclusion of the engagement of "Justice." The picture is in eight parts, and some of the best known Italian actors and pantomimists acted for it. An orchestra of fifty pieces will play the score.

Yvonne Garrick, who was one of the principal actresses of the Theatre Francais at the Berkeley last season, has been engaged by David Belasco for Martha Hedman's role in "The Boomerang" while the latter takes a vacation of six weeks. Mlle. Garrick will appear in the part for the first time Monday night, and it will be her debut in an English-speaking role.

Helen Lowell has been engaged by Frederic McKay for a role in Willard Mack's "Jane O'Day from Broadway," in which Blanche Ring will be seen here next season.

A prize offered by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company for the best scenario submitted by members of the class in photodramatics at Columbia has been awarded to Dr. Ralston R. Reed of Morristown, N. J. His story was called "Humility o' Hedford."

Ferdinand Gottschalk will play one of the principal roles in "Please Help Emily" when the comedy is presented at the Lyceum in August by the Charles Frohman Company.

The curtain for the first performance of "The Passing Show of 1916" will rise at 8 o'clock tonight at the Winter Garden. The balcony seats were not included in the auction sale, and some are still to be had at regular prices.

ALLIED BAZAAR ENDS IN PATRIOTIC BLAZE

Father of English Officer Bids $1,200 for an Actor's Worn Collar.

$10,000 PEARLS TO SAILOR

Volunteer Workers Dance Curtain Down Upon a Tremendously Successful Fair.

The Allied Bazaar ended last night, and it ended in such a wave of enthusiasm that it seemed as though it might have been kept open indefinitely with no diminution of the crowds, the money, the interest, and the excitement which marked it as the record event of its kind.

The crowds in Grand Central Palace were greater last night, if they varied at all from the throngs which have jammed the big place for each of the last nineteen days, and the knowledge that it was the last opportunity to contribute to the sufferers abroad seemed to inspire everyone with a desire to do his utmost.

In the theatre where, under the direction of Miss Margaret Mayo, scores of actors and actresses kept the crowd merry, Will Morrissey, an actor, suddenly ripped his linen collar from about his neck and exclaimed:

"What am I bid? Who wants this handsome and only slightly soiled piece of raiment?"

Morrissey did it to get a laugh. Instead he got a bid.

"Five cents," shouted some one, laughing.

"Ten," called another, and then "Fifteen," "Twenty," "Half a dollar," "A dollar."

$600 for Soiled Collar.

Morrissey was red in the face with excitement and astonishment. He roared out all the familiar quips of an auctioneer, and every word brought an answering bid. They rose in leaps and bounds until the throng drew back and, astounded itself now, watched while C. W. Band of Toronto, Canada, and Mesmore Kendall, a friend of Miss Mayo, bid against each other.

Mr. Band has a son in the British Army abroad, Captain P. C. Band, and he meant to let no one outdo him in patriotism. From dollars the bids mounted to tens and hundreds, until finally Mr. Kendall shook his head and declined to beat Mr. Band's bid of $600.

The crowd, almost hysterical now with excitement, screamed and cheered, and Mr. Band was hauled up onto the stage. His face beamed and he shouted:

"I'll raise the bid, now, to $1,000!"

"Hurrah!" yelled the crowd.

"Twelve hundred!" shouted back the excited Mr. Band, and there's no telling what he would have given next if they hadn't stopped him. He received the collar amid more cheers, and then, as Miss Mayo said, just to throw in something to bind the bargain, they gave him a gold cigarette case which is said once to have belonged to the late Field Marshal Kitchener.

So ended the bazaar proper, but there was yet to be the dance which had been arranged days before as the final event on the program. Though every one concerned was all tired out, nobody among the 4,000 volunteer workers and the several thousand others who jammed the floors showed the least weariness. Like everything else connected with the great bazaar, the final romp on the floor was superlative and colossal.

Made More Than $1,500,000.

During the nineteen days of the bazaar more than 750,000 persons visited it, and the receipts are estimated at upward of $1,500,000. It broke all records for an enterprise of this kind in the United States.

The crowd last night was as big as at some of the early sessions, when it seemed as if the big Palace could not hold one more. At the height of the evening all three floors were packed. Many were seeing the fair for the first time.

Those who came for bargains were generally disappointed. The buying in the daytime had been so brisk that by night many booths were stripped of their wares, while others had only a few mill-ends. Only a few auction sales were held. There had been a liberal reduction in prices for the early comers to profit by.

The whine and whir of the bagpipes, the cries of the ballyhoos and auctioneers, and the music of the orchestras sounded above the roar of the crowd. In the Permanent Blind Relief Tea Garden players from Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic" gave numbers from that midnight revue, while in the Café de Paris a cotillion was held. All this was before the grand finale on the third floor, where every one felt care-free after midnight.

The affairs of the bazaar have been transferred to the offices of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, at 120 Broadway, and there the accounts will be settled. The bazaar was given under the auspices of the commission, the War Relief Clearing House, and the National Allied Relief Committee, and the bazaar's share of the receipts will be divided equally among these charities. The numerous other charity organizations represented were on a fifty-fifty basis.

Pearl Necklace to Sailor.

The $10,000 pearl necklace from Dreicer & Co., which was one of the most valuable prizes and was awarded by the B. F. B. Permanent Blind booth, went to A. W. Niland, who registered from the U. S. S. Ozark at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Captain Buiclin of the Hotel Biltmore received a Jeffery automobile, and Day Kolik of Detroit, Mich., a gold watch. The last shares on a Packard were sold last night by Annette Kellermann. The distribution of the remainder of the prizes will be conducted from 120 Broadway.

One of the most interesting events of the closing day was the appearance of Miss Helen Keller at the Permanent Blind Relief booth. Miss Keller, who has perhaps done more than any other person to encourage the work for the blind through her own marvelous achievements, made a touching plea for the men who had lost their sight in battle.

"Stand you by now," she said; "don't leave any of them unbefriended, these young men with their hopes, like their bodies, maimed, and their future years, like their eyes, without light. There is a voice in my heart that cries and cries for them. From the darkness whose deepest grief my soul knows I appeal to you.

Helen Keller's Plea.

"Have you never felt the terror and the loneliness of the night? Ah, in that house without lights there is no door of escape but death. Have mercy, then, and give these young men whatever help you can. Remember, before they went into battle they were full of hope. They dreamed of fortune, success, a happy home. Now they are dependent upon us for whatever of good the future may hold for them. Without our help they will stand at street corners begging their bread. They will stumble through life, guided by a dog or a little child. Think, think. Give what you can; they gave their all. Would you take a thousand dollars for your sight? Then it is your duty to help these less fortunate ones."

George Hough Perry and Waldemar De Bille, executive Directors of the bazaar, received yesterday bronze plaques in recognition of their services.

THE OUTLOOK IN MEXICO.

El Paso and other border towns would be best pleased if war with Mexico had begun yesterday or last month or last year. Denied that gratification, they insist that it will begin this morning. For some days it has been evident that there might occur at any time such clashes as are reported in this morning's news, but they are not war, and it is entirely possible that they may not bring on war. The relations between the United States and Mexico are strained to a point where it is difficult to call them friendly, but there will be war only if CARRANZA's stubbornness and folly blind him to its certain consequences.

There has been a threat of war on both sides, first by CARRANZA and then in our reply when we told him that the acts of which he gave warning would entail the "gravest consequences." There is, nevertheless, a large degree of probability that he will come to a wiser decision. It is reported that the Allied Powers of Europe are urging him to avoid trouble with us, it being their belief that he has been incited to rashness by German influence. We can hardly believe that the pacific councils of the Allies will have much weight. There are other and better reasons why he should draw back before it is too late.

His financial condition is about as desperate as could well be imagined. He would have to carry on war with the most nearly worthless money in the world. He might manage that, but there is a grave shortage of food, and it is believed that his troops are very poorly equipped. It is not merely that they lack bread and beans and beef, but that their supply of munitions would be quickly exhausted.

There is another reason, and a highly valid one, for great caution on his part. The moves made by our Government to put itself in a position for meeting any acts of hostility on the part of the Mexicans and the swiftness with which they are being carried to a completion, as well as the perfectly unmistakable terms of our note, can leave him in no doubt as to our determination. The consequences to him and to Mexico will be grave indeed if he or his military chieftains enter upon the desperate business of a war with the United States. CARRANZA talks much of his pride of race. He has sought to implant in the minds of his people the notion that in him and in their recent behavior they have something to be proud of. But, after all, the old gentleman must have in some corner of his head a saving remnant of common sense.

WAR FINANCE.

There is no war yet, and no certainty of war. Until the situation is clearer, it would seem that the case is one of emergency merely, and that the simple way to meet the financial necessities is to issue the one-year certificates of indebtedness authorized for temporary unforeseen requirements. Even that resort is not one of instant need, for the Treasury is receiving tax payments on a considerable scale, and has in its general fund over $85,000,000, besides over $57,000,000 earmarked for the use of disbursing officers. The Treasury also holds $240,000,000 of so-called Panama Canal bonds, which it is said the President can use as a means of "raising money for military purposes." The same suggestion is so often made in connection with so many and diverse other purposes that it is worth considering apart from the war prospects, or in connection with them, because of the renewal of the familiar proposal of an easy way to get money in avoidance of the necessity of application to Congress or of laying taxes.

The bonds which it is proposed to issue are not the original bonds whose proceeds were limited by law to the uses of the Panama Canal. They have been spent, and are not available. The unissued bonds are not properly canal bonds at all. They are "straight" bonds based "on the credit of the United States," and are authorized to "reimburse the Treasury" for expenditures on the canal from its cash surplus. The money spent was taxes and not borrowed funds. That is why the canal is an unmortgaged asset, and would remain unmortgaged if the bonds were issued. The effect of the issue would be merely to restore to the Treasury the funds which it had spent, not to mortgage the canal.

The financial effect of issuing the Panama bonds would be no different than from the issue of any other bonds. The country would be debtor that amount, and it could be paid only by laying taxes. It is necessary to ask Congress for authority to make war, and in its vote authority would be given to spend money in making it. The President has authority to issue the bonds. Congress would give him authority to spend the proceeds in carrying on the war.

SUFFRAGE BY THREAT.

The Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and the Woman's Party, two lovely berries growing on one stem, are continuing their heroic task of putting Mr. WILSON and the Democrats in Congress under duress. "Pass the Susan B. Anthony amendment," they cry, "or we will stump "the twelve suffrage States against "you." "We recommend the extension of the franchise," the St. Louis platform says, "to the women of the "country by the States upon the same "terms as to men." In the face of that declaration, and before it is a week old, these belligerent sisters command Mr. WILSON and the Democrats in Congress to kick it away and commit themselves to Federal votes for women, and to do it not because they are convinced of the desirability of suffrage by constitutional amendment, but because they are frightened into it. A high opinion these frowning dames must have of the moral honesty and courage of Mr. WILSON and the Congress Democrats.

To hold that woman suffrage is the prime and paramount issue on which this election, or any election, should be decided is to furnish to the anti-suffragists a fatal argument, but it would be unjust to the majority of the suffragists to regard them as responsible for the antics and dithyrambics of the suffrage Extreme Left. The Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and the Woman's Party are but amusing themselves and the rest of the country with a "bluff." They have been deserted by the sense of the ridiculous. The efforts, if efforts are made, of these two sororities to beat Mr. WILSON and the Democratic Party would have about as much effect on the election as the evolutions of one Jersey mosquito on the movements of the satellites of Jupiter.

WHO IS IN CONTEMPT?

The House of Representatives shows a high and fine sensitiveness upon the point of honor. "If you are conscious of your dignity and honor," Representative MOON of Tennessee said to his fellow-members, "you will pass" the resolution finding United States District Attorney MARSHALL of New York guilty of contempt and summoning him before the House to be punished. Aroused by such appeals as this, the House voted 208 to 85 that District Attorney MARSHALL is in contempt.

We have failed to observe in The Congressional Record any notice of a motion or resolution to direct that inquiry be made into the conduct of FRANK BUCHANAN, a member of the House representing the Seventh Illinois District. Does the honorable body of which Mr. BUCHANAN is a member feel that he has done nothing to discredit it before the country, that he has only enhanced its shining glory? Mr. BUCHANAN, an ex-President of Labor's National Peace Council, is now under indictment. A Federal Grand Jury in this city, inquiring into the plots of German propagandists to bring about strikes in munition factories, heard evidence implicating the officials of Labor's Peace Council and reached the conclusion that Representative BUCHANAN, as well as ex-Representative FOWLER of the same State, ought to have an opportunity to clear themselves of the charges against them in a criminal court. Therefore indictments were found. Representative BUCHANAN at once filed charges of impeachment against District Attorney MARSHALL, and during the hearing Mr. MARSHALL wrote a letter criticising the attitude of the sub-committee before which the hearing was held. Out of that grew the contempt proceedings, although Mr. MARSHALL promptly wrote the Judiciary Committee that he had intended no reflections upon the House of Representatives as a whole or upon the Judiciary Committee, that he had criticised nobody but the members of the sub-committee.

Representative GRAHAM of Pennsylvania declared to the House that the sub-committee sent here to investigate Mr. MARSHALL gave a willing ear to tales told about the District Attorney's office by those who had reason to fear it, that it sought to violate the sanctity of the Grand Jury room in order to get more information about Mr. MARSHALL, that he had just cause for feeling incensed against the committee, and that the passage of the contempt resolution seemed to him to be an effort "to punish a man simply be"cause in his honesty and the indig"nation of his red blood he resented "an attack that he considered to be "unjust and improper." That did not influence the House. It passed the resolution just the same.

Does the House of Representatives really believe that the time and the occasion for this proceeding against Federal District Attorney MARSHALL are well chosen? If the members of the House will take the pains to read the party platforms adopted respectively at Chicago and St. Louis they will find therein pretty sharp condemnations of persons engaging in such undertakings as those in which the Grand Jury found the presumptive evidence that Mr. BUCHANAN was involved. The Democratic platform asserts that any person acting in the interest of a foreign Power and in disregard of this country's welfare who seeks "to injure this Govern"ment in its foreign relations or "cripple and destroy its industries at "home * * * is faithless to the "trust which the privileges of citizen"ship repose in him and disloyal to "his country." It is proper, of course, that the House should refrain from any proceeding in the case of Mr. BUCHANAN until he has had his day in court. But will not the country very naturally construe the contempt proceedings against Mr. MARSHALL as evidence that the House resents the attempt to bring one of its members to trial for a crime, as evidence that it is really trying to punish the prosecutor in that proceeding? Taking into account the state of public feeling at this moment, it is exceedingly doubtful whether the honor and respect in which the members of the House are held by their fellow-countrymen will be enhanced by the passage of the contempt resolution in this case or by any punitive determination had thereunder.

THE BLACK EAGLE PLUCKED.

The Hon. FRANK B. KELLOGG has been nominated for Senator in Congress by the Republicans of Minnesota in State-wide primary. Mr. KELLOGG's entrance into the primaries was due, we believe, to the foresight of the associated Republican editors of the State. He had refused to subject himself to the expense and the ordinary stump-speaking canvass of a primary campaign. His selection is about the first praiseworthy product of the jumbled primary laws of his State. He is a sound lawyer, a man of knowledge, character, and force. If he is elected, as he will be, presumably, the Gopher State will be represented for the first time in sixteen years by two Senators, and Mr. NELSON, that hearty and shrewd American from Norway, will have a worthy colleague.

MOSES EDWIN CLAPP, whom Mr. KELLOGG will succeed in the Senate, hasn't even "rattled around" in the chair of CUSHMAN K. DAVIS, which he was chosen to fill in 1901. "The Black Eagle of Fergus Falls" has screamed until the State is tired of him. He is a consummate specimen of the Elijah Pogram type. As a Progressive he roared with the full strength of his admirable lungs and mighty vocal chords against Judges and for the recall of judicial decisions. As an "announcer" at a show he would have been in his element. His latest contribution to statesmanship was his vote for the Gore resolution. That was going to strengthen him, the orotund innocent must have thought, misunderstanding Minnesota. Well, he seems to have run "a poor third" in the primary race, the very districts where his vote to give up American rights was thought apt to help him having turned against him. Thus his defeat is more than the expression of the weariness of Minnesota Republicanism with resonant mediocrity; it is a triumph of Americanism.

Who is there to mourn for Moses? Not one. He lagged superfluous. He is not a Senator, but a study in acoustics. Yet we can't part without regret from one who seems rather a character out of a novel of political satire than a contemporary actuality. Good fortune to him in everything but politics! We hope to hear from him yet in the cattle show season.

FOLLY OF AN AFTER-WAR.

The Economic Conference of Paris will have a curious historical interest. Its failure is already written in the futilities of past experience. "Hatred," said the French economist YVES GUYOT, in a dispatch to The New York Tribune while the conference was in session, "is a very poor foundation "for an economic future, and, besides, "the interests of all the Allies are not "the same as regards Germany." But the conferees agreed in delusions to the contrary and brought forth a program which provides:

First, for unlimited economic co-operation among the Allies during the remainder of the war. This was already intended by the necessities of their situation.

Second, for a joint defensive boycott of German commerce and industry during an indeterminate post-bellum time of reconstruction. This is a very dubious undertaking.

Third, for permanent tariffs, subventions, and commercial arrangements whereby Germany, so far as possible, shall forever be excluded from trade rivalry with her present enemies, or so penalized therein that her competition need never again be feared.

That the third part of the program is economically chimerical is recognized at once by a considerable body of British opinion. That it would react upon its own authors is argued in the country where the demand for it has been most clamorous. To prohibit or penalize trade with 115,000,000 industrious people in the middle of Europe would injure them enormously, of course, but it would injure equally all the rest, for trade is a reciprocal business in which wealth is exchanged for mutual profit. That the 115,000,000 people are Teutonic has nothing to do with trade.

In so far as German competition has been unfair, or may continue to be, remedies are near at hand. Each nation will control and always has controlled the terms on which outgroups may trade within its doors. That is one thing. To destroy trade because of its hateful origin is quite another thing. Even though it were politically feasible to do so, the economic price would be disastrous, and both sides would have to pay it. "What is the "real factor that is enabling the Allies "to last out a war of endurance?" asks The London Daily News. "It "is the credit of one country, and that "country is free-trade England. It is "the resources of free trade which "will finally give us victory."

Economic truth will prove itself. The political aspects of the proposed boycott are for the present more interesting. The declaration of the Economic Conference of Paris in favor of permanent barriers against German competition is but an undertaking to continue the war against Germany after peace. One war is to end where another begins. Peace in that guise is not peace at all. It is only a truce, made necessary by the physical exhaustion of one side. The treaty of peace should end not only the physical combat, but all economic reprisals. Therefore, what is the implication of proposing now and beforehand to organize an after-war? Is it that the Allies cannot trust their own or each other's representatives to make proper terms of peace in the world conference that will be called to end the present conflict? That should be the time and place to stipulate the rights of trade, the nation-ways of future time, and all the readjustments deemed necessary to promote human intercourse and happiness.

THE ORIGINAL HUGHES MAN.

It is perturbing to the sociologist to see that even after that unassisted spontaneous rising of the Republican "people" for the nomination of Mr. HUGHES, "the original Hughes man," replica of a conventional campaign figure, is beginning to appear. The Chicago correspondent of The Portland Press gives the honor to a Dirigo statesman:

> Maine occupies an especially favorable position in this selection. FREDERICK HALE, the Republican National Committeeman from Maine and candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, was the first public speaker anywhere to unequivocally indorse HUGHES. This Mr. HALE did on Jan. 17 of this year at the Portland Club, and today he is being recognized by the Republican leaders here as the man who started the Hughes movement and is being given credit for it.

Of course Mr. HALE has no right to lay that flattering unction to his soul. The Hughes movement germinated in the air, was caught by heart from heart, grew wild in woods in Vermont, and then in Oregon, where several thousand of the "people" got it.

Politicians had nothing to do with it. Yet since the old political mythology and terminology continue even in the face of an irresistible contagion of popular enthusiasm, the catalogue of original Hughes men is likely to be long. The Hon. WINTHROP MURRAY CRANE of Massachusetts "has favored "Mr. HUGHES for the Presidency con"sistently since 1908." At least The Boston Transcript told us so in April. Mr. CRANE's prudent habit of susurration shall not keep him from being enumerated as an older, if not a better, soldier of the Hughes army than Mr. HALE. "Senator LODGE," our venerable Boston friend assured us, "was convinced as long ago as "last Summer that Mr. HUGHES "would be the Republican nominee in "1916." So Mr. LODGE is an original Hughes man, highly original, as he was in his long and consistent support of Mr. WEEKS on one ballot at Chicago. Mr. LODGE turned to Mr. ROOSEVELT, as Mr. ROOSEVELT turned to Mr. LODGE, just for courtesy.

Inevitably, Kansas has a delegate in the convention of original Hughes men. The Topeka Capital tells us that the Hon. J. NAPOLEON DOLLEY, sometime State Bank Commissioner, "picked HUGHES as the logical candidate several months ago." Let Mr. DOLLEY tell how that guileless amateur, Mr. FRANK H. HITCHCOCK, was prevailed upon to trust himself among the politicians and continue to be the janitor of the gigantic popular insurrection:

> When it was suggested that he go to Chicago and take charge of the Hughes campaign, I wired him at New York, urging him to go on behalf of Kansas, and received a reply from him stating that he had decided to undertake the work. He is one of the most honest, able, and fearless political leaders I have ever known.

Some Progressives are unreconciled to the artless Mr. HITCHCOCK, but as a manufacturer of spontaneous sentiment and a collector of delegates he has few equals. When he writes his memoirs the official roll of original Hughes men may be known.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Planning to Keep Us Alive.

That our police are quite competent to maintain order in this city, even with a part of the National Guard regiments away—or all of them, for that matter—is not doubted enough by New Yorkers for the question to have received consideration, except, possibly, by a few men upon whom rest special responsibilities of that sort. Still, the statements on the subject made by the Acting Commissioner of Police are reassuring, even though it is reassurance of which none of us had felt the need.

But more interesting, because more puzzling, was his assertion that the department had worked out plans by which the city could be fed, even though railway transportation were stopped for a time. How that could be done is a good deal of a mystery, for though not a little of New York's daily supply of food comes to it by water, it is only a small part of the whole, and of that part no small fraction is brought by rail to the ships that bring it to us.

It has been said many times that the immediately available stock of food for New York would last only a week or so, and that the city was in much the same situation as are the countries—among which Great Britain is a notable example—that have practically given up the task of feeding their own people from their own farms. What can happen to such countries in case of war Germany has learned to her very great discomfort, and still greater indignation, and there is more than excuse for fearing that without a railway service the New Yorkers who couldn't or wouldn't get away from town would soon find themselves living on rations as severely restricted, by "cards" or otherwise, as are the Kaiser's subjects. The latter vehemently insist that they are not starving, but, judging from the constantly recurring reports of hunger riots in the German cities, a good many of them are far from content.

And the Acting Police Commissioner says that the department's plan for getting along without the railways cannot be explained, as to do so would make its execution impossible! That is a puzzle indeed. Of course the scheme would have to be known as soon as it was carried out, and it is more than hard to see why it cannot be told in advance.

Running Fast Away from Duty!

If, as is reported, KOLEHMAINEN, the champion distance runner, was induced to join the Fourteenth Regiment under what was, as he understood it, a contract or agreement that nothing would be expected or demanded of him except to bring glory on the regiment as a competitor in races, then his present refusal to do military service should bring upon him hardly more of criticism than upon the officers who permitted his enlistment on terms worse than absurd.

It is next to impossible, however, to believe that any such arrangement with the man was made by, or even with the knowledge of, the more responsible members of the organization. For KOLEHMAINEN to compete as a Guardsman when he was not one in any proper sense of the word was a fraud from the standpoint of sport, and that he should be allowed to do so could only happen under a complete and dangerous misunderstanding of the purposes for which the National Guard exists. It is not supported to supply young men with clubs, either social or athletic, and though a certain number and quality of social features may be innocently attractive for getting and keeping members, and though the cultivation of athletic prowess among them can be commended, yet both should be strictly incidental to the more serious business of soldiering.

The Kolehmainen case is one that ought to be thoroughly investigated and sternly settled. He and everybody else should be taught that to join the National Guard is to assume some heavy obligations as well as to acquire privileges valuable or pleasing—that the first and greatest of the obligations is to ignore and forget all personal preferences and safeties when the call for service in the field may come.

A Berlin Editor on Peace.

One of the Berlin newspapers, the Tageblatt, makes the statement that "we have repeatedly made offers of peace to our enemies," and that therefore "responsibility for the continuance of the war rests on them."

This assertion, if sincere, reveals a pathetic misunderstanding of the situation, for of course no such offers have been made. The nearest approach to them has been the remote one of an occasional more or less definite presentation by some high German official of the claim that as soon as the Allies recognized their loss of the war, such terms of peace as victors are wont to offer could be theirs for the taking.

The Tageblatt also declares that the conquest of France, as "the dominating Power of the Entente, the head and soul of the resistance," is what Germany must do first, but that, it seems, is only preparatory to the accomplishing of a more important object. With France beaten, "our hands will be free to deal with England, for there can be no end to the struggle until the soil of England herself, also, is saturated in the lifeblood of her people."

With these ideas underlying "offers of peace," it is not so remarkable that they have not been accepted or even considered.

Not Opposed to Home Rule.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the interest of accuracy I beg you to correct a statement under the heading "Warns against Irish 'Made in Germany.'" The statement is: "The Friends of Irish Freedom are for the most part of those who oppose home rule." I speak with knowledge of many of the persons who compose that organization. They favor home rule, real home rule, for Ireland. I do not know a single one who opposes home rule. The membership of the Friends of Irish Freedom includes many who, up to the time of Mr. Redmond's protestations of loyalty to Great Britain and his advice to young Irishmen to volunteer for the British service, had been loyal supporters of the Parliamentary Party. Many of its members, like myself, have protested against the general acceptance of the so-called Home Rule bill as a full discharge of all Ireland's claims and grievances against England. The suspended Home Rule act does not, as a matter of fact, make over to the Irish Parliament a single essential of sovereignty. Even if it were a much more comprehensive grant of power, we would have protested against the attempt to pledge the Irish people to the abandonment of their right to nationhood and complete autonomy in return for a mere mess of verbiage. No one should be deluded into the belief that any hasty, makeshift effigy of government will seem a justification for Irish co-operation in the support of the hard-pressed Empire.

As for Mr. Egan's claim that the Friends of Irish Freedom were "made in Germany," the charge would be too ridiculous to need refutation if it were not given circulation in so respectable an organ of public opinion as THE NEW YORK TIMES. The Germans had no more to do with the organization of the Friends of Irish Freedom than had the latter body with the recent Irish uprising. I know persons prominent in the Friends of Irish Freedom movement who disapprove of Germany's militarism and deprecate her methods, and would deplore such an outcome of the war as would make them dominant.

JOHN J. MURPHY.
New York, June 8, 1916.

Mr. Royce's Challenge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is very remarkable that after the papers had published the fact that the National Security League had discontinued its Speakers' Bureau and that I was no longer connected with it, Mr. Royce should insist that it should designate me as its representative. The main thing is, does Mr. Royce really want a chance to attack military defense preparedness in Carnegie Hall? If he will choose another antagonist, let him do so.

EXPEDITING JUSTICE.

A Bill Which Would Put an End to Protracted Litigation.

New York, June 20, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES has been a loyal supporter of the cause of law reform. Your readers will be interested to know that a bill recommended by the American Bar Association has just passed the House of Representatives, providing as follows:

> No judgment shall be set aside or reversed, nor shall a new trial be granted by any court of the United States in any case, civil or criminal, on the ground of misdirection of the jury or the improper admission or rejection of evidence, or for error as to any matter of pleading or procedure, unless in the opinion of the court to which application is made, after an examination of the entire cause, it shall appear that the error complained of has injuriously affected the rights of the parties.

If this bill should pass the Senate and become a law, it will cut up by the roots the cause of half the delays in procedure that have caused so much injustice in the Federal courts. It is simply the fulfillment of the pledge contained in the Democratic platform for 1912:

> We recommend the enactment of such legislation and the promotion of such measures as will rid the present legal system of the delays, expense, and uncertainties incident to the system as now administered.

In substance, the principle of the bill has been adopted in twenty-five of the States. This great advance is in large measure due to the efforts of the committee of the American Bar Association that has for eight years been engaged in suggesting remedies "to prevent delay and unnecessary cost in litigation." In the last Congress, on its recommendation, a bill was passed requiring the Federal courts to disregard a mistake in bringing a suit on the law side of the court rather than on the equity side, or vice versa, and also a bill allowing an appeal to be taken directly to the Supreme Court from a decision of the State court, declaring a State law to be void because in violation of the Constitution of the United States. Before that time such appeal could only be taken if the decision of the State court was in favor of the statute.

You printed recently an address in which some lawyer undertook to apologize for his profession. It seems to me that this apology, if needed at all, was so only because many people fail to realize how much good work is done by lawyers. There is really no more public-spirited profession. In this particular case fifteen leading lawyers, from all parts of the country, have given a great deal of time and thought to reforming the procedure of the Federal courts, and that without any reward except the consciousness of duty well done.

Newsboys' Unnecessary Shouting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I inclose herewith a copy of a communication sent to Commissioner Emerson which I think might be published in THE TIMES in order to help to abate a great nuisance.

EMIL MAYER, M. D.
New York, June 20, 1916.

Dear Commissioner: Permit me to call your attention to what I consider a great nuisance, and which, I believe, entirely within your power to help to abolish. I refer to the lusty-lunged hawkers of "extras," who make night hideous with their cries, most of which are absolute lies, and all of which is, as I am sure your are aware, very detrimental to the health of the community. Not only are sick patients disturbed by their raucous cries, but people are made more nervous and apprehensive; and now that there is a strong likelihood of war between ourselves and Mexico, the apprehension occasioned by these shouts of "extra" will be especially detrimental to the nervous systems of the relatives of the men who have gone to the front.

I would suggest as a remedy that no shouting of "extra" be permitted after 8 P. M., and if the newspapers are very desirous of getting out extra editions that these may be offered for sale on the main avenues without, however, the privilege of shouting their wares.

The whole matter is the more disgraceful in that a careful investigation fails to show any need for an extra edition. For instance, last night, Monday, June 19, there was a yelling in front of my West End residence from 8:15 to 8:45 P. M. of the vendors and one could distinctly make out "War with Mexico." Nothing in the morning papers of today shows any news of a startling character, and one must only feel that it was the action of the fakers. Surely this ought to be stopped. Won't you help us?

What Some Immigrants Hold To.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of recent happenings among the hyphenates the question arises whether we are afraid to keep order within our own house. It is a very difficult thing, and a delicate one, too, to delimit the frontiers of freedom, but it is high time the task was taken in hand. Most immigrants have come to this country to escape the tyranny and oppression of the rulers of their native land, and have found here liberty and prosperity. We most emphatically object to their bringing with them and promulgating political ideals which conflict with those of America. This is a grave political danger, and fraught with the most serious consequences to our unity and strength. American citizenship should not be handed out like a game license, and a specific oath should be incorporated which compels them, if necessary, to fight against the country of their birth. Persons taking out American papers should be responsible with their person and their entire property for their good faith, and any acts which are hostile to the country of their adoption, either in speech or in deed, should be visited with immediate and stern punishment. There has been a most shameful abuse of the liberty and courtesy extended to the subjects of certain nations.

I have been twice in Holland since the war commenced, and have met there many Germans who spoke of our country in terms of open contempt and derision. I have recently been in several foreign restaurants in the City of New York and have heard there conversation in a foreign tongue which ought to have had the attention of our police officials.

Wake up, Uncle Sam, before it is too late, and put your house in order! AMERICAN.

THE CALL OF A COAT.

You never would think that an old blue coat
Would have such a lot to say—
Would prattle along of a time remote
In such a recalling way.

And yet from its hook on the storeroom door
It eagerly whispers to me—
"Come back, come back, to the good old corps
And see what there is to see!"

It beckons to me with its empty sleeves
And sadly the buttons smile—
'Tis easy to see that the old coat grieves
To march with the rank and file.

But the coat's of a pattern out of date
And worn is its wearer, too—
It's a far, far cry back to '65
When Uncle Sam's boys wore blue.

THE WORLD'S NEW MORAL WEAPONS.

One Is to Lock Out the Offending Nation, Thereby Pronouncing Upon It a Terrible and Indeterminate Sentence.

By DR. DAVID ORR EDSON
Psychologist.

New York, June 21, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Civilization, which is but the question of mental procedure vs. physical force, is now before us for a final determination—at least so far as our generation is concerned. One force or the other is about to be restandardized for perhaps another century. Which?

I do not prognosticate dire results to follow either this or that line of procedure. I only call to mind materials of thought which escape the average thinker. It seems almost impossible for the individual to see new material in a new event. Just as soon as he is thrust into a situation which threatens his own welfare, he becomes so prejudiced in favor of the old materials with which he achieved his survival in the past that he is utterly blinded to the new materials which are ever coming to the front for the reason of the law of progress.

If we are to prepare physical force to back our desires we should bear in mind that, though we do this with the most commendable spirit, the end we seek to achieve may not eventuate. The winning of a fight is still determined by the materials of a fight. What then? Well, we may lose! That is exactly what may befall any undertaking. Nevertheless, I find that the average "preparedness mind" has given this possible alternative not the slightest thought. To be prepared—to him—is actually to win, without the fight. Nor will he give the slightest consideration to the thought of the other fellow's preparedness. What about our physical preparedness when the other fellow is willing to prepare right down to personal and family poverty? This is, indeed, the path which preparedness must be ready to travel, once it is established as a method of procedure.

On the other hand, within the last one hundred years or so, there has grown into civilization, through peaceful procedures, materials which in having been exercised to mutual advantage have become necessities, and compulsive necessities at that, namely, international relationships. They have been so elaborated as to leave nations utterly inadequate to cope with their own necessities. International relationships are compulsory.

Also, within these last one hundred years or so, there has been elaborated in the mind of man, in consequence of these international compulsions, a punishment far more intolerable than can be inflicted by any means of physical torture. It is a form of automatic reaction—mental in procedure—and the offender is powerless against it. It not only fastens its tentacles upon the disadjuster, but may become a thing of inheritance. Heretofore, to be "locked up" for violations of the rules of the game of life was considered the very end-product of social punishment. But now there is a greater one—elaborated out of international co-ordination, to wit: To be "locked out." To be "locked out" is indeed an indeterminate sentence, and one which may not be brought to any court for readjustment or liberation.

It was with this quality of mental stuff that President Wilson forced Germany to abandon her submarine procedure. This is the quality of material that has been standardized in the halls of learning. Along these lines I could enumerate hundreds of like compulsions with which the human mind is unable to contend. To give the death thrust to an adversary fighting with these materials is, first of all, to destroy one's self. The pacifist is no coward, nor is he a laggard. He merely says that to fight along these lines may be to lose. That is a result, however, quite as possible with physical preparedness, while to win would be an achievement worthy of the twentieth century, and not at all beyond the realms of possibility.

Civilization has been achieved by the few over the many. It must not be forgotten that the propagation of civilization in this twentieth century of ours depends utterly upon a drafting from the many a sufficient number of recruits each year, to swell the ranks to a greater proportion. In short—in this period of 1916—this means that the profits derived from civilized procedures must be extended yearly to include a greater number. And this in turn means policing the game, not merely to punish infractors, but to see to it that the rewards are fairly distributed. Police the game, by all means, but not by physical prowess alone. Physical force must gradually be shunted from muscle to brain cells, for the reason that the division of spoils is then more equitably distributed. This leads to greater achievements.

This is not a country of blood-strain, as are England and France and Germany and Russia and Italy. This is a land of escape from physical arbitration—a land where mental achievement may claim its reward unhampered by such hereditary prejudices. The war now being waged in the old country, no matter the complex reasons of cause, is producing effects of tremendous dissatisfaction. The reward is bound to be infinitesimal when compared with the loss. It is almost a foregone conclusion that the influx of aliens into this country following the return of peace will be enormous, owing to the desire to escape the suffering which will fall upon those who have to pay the price of war.

It seems to me quite stupid for the United States to prepare for physical war in the face of the fact that Europe is destroying her war materials—men, wealth, and the desire for war. In doing this we are but shifting the balance, see-saw fashion, to this continent. It requires a great deal of courage for a man to enter a room unarmed where gun-play holds forth, yet it is a well-known fact that he who does so holds more dynamic weight for the settlement of the dispute than one who enters bristling with armament.

GERMANY'S MILK PROBLEM.

The Scanty Supply a Cause for Fear and Speculation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The main interest about the food question in Europe is the indication it gives that a shortage of certain foodstuffs, such as milk and fat, is likely to prove the deciding factor in the war. It is scarcely too much to say that Germany's present position with regard to the food supplies of her workers and growing population stultifies her offensive preparations for further conquest. What, it may be asked, is the use of a military system, however well devised and equipped, unless the country which it exists to defend is able to feed it? What should we think of the offensive position of an army which has to draw the greater part of its food supplies from the resources of its reserve population, the workers and growing males? It is very easy to see that from time to time the German Government is being invited to face the cold and raw fact of its gradually increasing dependence on the foreigner for the prime necessities of life. The dependence on foreign supplies is likely to prove the last act in the drama, for France and England, as well as Switzerland and Holland, are suffering from high prices and shortage of food.

Figures given by an expert, writing in L'Economiste Français of May 13, 1916, show that the stock of fat and milk is steadily shrinking. At the present moment a great many of the French people are dependent on cocoa and chocolate for their supply of fat, and so great is the lack of milk that the Journal d'Agriculture Pratique of Feb. 10, 1916, advises the French to use butter-milk, which is made on a great scale from whole milk, much of which is consumed by the sick, the babies, and those who can afford to buy it.

The gravity of the milk shortage in Germany is not fully realized in this country. Perhaps it will not be realized until the pinch in Germany grows too severe for the constancy of the people. So far, the supply of milk has not failed in a sensational way. But interference with production, such as easily happens in the confusion and disturbance of war conditions, has created terrible public anxiety. By reading between the lines of the brief published announcements of Dr. von [illegible], Curator of the Auguste Victoria Haus in Berlin—announcements published regularly in the Zeitschrift fuer [illegible]—it clearly appears that there is great distress in poor families and in what are called "military families"—that is, families whose male members are at the front or doing garrison duty. But it is necessary to look closely to realize that the direst human suffering is taking place. For in the tumult of such a battle as is going on now in the political and military world the faint voice of starving families fails to penetrate. Yet it is human, aye, child material that the battle in Europe is warping and twisting and wrecking all the time. It is mothers with all their burden of responsibility who are being starved; it is children who are dying or whose strength is being sapped. This aspect of the case is clear to all those who read German literature and make a point of studying all sides or weighing the pros and cons, without which no one can arrive at a just conclusion.

For these reasons the question of milk is more vitally important to all Germans than the question of bread and potatoes. For many months past Germans have been more conscious than ever that the needs of their children come before any other claims. Hence, the supply of milk deserves the most careful consideration. In the first place, babies cannot thrive without fat, and milk affords the only way in which fat can be administered to very young children. Milk is therefore enormously valued, both as a food and for general use, as a source of fat. A shortage of milk leaves a serious gap in the nutrition of babies, and even whole milk, if it is of inferior quality, is not equal to the required purpose. Owing to the shortage of fodder there has been a decided drop in the quality of milk and a corresponding loss in fat. The German Government has been keeping its eyes on this problem and has tried to solve it in various ways. Thus it is known that fruits contain fat, and, accordingly, the Minister of Education has issued a decree in the Ministerialblatt fuer Landwirtschaft that the older school children should aid in collecting the harvest of fruit. The announcement runs: "Owing to the shortage of fats this year, every effort should be made to find a possible substitute."

The shortage of fodder is also a matter which presses hardly on the people. Professor Bongert, in the Zeitschrift fuer Fleisch- und Milch-Hygiene, advises farmers to use sedge and seaweed in the feeding of cattle. The seaweed is freed from its salt by careful washing in fresh water. Professor Schwabe, in an article in the Berliner Tierärztliche Wochenschrift of April 6, suggests the use of a meal made from heath or sweet broom. Judging from the reports this meal is most useful, but the price of it is high.

It is worth while to press these points hard, for the one hope of a happy issue of the war lies in a correct appreciation of the facts.

Helping Our Own Wounded.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want you to know of the continuing interest in the letter you published stating that it would be a pleasure for me to act as almoner for any who wished to add to the comfort and contentment of the men who have been brought sick and wounded to the base hospital here. So generous has the response been that we have placed electric fans in all of the wards where the seriously sick men are, given hand fans and fly swats to all who can use them, furnished a splendid supply of grape juice, lime juice, lemons and oranges for refreshing drinks, given tobacco and cigarettes to all who have been for any time, for any reason, without funds, and have supplied the recreation room with an abundance of magazines and over two hundred choice bound novels. We are not duplicating anything that the Government supplies, just giving that touch which will make men feel that their services on the border are appreciated by friends at a distance. We are stressing a little on having things for special diets, and so have sent generous lots of ice cream, strawberries, cantaloupes, dainty cakes, &c., sometimes enough for the whole four hundred patients.

It has been a joy to us to act for these good people, and in every case a personal note of gratitude has been written. We believe this work is keeping some men true and strong and steady, and is the means of helping many a lad over a rough place. A little personal touch of sympathy goes a long way when one is so far from home and loved ones.

Efficiency of Colored Soldiers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The communication of Charles S. Swift in THE TIMES has attracted my attention, and just a word, if I may, to indorse his every word concerning the admission of a colored regiment into the New York National Guard. After their record in the civil war, especially with the colored soldiers therein, why can there be any doubt about them? As an officer of both white and colored regiments, wounded twice in different engagements in the last-mentioned service and having had some part in the organization of the Corps d'Afrique in Louisiana under General Banks in 1863, I have wondered why there were none in the State service. The Eighty-first U. S. C. T., in Louisiana, commanded by Colonel Charles B. Gaskill, now of Niagara Falls, challenged any regiment, white or black, in the Gulf Department to make as good a showing in regimental or company drill, but none accepted the challenge of the Eighty-first.

"Pershing's Position."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to speak in high praise of your editorial, "Pershing's Position." It is a mistake, from any point of view, to keep that force down in the interior of Mexico, where it now is. It is not hunting bandits and is apparently not doing half the service it might if stationed along the border, where it could prevent and punish raids. Seems to me it is President Wilson's stubbornness that keeps it so far down in Mexican territory, while it ought to be on the border for both military and moral reasons, as your editorial says.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN.

MISS TREGO, BRIDE OF H. P. BALLANTYNE

Garden Effect in Church of Heavenly Rest at Wedding of Mrs. A. B. Hilton's Daughter.

ARCHWAY OF PINK ROSES

Brother of Bridegroom Is Best Man—Reception for 200 Guests in the Gotham Ballroom.

The wedding of Howard Pierce Ballantyne of Grosse Point, Mich., and Miss Barbara Isabel Trego, a daughter of Mrs. Albert B. Hilton of Hill Crest, Port Chester, N. Y., by her first husband, was celebrated at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, by the Rev. Herbert Shipman, the rector.

The church was decorated to give a garden effect. The sides were filled in with towering palms, and an archway of pink rambler roses outlined the entrance to the nave, while eight-foot standards wound with smilax and pink rambler roses supported huge clusters of shaded pink peonies, and the chancel was banked with giant palms and rose trees. Large plaques of roses and peonies were arranged against the pillars of the church, which were wound with smilax and rambler roses.

The bride walked with her stepfather, Colonel Albert B. Hilton. She wore a short skirt of many layers of white tulle with hip pannier hoops and an overdress of white satin cut in rounded points. The corsage was formed of rose point; the tulle top embroidered in pearls with short tulle sleeves, and the girdle of pearls. The train was made of yards and yards of tulle arranged in full close folds, over which fell the narrow panel veil of point lace, held close to her forehead by orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley and orchids and wore the bridegroom's gift, a diamond bracelet.

The maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Terhune, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Dorothy and Elizabeth Davidge, wore frocks of palest cream-colored net and lace over rose-tinted cloth of silver, with flowing tulle sleeves. Miss Terhune's gown was flounced with lace and sprays of roses were garlanded in it. Their large hats were pale rose-colored taffeta and their flowers were clusters of deep pink roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Howard Bissell, and the assistant matrons, Mrs. Lloyd P. Jones and Mrs. Frederick Tanner, wore full skirted frocks of rose colored chiffon over silver lace petticoats, and full draperies of the rose chiffon fell from the centre back of the cut-out corsage to the hem, clusters of pink buds set in silver holding them in place. Their large hats were rose colored taffeta and tulle to match, rolled at the left back and all carried clusters of purple lavender and purple orchids and maiden hair ferns.

Ford Ballantyne, a brother of the bridegroom, was his best man, and the ushers were Albert Carroll Trego, a brother of the bride; Albert B. Hilton, Jr., F. Kenneth Stephenson, C. Lambert Heyniger, Paul Dickey, J. Sidney Hammond, Grant Peacock, and Lloyd P. Jones, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A reception for 200 guests was held in the Gotham ballroom, which was decorated with bay trees, peonies and rambler roses.

MRS. DREXEL WINS SUIT.

Husband Ordered by English Court to Pay Her $50,000 a Year.

LONDON, June 21.—Mrs. Rita Armstrong Drexel, wife of Anthony J. Drexel, the American banker, obtained a judgment against her husband for a yearly allowance of $50,000 from Justice Neville in the Chancery Court today. When the case was last before the court in December, 1915, Mr. Drexel contested the jurisdiction of the English courts on the ground that he was a resident of France. This point was decided against him and when court opened today the banker's attorney said that as it had been decided that the English courts had jurisdiction he could not defend the case.

Mrs. Drexel separated from her husband in 1911, while they were living in London, and it was announced that she proposed to institute divorce proceedings. These proceedings were dropped when the separation agreement was entered into by which Mrs. Drexel was to receive an annual sum of $50,000 and five policies on the life of her husband, aggregating $300,000, which were to be assigned to a trustee and held for her benefit in the event of the banker's death. In July, 1915, Mr. Drexel filed a suit for a divorce in Paris and stopped the allowance to his wife. The present suit was the result of this action. The Drexels were married in 1886 and have lived abroad for the past twenty years.

Ziegfeld, Jr., Suffers Breakdown.

F. Ziegfeld, Jr., is confined to his home at Hastings-on-the-Hudson suffering from a nervous breakdown. The strain of getting his "Follies" revue ready for production at the New Amsterdam, coupled with his assumption of the management of the Century, in association with Charles Dillingham, brought about his collapse. It is thought that with a few days' rest he will recover.

MORGAN TAPESTRIES SOLD TO MRS. DIXON

Five Famous Gobelins in Art Museum Owned by Daughter of Late G. D. Widener.

$600,000 THE PRICE PAID

The Don Quixote Series, Part of Collection of King of Spain, Designed by Coypel.

The announcement of the continued exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum of Art of many of the tapestries of the Morgan collection which have been purchased by private individuals brings to light the fact of the purchase of one set by a private buyer which had not been previously known. These were the five famous Gobelin tapestries which had been purchased by P. W. French & Co. of Mr. Morgan and sold by the firm to Mrs. Fitz Eugene Dixon of Philadelphia and New York. Mrs. Dixon is the daughter of the late George D. Widener, who with his son lost his life on the Titanic, and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice of New York. The price paid is said to have been $600,000.

The Mazarin tapestry, most magnificent of the Morgan tapestries and world famous, is the property of Joseph E. Widener, uncle of Mrs. Dixon, who also owns the other rare tapestry, "The Crucifixion," at the Museum, which is from the design of Bernard van Orley. Now it is learned that the unique Gobelins are the property of Mrs. Dixon, who, upon the death of her father and brother, came into the former's large property.

There are many interesting features of these Gobelins. They are remarkably decorative, having a rose du Barry background which showed to advantage when they were first hung in the great gray-walled main entrance gallery of the Museum. Others of the Don Quixote tapestries are in notable collections. Among them those of the Kaiser, the Czar, the King of Italy, the Empress Eugenie, the Duke of Richmond, the Duke of Portland, and French National Museum.

The tapestries in the Museum came into Mr. Morgan's hands from the collection of the King of Spain, being part of the estate of his grandfather, Don Francisco de Assissi.

The five Don Quixote tapestries had their first start in the world, in which they have traveled so far, as gifts from King Louis XVI of France, four of them being presented in 1774 to the Archbishop of Rheims, by whom he had been baptized, confirmed and married, and who the year following the gift crowned him. The Archbishop died two years later at the age of 80 and the tapestries were sold in Paris with the furnishings of his house.

One of the tapestries was presented in 1810 by the Emperor Napoleon to the Prince of Hesse-Darmstadt.

The Don Quixote series of tapestries was the most important woven at the factories of the Gobelins in the eighteenth century. All the Don Quixote designs were by Charles Coypel, who made the first in 1714 and the last in 1751. They were never woven as a complete set, but in series of four or five to please a purchaser or the King in making a gift.

This set is the most important of the Gobelins on this side of the water and the first of Charles Coypel's views of the famous Spanish hero to come to America. They show Don Quixote as guided by Folly, mistaking a peasant girl for Dulcinea; paying his respects to the Duchess; served by ladies, and the last is the departure of Sancho—Don Quixote's squire— for the Island of Barataria.

All the tapestries are signed, the first by Nielson, 1783; the last by Audran, 1773, and the others by Cozette, 1773. The frames of the tapestries are interestingly done in flowers, peacocks, and animals—monkeys, dogs, and sheep—by the two artists of flowers and animals, Fontenay and Desportes.

SAYS IRISH REBELS ARE FIGHTING AGAIN

Sympathizer Hears of Renewed Conflict on a Large Scale, but Spellissey Doesn't Believe It.

A prominent New York sympathizer with the Irish revolutionary movement told a TIMES reporter last night that he had received private information that revolts had again broken out in Ireland on a larger scale than any since the seizing of the Dublin Post Office, and that within the last two days the Irish situation had again assumed a very serious aspect.

The man who made this statement refused to permit the use of his name or to give details, but said that the news would come through in time. He added that forces of the Irish Volunteers, the Citizens' Republican Army and the Sinn Fein were now in conflict with the British troops in various parts of Ireland. A great many arrests had been made, he said, and a large number of the populace had been wounded and removed to hospitals.

He also said that the "real facts" concerning the late Dublin fighting were only now beginning to come through by secret channels.

"I have learned from a man who witnessed the rebellion in Dublin and its suppression, and who visited most of the places where conflicts took place," he said, "that the British, by a conservative estimate lost not less than 2,700 men, although they have asserted a loss of only 500.

"An interesting incident which has reached my ears concerns the death of the writer, Sheehy Skeffington. I am told that when he was condemned to be shot that he asked that no Irish soldiers be picked to shoot him; but that his wish was disregarded and an Irish firing squad was chosen to do the work. When they shot, I am told, they aimed in the air. A squad of English soldiers was then picked and the execution dispatched."

At the office of David A. Spellissey of 257 Broadway, who has been understood to be in touch with the disaffected Irish, it was said that Mr. Spellissey believed the report of a new revolt to be the fabrication of one who, he said, had been proved a fraud. Mr. Spellissey was reported by his secretary to have said that the news of a new outbreak was not true.

JOIN IN PRAISING KITCHENER

Asquith and Commons Members Speak—Memorial Is Authorized.

LONDON, June 21.—In moving a resolution authorizing the erection of a memorial to the late Field Marshal Earl Kitchener out of the public funds, with an inscription expressing admiration of the House for his illustrious career and gratitude for his services, Premier Asquith, in the House of Commons today, recalled the recent meeting of Lord Kitchener with Members of the House, which ended in the Field Marshal and his most persistent and irreconcilable critics parting on terms of mutual respect.

When Lord Kitchener said farewell to him after nearly two years of intercourse through all the strain and stress of the war, continued the Premier, there was no thought of anything more than a temporary parting, no foreshadowing of a separation which neither time nor space could bridge.

"Providence," said the Premier, "was preparing for him a sudden relief from the burden of care and toil, and we who shared his counsels in the greatest emergency of our time can only bow our heads before the Supreme Will."

Reviewing Lord Kitchener's career, Premier Asquith said his name was associated inseparably with that of Lord Cromer in one of the greatest achievements of the time—the emancipation and regeneration of Egypt. From Egypt, the Premier went on, Lord Kitchener was called to cope with a great imperial emergency in South Africa, where in due time he brought hostilities to a close and helped lay the foundation of that great and rapidly consolidating fabric which has welded alienated races and given the great conflict of today an example of the services which local autonomy could render to imperial strength.

He brought to his new task, said the Premier, "the same sleepless energy, rare resources, and masterful personality which never failed him. I will only say this: Few men have less reason to shrink from submitting their lives to the pure eye and perfect wisdom of an all-judging God."

Andrew Bonar Law, Minister of the Colonies, seconded the resolution, emphasizing the fact that Lord Kitchener had the fullest confidence of the country. In behalf of labor, George J. Wardle, Labor member for Stockport, paid tribute to the dead soldier. The resolution for the memorial was agreed to.

DANIELS AT EDISON HOME.

Secretary Visited Navy Yard and Wilson Headquarters on Trip.

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was the guest of Thomas A. Edison at the inventor's home in Orange, N. J., last night. Mr. Edison told the Secretary that the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the proposed navy laboratory passed yesterday by the House of Representatives was not enough, and that $2,000,000 would be needed. It was said Secretary Daniels promised to try to have the appropriation doubled when it reached the Senate, and then sent back to the House for concurrence.

Secretary Daniels, after speaking before the convention of the National Editorial Association in this city yesterday, went to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where, in company with Rear Admiral Usher, the Commandant, he inspected several destroyers and the battleships Wyoming, Arkansas, and Texas.

Earlier in the day he was a caller at the new headquarters of the National Democratic Committee on the second floor of the Forty-second Street Building. He inspected the new desks and stenographers and said everything looked shipshape for the campaign to weigh anchor. Vance McCormick, the new National Committee Chairman, Secretary Daniels was told, will come to New York and start the campaign today. Wilbur Marsh, Treasurer of the committee, and Henry Morgenthau, who was Treasurer of the Wilson Campaign Committee four years ago, were at the headquarters yesterday.

DEMAND STEEL FOR EXPORT.

Foreign Orders Stiffen Sluggish Domestic Market.

While buying of steel for domestic use has been sluggish this week, according to reports from leading centres, there has been no let-up in inquiries and purchases for export. The Iron Age says:

> The steel trade is quieter, but the quietness is not undermining prices. Only recently competitive bidding of foreign and domestic buyers was forcing prices up steadily; now the stage is reached when export demand is of more consequence than that at home.
>
> The fact that more steel in certain forms is available for early shipment is attracting attention. There is some reselling of structural steel by fabricators who bought speculatively in part. Added to this are offerings of Bessemer bars and shapes at 2.50c., Pittsburgh, for early delivery, and the marketing of considerable quantities of rejected munition steel in the form of ingots, billets, and bars. At the same time the falling off in new inquiry has restricted the market for steel at premium prices.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> Export pig iron business has come to the front more prominently and a heavy tonnage of sales for foreign account was put through this week. Italy has been the largest buyer, taking 50,000 tons or more of Bessemer iron from Eastern and Valley makers. New inquiry is coming out freely.

John C. Gulick.

John C. Gulick, a lawyer in this city for many years, died on Tuesday at his home, 331 West Twenty-second Street. He was 64 years old. He was a graduate of the College of the City of New York, class of 1872, and of the Columbia University Law School. The funeral services will be held at the home at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

1,000 AT A DINNER CHEER PRESIDENT

Malone's Call Gets Outburst of Patriotism from Piano Dealers and Wives.

LOYAL SUPPORT PLEDGED

Demonstration Follows Receipt of News That Pershing's Men Had Been in a Fight.

Following an appeal by Collector of the Port Dudley Field Malone to set aside partisanship and stand unitedly behind President Wilson in the present Mexican crisis, 1,000 men and women attending the annual dinner of the National Association of Piano Merchants of America, at the Hotel Astor last night, arose from their chairs and cheered the President lustily, the demonstration ending with the orchestra playing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

John G. Corley, the retiring President of the association, who acted as toastmaster, just before introducing Mr. Malone as one of the speakers of the evening had told the diners of a reported clash between General Pershing's force and Mexican regulars, this serving to stimulate the patriotism of the assemblage.

Mr. Malone read the instructions given to the new American Minister to Mexico by President Lincoln more than fifty years ago, and compared President Wilson's attitude toward Mexico as having been identical with Lincoln's. It was then that the applause came.

The speaker pleaded for a united country in the President's effort to restore peace and order in the southern republic.

General Wood a Speaker.

Major Gen. Wood, Commander of the Department of the East, who arrived late, told the diners that they were of the kind wanted at the country's "Plattsburghs."

"We want the men, and we want the women, too," said the General.

He reminded his hearers that no kind of commercial business could be carried on to success without due preparedness, and added:

"We don't want war. Army officers who know are opposed to war, but it usually comes with nobody wanting it. It is time for plain speaking and none should be deceived by silly and deluded statements regarding our ability to ward off attack without due preparation. Try to get away from the Fourth of July orator, who usually explodes a lot of buncombe. Look matters squarely in the face, with the recollection that we are coming to an age of competition with our equals. We all take out accident and life insurance policies as individuals. The pressing need at the present time is to take out a national policy in the form of preparedness, not overlooking that the highwayman is still abroad."

Preceding the speaking, the New York Telephone Company put its transcontinental line into operation. A receiver was placed at each diner's plate. The demonstration opened with a roll call of the wire chiefs in charge of the transcontinental line in New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City, Winnemucca, Nev., and San Francisco. Following this, officials of the telephone company and of the association exchanged greetings. The surf of the Pacific Ocean breaking on the rocks in San Francisco Bay was distinctly audible to the diners, as were musical selections played in the Pacific Coast metropolis.

Three Conventions at Once.

More than 1,000 delegates thronged the eighth floor of the Hotel Astor yesterday morning, when two of the three conventions of musical instrument men began their annual meetings. The organizations convening yesterday were the National Piano Manufacturers' Association and the National Association of Piano Merchants. B. H. Janssen of New York, President of the first-named organization, presided, while J. G. Corley, as executive, acted in a similar capacity for the merchants.

Both associations gave formal approval to the so-called "Klugh plan" which comprehends an amalgamation of all musical instrument trade interests into a central body to be known as the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce.

The National Piano Travelers' Association, at its convention today at the Astor is expected also to formally indorse the project. Like action by the sheet music dealers and publishers is scheduled at today's meetings. President Corley said to a TIMES reporter that the new chamber of commerce would represent American capital, equipment, and output, aggregating $700,000,000.

Both Mr. Janssen and Mr. Corley, in their reports, saw prosperity ahead for the musical instrument trade, it being agreed that more pianos and player pianos will be sold this coming Fall than ever before. Some manufacturers reported having advanced their wholesale prices from $5 to $25, while others announced their intention of doing so without delay. Scarcity of materials, especially steel, was given as the cause.

Percy S. Foster, Secretary of the Merchants' Association, said in his report that 364,000 pianos and player-pianos were made in the United States in 1909 and but 325,000 in 1914. Conditions, he said, were now nearly normal. Upright pianos fell in output in those five years from 321,000, valued at $48,000,000, to 227,000, valued at $31,000,000. President Corley scored deception and misleading advertising and told of the steps taken to drive out fakers in the business.

The National Association of Piano Merchants elected the following officers: President, J. A. Turner, Tampa, Fla.; Vice Presidents—Edmund Gram, Milwaukee, Wis., and D. J. Nolan, Cleveland; Secretary, Percy S. Foster, Washington, and Treasurer, Carl A. Droop, Washington.

The new officers for the National Piano Manufacturers' Association included President, E. B. Bartlett, Ohio; Vice Presidents—J. A. Coffin, New York, and Paul B. Klugh, Illinois; Secretary, Julius F. Seering, Ohio, and Treasurer, Kirkland H. Gibson, Massachusetts.

The business of the three conventions will be concluded today, tomorrow being devoted to a sail up the Hudson to West Point on the steamer Albany.

WILSON'S SUFFRAGE VIEWS.

President Again States That Matter Should Be Settled by States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Wilson today again made plain his belief that woman suffrage, for which he has voted in New Jersey, should be settled by the States separately. He stated his position when he was visited today by Mrs. D. E. Hooker of Richmond, Va., a member of many suffrage societies. She asked him to use his influence in behalf of the so-called Susan B. Anthony constitutional amendment and he replied that he could not conscientiously do so.

On leaving the White House, Mrs. Hooker said that she believed the President's refusal to support the amendment would have a material effect on votes this Fall. She said she was herself a Democrat, but she thought the Democratic Party would lose strength, particularly in the suffrage States.

Mrs. Hooker intimated that Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee, would be given an opportunity to express his suffrage views.

BRAVES PROFIT BY THE ILL DESTINY THAT PURSUES GIANTS IN EXTRA-INNING GAMES

EMBATTLED GIANTS HIT BY JINX AGAIN

Extra-Inning Bugaboo Is Still Lively at Polo Grounds, and Braves Win in the Tenth.

GAME PLAYED IN THE RAIN

Downpour Drenches Field, but Umpires Hold Teams to Their Task—The Score Is 5 to 4.

You wouldn't imagine that the Giants could go along forever and ever, losing extra inning games at the Polo Grounds, would you? Well, you're wrong! They can and they do. They lost another ten-inning clash with the Boston Braves at the Polo Grounds yesterday, the mathematics of the controversy assuming proportions of 5 to 4. It wouldn't be overdoing the exigencies of the occasion to remark that it borders on being heart-breaking. At least, it's the limit, and that's plenty. There was to have been a double-header but the second game was postponed.

Most people calculate that it is an evidence of good common sense to come in out of the rain. Not so with umpires—they belong to another species. The rain was coming down in bucketfuls in the eighth and ninth innings, but Umpires Quigley and Byron insisted on keeping the players out in the freshet until the game was finished. It had been raining since the third inning, and the territory in the vicinity of the home plate and the pitcher's box was as muddy and squashy as the swamp back of the old red school house. Feet which ordinarily are of little more than average size acquired real estate and increased in bulk and weight until the players were unable to run. The best they could do was to lumber along at the speed of a gouty man on crutches.

Although it was as dark as a coal wagon driver's face before the first game of the double-header began, a crowd of about 8,000, in raincoats and fully prepared with umbrellas, sat about to watch the aquatic sports. First it began to drizzle, then it rained, and later it poured. Fred Merkle chased after a foul fly from Snodgrass's bat in the seventh inning. He missed the ball and fell on the wet turf, sliding about twenty feet on his well-known back. That classic plunge will qualify him for the final in the dive for distance.

In spite of the impossible conditions, under seas and in the aerial regions, it was an honest-to-goodness ball game. The advantage see-sawed from one team to the other, and the ninth found them deadlocked at 4 to 4. Big Six came into the strife in the ninth and it was off old Matty's pitching that the Braves pounded out their victory in the tenth with a pair of singles and a long sacrifice fly.

The players amused themselves by making mud balls and throwing them at each other. The umpires amused themselves by making the teams play in the rain, and the spectators amused themselves by chuckling at both because they weren't wise enough to go up in the grandstand out of range of the moisture.

One of the reasons the Bostons won was because they had a powderpuff on the bench which they used to powder the bats, while the Giants' bats were wet and slippery with rain. Just what player on the Boston club happened to have a powderpuff in his possession isn't known, but he put it to better use than it had ever been put to before. As for the balls, the players were fortunate to handle them as well as they did, for they were all wet and most of them slippery with mud.

The Giants had a glittering chance in the first inning but made little of it. Burns singled and so did Robertson. Doyle got a pass from Frank Allen and the bases were filled. Kauff grounded to Evers, who tossed to second, forcing Doyle. Burns romped home and Davey Robertson approached third base like the Black Diamond express going past a flag station. Manager McGraw, coaching at third, gave Davey the high sign to put on the brakes, but instead, Robertson threw in the high speed and came through just in time to be doubled up at the plate. The fewer remarks about that the better. Fletcher went out at first and ended the inning.

In the third inning, with one out, Burns cracked a triple off the right field wall and scored on Robertson's single. Up to this lap you can readily see that the Giants were winning. But don't be too hasty. Boston took the notion to tie the score in the fourth inning, and this is the way they did it. Maranville struck out and Evers singled to left.

The rain then came to bat, and wasn't retired all the afternoon. Connolly went out at first and Magee singled to right, scoring Evers. Robertson juggled the ball and Sherwood advanced to second, which no one could blame him for doing under the circumstances. Konetchy, the celebrated Greek, slapped a single to left, and Magee came home with the tying count.

The class will now please come to order and listen to something about Hank Gowdy. Hank is the Boston catcher who in a few short years grew up from a bat boy at Columbus, Ohio, to a world's series hero at Boston, Mass. With Fred Snodgrass on first in the seventh Gowdy hoisted a full-grown home run into the right field grandstand and pushed Boston two runs in front.

There is still hope. The Giants woke up with a terrific start in the eighth and balanced the equation again. Rariden got a single and Hunter ran for him. Kocher, batting for Perritt, biplaned to Snodgrass. Without a word of warning Georgie Burns of Utica then jolted the soggy sphere into the stand and the score was 4 all. Allen was derricked from the film and Tom Hughes came along and stopped the proceedings on the spot.

In the first of the ninth it was raining so hard that the players imagined they were under the shower baths in the clubhouse. With Mathewson hurling in that inning Smith doubled to left, with one out. Snodgrass flied to Burns and Gowdy was walked intentionally. Manager McGraw called the attention of the umpires to the fact that it was raining cats and dogs, but umpires, having all the authority of the Czar of Russia, and then some, refused to admit that the sky was even cloudy. Hughes rolled out to first, and the inning was over.

Boston won the game in the tenth, when, with one down, Evers got an infield hit, the ball being so wet and muddy that no one could handle it. Johnny went to third on a single off Connolly's bat, and scored the winning run when Magee lofted a sacrifice fly to Robertson in the right field everglades. The score:

REDS DEFEAT CUBS TWICE.

Double Victory Puts Cincinnati Ahead of Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Cincinnati twice defeated Chicago here today and ousted the Cubs from fifth place. Toney's good pitching in pinches and his own two-bagger, which scored two runs, were factors in Cincinnati's 4 to 3 victory in the first game. A feature was Griffith's throwing Archer out at first on a hit to right field.

Lavender's wildness, Chicago's errors, and Moseley's clever slab work gave the Reds the second game by 3 to 2. The scores:

NO HITS, NO RUNS, YANKEES' PORTION

Foster of the Red Sox Performs Masterly Feat—Donovan's Crew as the Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 21.—Little George Foster, the farmer boy from Oklahoma, pitched a no-hit game here this afternoon against the Yankees, blanking them, 2 to 0.

Not a Yankee got a base until the sixth inning, after one had been retired, when Nunamaker was passed. Foster gave two more passes before the game closed, but had so much stuff and received support of the kind that prevented the New York nine from breaking into the base-hit column.

Donovan's men slammed the ball hard, driving twelve blows far toward the fence, but especially excellent work by the Red Sox outfielders deprived the Yanks of the base hits they were after. Nunamaker was the only Yankee to get to second. He reached that station in the sixth through a pass and a sacrifice by Shawkey.

The fielding of the New York team was perfect. Magee, High, and Gilhooley had plenty to do, and some of their catches were splendid. One of these took place when Magee came in traveling at top speed and with his gloved hand grabbed a liner from Hobby. Gilhooley's big catch was in the sixth, off Lewis. He covered much ground before he got under the drive and then whirled quickly and shot the ball to the plate, but just too late to get Janvrin, who had been on third.

The Red Sox connected with Shawkey for eight hits and Bob escaped trouble several times. He did not pass any of his opponents and would have been very much in the swim but for the fact that his teammates could not get anything through the Red Sox airtight defense.

In the first inning Hooper singled to left and went to second on a sacrifice by Janvrin, Shawkey throwing out the old high school athlete. A single by Lewis scored Hooper and Duffy was nailed trying to steal. When Hooper knocked a double to right field at the start of the third inning it seemed as if Shawkey was in trouble, but Nunamaker picked Harry off second. Lewis cracked out a single in the same inning which surely would have sent Hooper home had he got back to second.

The Red Sox put the other run over in the sixth. With one out, Janvrin tripled to right. Gilhooley came tearing in for the ball, which took a bad bound and rolled past him. Magee recovered it, but Janny had made third and scored when Lewis rapped a long fly to Gilhooley. Gilhooley made a great attempt to catch Janvrin at home, but the ball came in just a bit late. In the ninth inning, after two were out, Hooper and Janvrin got singles, but the great catch by Magee prevented further scoring.

As the game went along and all of the fans became cognizant of the fact that Foster had not allowed a hit interest increased. The fans were speechless at times. In the ninth, when Slim Caldwell was projected into the game as a pinch-hitter for Shawkey, there were sighs. A lot had been read about Slim's ninth-inning drives, and all realized that he has been there with the goods in the pinches. Today there was joy when Foster fanned him. The score:

BROWNS ANNEX TWO GAMES.

Beat White Sox Easily in First, but Second Is Close.

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—St. Louis took both games of a double-header from Chicago here today. The scores were 11 to 1 and 2 to 1. Heavy hitting marked the first game, the locals pounding three pitchers for a total of thirteen hits.

Timely hitting by Pratt and Johnson won the second game, each driving in a run with a two-base hit. In the fifth inning, with one out, Scott weakened and filled the bases, but Russell came to his assistance and struck out the next two batters. The scores:

HARVARD CAPTURES SERIES.

Crimson Nine Takes Second Game from Eli by 4 to 1 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 21.—The Harvard nine cleaned up its series with Yale this afternoon, winning the second battle before its commencement crowd by the score of 4 to 1. Harvard, scoring an easy run in the first inning, never was headed, and, although Yale tied the score midway through the game through errors, the Crimson immediately took up its lead again, and in the sixth inning batted home two runs.

Fred Mitchell, the Crimson coach, sprung a surprise on the followers of Harvard baseball today by sending Carl Harrison o Cincinnati into the box. Harrison was one of the shortstops on the freshman team last year, but this Spring Mitchell has been working hard to make him a pitcher. He pitched on the Southern trip, and finished up a game late in May. Today he appeared in a home game for the first time and pitched through the entire nine innings, allowing Yale only six scattered singles and faltering in only one inning, that in which Yale scored its only run.

Harrison used the spitball continually, and also a drop ball which the Yale batters could not fathom. He had six strikeouts, and was very tight when men were on the bases. Coach Lauder of Yale chose Watrous to pitch. Watrous was the left-hander the Crimson beat on Soldiers' Field last year in the ninth inning. He did not seem to have a great deal, but Harvard made only four hits, one of which, however, came with men on third and second bases and made the game secure. A muff by Yale's shortstop, Johnson, in the first inning made Harvard's start easy; but after that, save for a wild throw by Watrous, Yale played splendid ball.

The game was not very exciting, but was just about as tight as yesterday's at New Haven. Once again Harvard relied on a big inning to put the game away, and tonight George Percy is again a hero, as it was his double in the fifth inning that broke up the tie score and sent Harvard onward at a winning gait.

Yale had several good starts, but two were nipped by double plays in which Bothfeld and Abbot figured. In the first inning, after retiring Yale in order, Harvard broke away with its one-run lead in the following manner: Coolidge waited for a base on balls, and then rushed to third on Nash's sacrifice hit; Abbot also was passed, and, after Harte had fanned, the Harvard runners tried the double steal, which succeeded when Shortstop Johnson muffed Munson's throw, Coolidge scoring.

Only one Yale man reached first base in the first four innings, this being Bush, who hit safely in the second, only to be doubled up on Shepley's liner to Bothfeld. In the fifth Shepley made two bases on Beal's throw past Nash and scored Yale's only run on Armstrong's sacrifice bunt and Early's sacrifice fly.

Then Harvard got this run back at once, Percy making a double, Fripp sacrificing him along, and the run coming in on Bothfeld's deep fly to centre. Harvard made the game sure in the sixth inning. Coolidge started with a hit and Nash sacrificed again, Coolidge then taking third on Watrous's wild throw to catch him napping. Harte was out on a deep fly to Johnson, who threw to the plate while Abbot took second, Coolidge holding third, both runners then counting on Beal's clean hit to centre. The score:

TIGERS IN TIE FOR LEAD.

Defeat Indians Again and Are on Even Terms with Them.

DETROIT, June 21.—Detroit went into a tie for first place with the Cleveland Indians by defeating them here today, 3 to 0. As was the case yesterday, the game was marked by good fielding and pitching. Goveleskie held the visitors to three scattered hits and only two of the Tigers reached second base.

Detroit won the game in the sixth inning. Cobb tripled and scored when Chapman threw Speaker's relay into the Tiger dugout. Veach scored in the same inning on his single, Heilmann's hit, and Burns's out. Cobb also scored the Tigers' run in the eighth inning. He doubled to the right field bleachers and scored on two successive putouts at first. Heilmann's fielding was noteworthy. He cut off several base hits, one of them by Speaker in the ninth inning. TIME OF THAMES RACES IS CHANGED

Entire Schedule of the Harvard-Yale Regatta Upset by Military Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 21.—At a conference of the representatives of Yale and Harvard held at the latter's 'Varsity quarters late this afternoon and attended by Captains Low and Morgan Coach Herrick, Manager Felton, and official Referee W. A. Meikleham, the following statement was given out for publication when the meeting adjourned:

"At a meeting held this afternoon between the Yale and Harvard university crew representatives and the referee of the races, it was unanimously decided that, owing to the probability of a postponement of the morning races and the danger of a further postponement until Saturday, and in view of the fact that certain members of the crews must report for military service not later than Friday night, the hours for rowing the morning races should be changed and the freshman race be rowed at 9:30 A. M. down stream on the lower two miles and the second 'Varsity at 10 A. M. over the same course.

"If either or both of these races cannot be rowed at these hours either or both will be rowed at any hour, either up stream or down stream, at the discretion of the referee, up to 12 noon. If either or both cannot be rowed in the morning either or both postponed races will be rowed not later than 4:45 P. M. down stream on either the upper or the lower course, at the discretion of the referee.

"At the meeting it was decided that the 'Varsity race should be rowed down stream at 5:45 P. M. Yale and Harvard very much regret this change from the original program, but have deemed it absolutely necessary on account of the orders which members of the crews have received to report for military duty not later than Friday night."

After the meeting Referee Meikleham said he was going to confer with F. Valentine Chappell, Chairman of the New London Regatta Committee, and ascertain what arrangements the railroad companies could make to conform to the new schedule of races. The schedule as it now stands upsets the entire program, which up to this afternoon was as follows:

"'Varsity eight-oared, starting off Bartletts, finishing at the drawbridge. Second 'Varsity eight-oared, starting at drawbridge, finishing off Navy Yard; start at 10:30 A. M. Freshman eight-oared, starting at drawbridge, finishing off Navy Yard. Start at 11 A. M."

It will be noticed that the 'Varsity race, according to the new schedule is at 5:45 P. M., a half-hour later than originally planned. Railroad officials were busy late tonight making up new schedules for race day trains, the eleventh-hour proclamation from the Yale and Harvard representatives coming upon them unexpectedly.

The oarsmen affected by the military call are Hadley and Gilfillan in Yale's junior 'Varsity and Parkman in Harvard's freshman eight.

The first race on the Thames River course this season between Yale and Harvard will be the freshman four-oared crews, who will struggle one mile for honors about 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The crews will be boated as follows:
Yale—Bow, Randall; 2, Cobb; 3, Walker; stroke, Enders; coxswain, Grieb.
Harvard—Bow, Cobb; 2, Freeman; 3, Brewer; stroke, Canfield; coxswain, Mitchell.

The two Eli 'Varsity crews were given very light practice this evening, paddling only a mile down the stream and back to the boat house. The freshmen did not launch their shell. While the oarsmen were on the river it rained in torrents, and the easterly wind was cold and penetrating.

It was so damp and disagreeable around Harvard's boat house, Coach Herrick told the second 'Varsity men to take refuge in the freshman quarters for half an hour while they were awaiting their turn to practice. The Crimson 'Varsity crew was on the course for about half an hour this evening, paddling scarcely two miles and returning to quarters.

There was some doubt today whether the graduate oarsmen's eight-oared race would be rowed tomorrow afternoon after the four-oared event. This evening Yale reported a crew would probably be mustered and Harvard feels quite certain she can get an eight to meet it. The distance is scheduled for half a mile, as a longer distance might cause a collapse of some of the veteran athletes, who have long since broke training.

SEEK CLAY COURT HONORS.

Many Ranking Players in Title Tourney at Lakewood, Ohio.

An entry of unusual strength is indicated in the tournament for the clay court championship of the United States, which will begin on the courts of the Lakewood Tennis Club, Lakewood, Ohio, Saturday. It is practically assured that all of the title holders will defend, and the list of aspirants for the honors holds promise of some keen play on the courts. R. Norris Williams, the singles champion, has reconsidered his early announcement that he would not compete at Cleveland. George M. Church and Dean Mathey, the doubles champions, will defend in the challenge round, and Church will also play in the singles competition. The women's singles champion, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, will play through in defense of her title.

Among the entrants in men's doubles are George M. Church and Dean Mathey of this city, Edward R. McCormick and Eugene A. Warren of Los Angeles; H. V. D. Johns and Willis Davis of San Francisco; Albert T. Spalding and T. W. Hendrick of Buffalo, H. T. Emerson and R. A. Holden of Cincinnati, R. A. Johnson, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Brooke Martin, Canton; W. S. McEllroy and C. S. Garland, both of Pittsburg, and the Japanese stars, Kumagae and Mykami, who have left California, planning to compete in this tournament.

WANT STADIUM FOR MEET.

Eyes of A. A. U. Officials on Lewisohn Athletic Field.

A special committee of the Metropolitan Association, A. A. U., consisting of President Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary Andrew F. Tully, John P. Boyle, Pastime A. C.; A. J. Barrett, Irish-American A. C., and C. D. Bergen, Pennant A. C., called upon President Sidney E. Mezes of the City College yesterday to ascertain why the Lewisohn Stadium and Athletic Field cannot be used for athletic purposes, for which it was built, and to request permission to hold the Metropolitan Association senior track and field championships there on Aug. 26.

President Mezes informed the committee that, owing to the fact that the Board of Estimate had not made any appropriation for the up-keep and equipment of the stadium, it would not be available for athletics. President Mezes assured the committee that he was heartily in favor of having this athletic field made available for public use, and had made every effort to have the city make an appropriation, but that, as the efforts had been unsuccessful up to date, the authorities had been compelled to resort to renting the field and stadium for theatrical performances and moving picture shows in order to pay for the up-keep of the stadium.

An issue of special revenue bonds has been applied for by the Board of Trustees of City College. In making this application to the Board of Estimate, the following reasons were set forth by the Trustees: That City College Field and Stadium are neither equipped nor manned for the uses for which they were intended; that ever since the field and stadium were turned over to the college, those connected therewith have sought to obtain revenue from either the field or the stadium without avail; that the funds that have been advanced by Mr. Lewisohn are about exhausted, and no immediate sources of income are in sight, except the prospective arrangement for the leasing of the stadium for the exhibition of moving pictures during the Summer.

It is estimated that $35,858 will be necessary to cover the initial expenses for alterations and permanent equipment necessary to the practical utility of the college field and stadium. It is estimated that an additional $16,110 will be needed to cover the cost of operating the stadium and field as a part of the Department of Hygiene of the college. The sum of $15,510 is estimated as the amount required for annual maintenance. A resolution is now before the Board of Aldermen calling for an appropriation for revenue bonds to cover these amounts. Unless these appropriations are made it is likely that within a week contracts will be made whereby moving picture concerns or an operatic concern will make use of the stadium and field.

TO DECIDE ON REFEREE.

Representatives of Dillon and Moran Will Meet Today.

Ike Dorgan, representing Frank Moran; Sam Narburger, manager of Jack Dillon, and Harry Pollok, director of the Washington Park Sports Club, will meet today to select a referee for the Moran-Dillon contest which takes place at Washington Park next Thursday night. Fred Wenck, Chairman of the Boxing Commission, will attend the conference.

Moran, who is training at White Sulphur Springs, N. Y., sent word yesterday that he had no particular choice, but would be pleased if Bill Brown were elected. It was Bill Brown who refereed when Moran knocked out Jim Coffey. Dillon, who comes from the West, has suggested either Ed Smith of Chicago or Mat Hinkel of Cleveland. The latter holds a New York State license. The club itself will suggest either John McAvot of Brooklyn or Billy Roche.

Moran telephoned from White Sulphur Springs last night that he had put in another strenuous day of work in the open air. Dillon worked as usual at Washington Park in the presence of a great crowd, despite the rain. Dillon boxed with Joe Cox and Gus Christie.

Roly Takes Long Beach Handicap from Short Grass and Chicle, Both English Bred.

In spite of the unfavorable weather conditions at the Jamaica track yesterday the sport was above the average and the program offered by the club had features which afforded some good racing. The Long Beach Handicap was the main attraction of the card, an event for 3-year-olds and upward over a mile and a furlong route. All ten entries went to the post.

With but a scant head to spare, Roly, from the stable of David Leary, won this event, with the imported Short Grass second, two lengths in front of Harry Payne Whitney's Chicle, another English thoroughbred. Louis Feustel's He Will, the first choice, came in fourth.

The Whitney colors were the first to show in front, Chicle going to the head of the field immediately after the barrier was sprung, closely followed by He Will and Flying Fairy. The others were away in a bunch with the winner in seventh position. Short Grass was almost the last to get started and trailed the other contestants for the first half mile.

Chicle not only made the early pace, but was still in the lead at the last furlong, and for a time it looked as if the Whitney colt might win the race. But both Roly and Short Grass had made up a lot of ground and they gradually drew up on the leader. Chicle made a game effort to stave off the challenge but lacked the necessary staying power, and the winner, for the first time during the race, went in front a few yards before they came to the judges' stand, to win by a short head from the Herz entry. He Will, which hovered between second and third place in the early part of the race, stopped in the last sixteenth.

Mr. Foster, one of the old-timers, who owned the winner of the Brooklyn Handicap in 1894, (Dr. Rice,) saw his colors come down in front yesterday when Balgee captured the event for four-year-olds and upward, a selling affair at a mile and seventy yards. The winner was slow to get away and started by getting into a pocket, but Lyke soon extricated him from this difficulty and he raced around his field, coming into the stretch to close in resolute fashion and outstay Monocacy.

Talbott's old campaigner had a rough journey all through the race, and, to make matters worse, although he came in second, was disqualified by the officials for swerving at the turn and carrying Ray o' Light out with him. The latter was awarded the place, which enabled Lucky George, who ran fourth, to get into the money. Cliff Haven was expected to go the route, but he failed absolutely, and virtually stopped after covering a little more than six furlongs. Of the twelve entries, ten went to the post.

The Brighton Stable's Yellowstone scored impressively in the opening race, an event for two-year-olds at five furlongs. The winner was a strong favorite, and, in spite of a poor start, came on to win comfortably by a length from Amalgamator, which was the same distance ahead of Richard T. Wilson's Killdee. Nearly three minutes' delay was caused at the post by Amalgamator's bumping into Killdee, with the result that the latter was almost knocked to his knees and J. McTaggart, the rider, was thrown from the saddle. After once getting away Killdee and Chatterbox made the early running. Yellowstone broke last and trailed until the turn for home, then came on with a fine turn of speed to dispose of both of them.

The Rock Sand colt, Half Rock, did not have to be driven very hard to obtain the honors in the event for maidens and winners of one race. The youngster was the favorite, and after the first mile never left the issue in doubt. For a time he was pursued by Dorcas.

POLO PONIES IN DEMAND.

Eighteen Mounts Bring $12,195—Top Price, $1,800, for Wonder.

Eighteen polo mounts, the property of Joseph B. Thomas, Joshua Crane, Paul D. Mills, and John R. Fell, the latter two of Philadelphia, were sold at auction yesterday afternoon in the sale ring of Van Tassel & Carney. The eighteen brought an aggregate of $12,195, an average of $677 a head.

The top price, $1,800, was paid by Earl Hopping for Wonder, an Irish bred mount, belonging to J. B. Thomas. Wonder was used by Monte Waterbury in the practice games preliminary to the international matches in 1913. J. S. Phipps bought Brazos, a Texas bred pony, which was played by both Louis Stoddart and Lawrence Waterbury in the contests against England in 1913. Thomas Hitchcock paid $1,325 for Red Light, another mount coming from the same part of the country and which has seen service in the practice matches in preparation for the invasion of the English team.

One of the best mounts in the stable of Joshua Crane, Roulette, was sold to H. J. Duncombe for $1,450. This mare is registered in the stud books of England and America, and, according to her former owner, was one of the best ponies he has ever played.

BROWN WINNER OF GOLF MEDAL

BROWN MEDALIST IN HUDSON RIVER GOLF

Finishes Brilliantly Despite the Rain, and Turns In a Card of 75.

CONNOLLY THREE BEHIND

Defending Champion, Who Makes a 78, to Meet Brown In Match Play Today.

Charles H. Brown of the Hudson River Country Club won the medal in the qualifying round of the Hudson River golf championship played over the links of his home club yesterday, with a card of 40—35—75. Brown, who was the titleholder in 1909, was closely pursued by S. D. Connolly of Rockland, the defending champion, who finished three strokes behind the medal winner.

As Connolly played his round in the morning and Brown finished his in the rainstorm of the late afternoon, it might be said that the pursuit was in the other direction, except for the fact that the defending champion's card showed him several strokes in the lead when Brown had reached the tenth hole. From this point on Brown began to play his best golf, took a fine 35 for the inward journey, and made his task comparatively easy.

Fifty starters teed up in the annual tournament, some in the morning and some in the rain. Three sixteens qualified, and two lonesome players were left out in the cold, with no one to play with them in a fourth sixteen. Three golfers tied for last place in the championship division, and they have been invited by the committee to arise somewhat early this morning to settle the dispute as to which is of championship calibre, and which two just happened in by chance.

Stuart Connolly got up bright and early to defend his title, and when he turned in his card of 78 it appeared for the greater part of the day as though he had jeopardized his chances of retaining his title in the match play rounds by winning the medal in the qualifying round. The heavy rain that he encountered at the turn, however, reminded Brown so much of the metropolitan championship at Nassau that he began to play championship golf and to hole out on several greens in a stroke under par.

He ran down a putt for a 3 on the uphill eleventh, and merrily pitched over the bunker for a 2 on the short thirteenth. A 4 on the long fourteenth materially aided in keeping down his total, and his only real mistake was an extra shot that he took on the seventeenth. His card was as follows:

Out	4	5	4	7	5	5	3	3	4—40
In	5	3	5	2	4	4	4	5	3—35	—75

Match play round will begin this morning. It has happened by the luck of the draw that Connolly, defending champion, and Brown, runner up last year and medalist this year, will come together this morning in the first round of match play. The summaries:

Championship Division.—C. H. Brown, Hudson River, 40, 35—75; S. D. Connolly, Rockland, 39, 39—78; A. L. Sands, Dutchess, 43, 37—80; S. P. Emerick, Hudson River, 42, 38—80; E. B. OLIVER WINS ON LINKS.

Pittsburgh Golfer Beats E. J. Ridgeway at Hot Springs, Va.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., June 21.—The first rounds of match play for men and women were played today in the tournament of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests at Hot Springs. Play was in five sixteens for men, and in three eights for women.

A. K. Oliver of Pittsburgh, last year's champion, was in good form, playing a round in 76 and beating his partner, E. J. Ridgeway of New York, by 3 and 1. Other interesting matches in the first sixteen were those in which T. R. Brown of Scarsdale, beat D. M. Parker of Garden City, 4 and 3, and in which Z. T. Miller of Apawamis, beat W. L. Crocker of Boston, 6 and 5.

There were a number of thirty-six-hole matches in which the players tied in eighteen holes this morning and played out eighteen holes this afternoon. Of these, Dr. F. M. Edwards of Columbus, Ohio, beat R. C. Hollis of Scarsdale, 1 up; F. H. Sisson of Dunwoodie beat J. F. Mateson of Edgewater Golf, 3 and 2, and H. R. Mallison of New York beat S. R. McKelvie of Lincoln Country, 3 and 2.

Among the winners in the women's round, first eight, were Mrs. W. S. Bird of New York, who defeated Mrs. John Abeel, 2 and 1, and Mrs. H. R. Mallison of New York, who defeated Mrs. L. Hubbs, 5 and 4.

WHEN FATHER MEETS SON.

Many Prominent Golfers In Tourney Between Seniors and Juniors.

Advance reports from Sleepy Hollow indicate that the annual Father and Son golf tournament on Monday will be more of a success this year than ever. Phil Carter, North and South amateur champion, will line up with his father, Dr. Colin S. Carter; Henry J. Topping, winner of the Ardsley and Garden City tournaments, will compete with his father, J. A. Topping; Judge Morgan J. O'Brien will start with his son, and many other famous golfing fathers will bring along the junior members of the family in an endeavor to overtop last year's entry list of ninety-four pairs.

Masterson Becomes a Pro.

Frank Masterson of the New York A. C., once holder of the three-mile junior championship, yesterday turned back his registration card to the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, and henceforth will be listed as a professional. Masterson will coach the athletes of the Swedish-American A. C., a young organization which has a number of likely athletes on its roster.

TROPHY GOES TO MARSTON.

Baltusrol Golfer Defeats Buxton in Lynnewood Hall Final.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 21.—The name of Maxwell R. Marston of Baltusrol is the first to be engraved on the third Lynnewood Hall golf trophy of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club. This afternoon the New Jersey player won the sixteenth annual invitation tournament for that trophy, defeating Cameron B. Buxton of the home club in the final round by the close margin of 2 up and 1 to play.

The match was played over the Nohle course in a steady downpour of rain. Nevertheless, the gallery was large, and the golf was of a high standard.

Marston reached the final by eliminating Hugh L. Willoughby, Jr., the Philadelphia champion, by 2 up and 1 to play in the semi-finals, while Buxton won by the same margin over John G. Anderson, Siwanoy, the runner-up in the national last year.

Buxton played par golf against Marston on the first nine holes in the final match today and led at the turn by 2 up. On the homeward trip Marston was the one to get par figures except on three holes, one of which—the long sixteenth—he negotiated in 4, one under par, while on the twelfth he was a stroke over par, and on the thirteenth picked up after playing his fourth into the creek. Marston's achievement on the sixteenth turned the tide of victory in his favor, and although Buxton battled bravely to equal matters on the seventeenth his putt of ten feet missed the hole by a matter of inches and the match went to the New Jersey contestant. The summary:

Semi-final Round.—M. R. Marston, Baltusrol, defeated H. L. Willoughby, Jr., Merion Cricket Club, 2 and 1; C. B. Buxton, Huntingdon Valley, defeated J. G. Anderson, Siwanoy, 2 and 1.

Final Round.—Marston defeated Buxton, 2 and 1.

WESLEYAN LACKED PUNCH.

Students Surprised at Poor Showing of the Nine.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 21.—The undergraduates of Wesleyan have been much disappointed by the poor showing of the nine this season. In this connection The Argus says in part:

"Starting indoor practice this Spring with six letter men in the line-up and Westcott eligible for slab duty, and fortified by at least three good men from the entering class, the subsequent disastrous baseball season experienced by the Red and Black is indeed hard to account for. Although victories during the season were almost as numerous as defeats, not a single important game was won, and every opponent in the class of colleges to which Wesleyan should belong was able to capture one or two games from the Red and Black. This was in spite of the fact that Wesleyan consistently batted in second or third position among the Eastern colleges and that Westcott's pitching was all season of a high order, while Seeholzer was soon declared eligible to help him out.

"The causes of this disappointing record are hard to analyze. The material was probably as good as any of Wesleyan's opponents had, out of which to build up their teams. The batting of the team was all that could have been asked for, its opponents being outhit in nearly every game. Westcott pitched uniformly excellent ball throughout, while Seeholzer and Du Bois showed flashes of form. Errors, however, coming in bunches at inopportune moments, made good twirling of no avail, while even the strongest batters seemed unable to connect when hits meant runs. In short, the team seemed to lack the old aggressiveness and punch, being conspicuously weak in all departments at critical moments."

A CRACK ALUMNI NINE.

Michigan Graduates Plan to Trounce the College Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 21.—University of Michigan alumni are arranging to give the university baseball team the hardest game of the season on June 28, as one of the features of commencement week at the institution. Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Browns, who was the coach of the Wolverine nine until he took the management of the Browns in hand, has promised to return for the game and act as bench manager for the alumni team.

Players on the alumni team will include John Lavan, the St. Louis shortstop, and George Sisler, one of the stars of the baseball firmament this season. Among the other veterans who will come back for the game are Red Campbell, Fritz Blanding, and Jere Utley, three former 'Varsity pitchers, who are now playing amateur baseball in Detroit, and Pud Rogers and Thurber Davis, star catchers in their day, who will do the receiving. Tom Hughitt and Shorty McMillan will get in the game, with Lavan, as shortstops, the three being the best men Michigan ever had in that position. Spike Dunne, son of the Governor of Illinois, of the 1910 team, will play first base, alternating with Norman Hill, who was captain and first baseman of the 1910 team.

Other players will be Perry McQueen, the 1915 captain, who will play second base, and Lathers and O'Brien, who will perform at the third sack once more. Wendell, captain in 1905; Elmer Mitchell, captain in 1912, and Cory of the 1914 team, will play in the outfield, these alumni making a superlatively strong team for any nine to get away with.

MARIETTE IS TRIED OUT.

Yacht Designed as Rival for Vanderbilt's Vagrant Shows Speed.

Several members of the New York Yacht Club who were at Newport for the week-end witnessed the trial of the new schooner yacht Mariette, just completed by Herreshoff for J. Fred Brown of Boston, and which is fashioned on the lines of Rear Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt's schooner Vagrant. Mariette was built for the express purpose of defeating Vagrant, if possible, and the two are expected to meet in several races off Newport and Marblehead during the coming season.

Mariette, which, like Vagrant, is an auxilliary, made her trial under power over the measured course in Bristol Harbor exceeding a speed of ten miles an hour by three-quarters of a mile. Then she was sent under sail with a good fifteen-knot breeze blowing from the southwest up Narragansett Bay with every stitch of canvas except her foretopsail set, making the run to Newport in time that was satisfactory both to her owner and designer, both of whom were on board.

Some of those who saw the trial think she is a bit faster in stays than the Vagrant, though she is rather lighter in rig as a whole. Running up the bay before the wind she passed everything afloat, and Captain Sherlock then hauled the sheets in and gave her a chance at a broad reach, running her up to Ohio Ledge and then returning to the harbor. She is getting her tuning-up this week and will go East for a few trial races before coming to Newport Harbor to meet Vagrant.

Harvard Harriers to be Ready.

Alfred Shrubb, who coaches the Harvard cross-country team, has ordered all members of the band he will train to report at the Belmont course on Sept. 18, a week before college opens, to get ready to meet Cornell at Ithaca, Nov. 4; Yale, at Cambridge, Nov. 11, and to prepare for the intercollegiates at New Haven on Nov. 25. The most dependable men he has to build up his team from are Captain Bancroft and Whitehouse of '17, King of '18, and Hutchinson of '19, the latter Captain of the freshman team last Fall.

MANY BOATS WILL ENTER OCEAN RACE

Twenty-six Yachts Are to Compete in Run to Block Island on Saturday.

Twenty-six entries have been received for the first of the long-distance yacht races of the year from this port. These are named for the run from Whortleberry Island to the west harbor of Block Island, a distance of 100 nautical, or 116 statute miles. Fifteen sail-propelled yachts will compete in the thirteenth annual race of this sort under the management of the yachting department of the New York Athletic Club, and eleven in the ninth annual power boat race, both to be sailed Saturday.

The fleet of sailing yachts will start on their journey at 11 A. M., and with fair winds and tide will reach their destination some time Sunday morning. They will sail in two classes, though the start will be made at the same hour. The first class will be made up of decked, or cabin yachts, of from twenty to thirty-five feet on the load water line, with ten minutes allowance per over-all foot; yawls and auxiliaries, to sail with engines sealed, receiving 5 per cent. additional. Entries for this class with the allowances are:

Yacht and Owner.	Time Allowance.
Adeltha, Spencer & Diem	0:15
Pontiac, W. H. Bowes	1:00
Evelyn, E. H. Potter, 2d	1:20
Nahma, J. F. Duryea	2:30
Mahdeena, W. R. Laidlaw	3:25
La Cubana, W. B. Bronander	3:45
Merry Wing, W. R. Elmer	3:55
Edyth, J. D. Sparkman	4:00
Careless, C. B. Byram	4:05

The second division will be made up of the handicap yachts racing in one division, the entries with their percentage of allowances being W. L. Coursen's Wasaka, 3 per cent.; E. G. Smith's Mignon, 9; W. F. Clarke's Nadia, 10½; H. C. Stone's Santana, 13; Pfeiffer Brothers' Clare, 14, and Commodore Daniel Bacon's Solita, 20.

One hour later, at noon, the express cruisers of between thirty and sixty feet in length over all, will start on their run, which should be finished well before sundown, as better speed than has ever before been made over the course is expected. The entries include Thomas B. Taylor's Vision; W. H. Hand, Jr.'s Countess; E. P. Charlton's Edamena II.; H. F. Gurney's Oriflamme II.; R. E. Slavin's Lady Betty; F. L. Upjohn's Flyaway III., and Captain Horn's Ursula. In the race last year the Flyaway III. covered the course in 5:40, but lost the race on time allowance to Cero, which finished third after Flyaway III. and Intrepid.

The start for the third division, made up of cruisers of less than fifty and more than twenty-eight feet length over all, will be made at 4 P. M., with the following boats named as starters: B. E. Eldredge's Romance, J. H. Wallace's Heather; W. P. Frost's Cero, receiving 5 hours 30 minutes and 32 seconds allowance, and A. E. Luders's Oriana, receiving 5 hours 32 minutes and 49 seconds allowance.

There is considerable disappointment among the motor boat men, in spite of the large entry for the race, over the fact that there are none of the much-talked-about Boston naval patrol squadron boats entered, or any of the new Swasey-designed craft of this type. This is probably due to the fact that the boats are having a practice run with naval destroyers off the Newport practice grounds this week, and have not returned to their base in time to make their entries. Should they show up at the New York Athletic Club's anchorage on Saturday in time to participate they will be allowed to enter the race even though the entries have been closed. Even without them the fleet will be the largest which has ever started in a race of this character.

BIG REGATTA AT ST. PAUL.

Many Power Boats Will Compete in Mississippi Valley Event.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 21.—The annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Asociation this year will attract something like a thousand power boats of all designs and sizes and be by far the biggest thing in the way of a power boat regatta and cruise ever held. On Saturday of this week the first flotilla of boats, made up of several hundred of the slower craft, will start from St. Louis for the trip up the river, arriving at St. Paul on the evening of July 3, after trips varying from sixty-two to eighty-three miles a day. In this party will be Judge Guinotte of Kansas City, a motor boat enthusiast, who will have a party of the Kansas City Yacht Club members as guests for the trip of 1,500 miles, which they will make from Kansas City to St. Paul and return, the longest trip to witness a motor boat regatta on record.

A second party of about seventy-five boats will leave St. Louis on June 29, spending the first night out at Hannibal, Mo., 136 miles from the starting point. This fleet of boats, capable of averaging fifteen miles an hour against the current, will make the second day's run to Muscatine, Iowa, 150 miles; the third day to Dubuque, 125 miles; the fourth to Winona, Minn., 149 miles, and reach St. Paul, 116 miles away, the next evening, July 3.

The regatta, for which there are cash prizes of $10,000 and cups and other trophies worth about half that sum for owners who do not wish to ruin their amateur status by accepting money prizes, will continue for three days, and will bring about the first meeting between Miss Detroit and the new speed boat Miss Minneapolis, which is reported to have shown a speed of better than a mile a minute over a half-mile course.

YACHT HANDICAPS FIXED.

Allowances for Craft in Crescent A. C. Regatta Announced.

Allowances for the yachts of the handicap class, which are to take part in the regatta of the Crescent Athletic Club on the waters of Gravesend Bay on Saturday, were announced yesterday by John R. Brophy as follows:

First Division—Joy, scratch; Careless and La Cubana, 12 per cent. each; Sterling, 14; Saginaw, 15½.

Second Division—Loafer and May, scratch; Frances, 5 per cent.; Wenonah, 6½; Wahkan II., 13½; Oriole, 14; Fram, 18½.

Third Division—Sunbeam, scratch; Bug II. and Mavourneen, 9 per cent. each; Alcyon, 11; Spider, 15.

Metropolitan R.C. Regatta Saturday

The Metropolitan Rowing Club will stage its thirty-sixth annual regatta on Saturday. The Harlem River course on which the races will be rowed measures about three-quarters of a mile, starting at the Speedway and finishing directly opposite the clubhouse, at 157th Street.

Haverford's Baseball Nine.

Next Spring Haverford is to recognize baseball as a major college sport, the players for several years past being under the handicap of playing as the Haverford Baseball Club instead of the college nine. The team, which made one of the best records among the smaller colleges, will start next season with its pitching staff, Buzby, Gibson, and Haynes, intact, though it loses three good players in Lukens at second, Carey at short, and Steere in centre field.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Sell Off After Further Recovery—Mexican Situation Still Uncertain.

Strength gave place to weakness in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange when pressure was renewed in the afternoon chiefly from trading quarters. The view has prevailed in the financial district that so long as the Mexican situation remains in a state of uncertainty the market is in a poor position to resist the natural effects of liquidation or of bear pressure. A considerable group of traders are disposed to make the most of this situation.

Much of the pressure put upon the market may be attributed, therefore, to concerted selling for the purpose of improving the position of the short interest. Active selling in one of the copper shares in which operations had been conducted by important interests, and in which a large speculative position existed, increased the disposition among traders either to sell long stock or to increase short sales. In some of the leading active issues lower prices were touched than had been reached in the selling on Monday when the first effect of the present critical situation in respect to Mexico was felt. The rumor circulated about the Stock Exchange that a serious clash had occurred between Americans and Carranza troops was a natural enough accompaniment of the day's bearish activity.

In banking circles, notwithstanding the secondary selling movement to which the market was subjected yesterday, the feeling still prevails that in the long run the clearing up of the Mexican situation even though that has to be done by armed intervention by the United States will help the general position here much more than it will hurt it. Along with this comment in high banking quarters renewed stress was laid yesterday on the favorable effect which the Mexican trouble is almost certain to have upon the movement for adequate national preparedness. Commission house observers on the floor of the Exchange reported to their offices that the "buying was better than the selling." That was their way of recording the facts fairly inferable from the known attitude of professional traders in contrast with the attitude of the more solid and important elements in the financial district.

The effect of the mobilization of the National Guard upon the country's productive capacity is one of the questions calling for consideration. The view prevalent in the financial district on this point is that probably no more than half of the men called to the colors will be withdrawn from manufacturing employment and that the loss on this score will be an unimportant percentage of the country's total production. In some directions the orders reaching manufacturers have slackened, but the current pressure of output is still great. It will, of course, be very difficult to replace any men withdrawn from employment for the reason that labor has come to be so fully employed. This very fact, however, is one of the reasons for the view that the markets are more likely to be stimulated than to be subdued by the calling of men to arms.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Treasury Receipts Last Week Totaled $119,000,000.

LONDON, June 21.—The Treasury receipts last week amounted to $119,000,000, including $80,000,000 for Treasury bills and $85,000,000 for Exchequer bonds. This accounts for the recent diminution of business of the Stock Exchange, where a quietly cheerful tone continued today with a moderate turnover in the war loan, consols, and Japanese and Chinese bonds. Shipping and copper shares were easy, Mexican rails flat, and American securities ruled lifeless, but steady.

The supply of money was shorter and discount rates were steady.

The Stock Exchange will be closed Saturday, July 1.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

When There Is War.

The stock market has shown much more concern over the crisis with Carranza than it displayed over the famous Huerta salute. On April 20, 1914, following the trouble, the average price of fifty stocks declined .91. Mexican Petroleum, the issue which has perhaps the largest stake in the continuance of frindly relations between Mexico and the United States, lost 2⅝. Its price at that time was much lower, of course, so that the issue was in a less vulnerable position. On the next day more than half the loss was made up. The troops took possession of Vera Cruz on April 22, and stocks declined .36 on the news. The shock had been anticipated by a falling market for eight successive trading days, so that when the worst was known the market was in a good position for a rally.

⁂

A Trader's View.

The man who is most often right in his market commitments is the one who goes against the stream of sentiment, buying when the clouds are blackest and selling when the skies are clear. The difficulty comes in trying to determine whether the overcast sky means a storm or not. A successful operator said yesterday that he had been buying securities on the theory that the Mexican trouble, whether it comes to a head or not, will prove eventually to have been a blessing in disguise. He believes that the market would be higher all around today if proper measures had been taken two years ago to strengthen the army and navy, and he regards the present crisis as an object lesson which will bring about the provisions of proper safeguards.

⁂

Copper Stock Arguments.

The arguments used by traders in selling the copper stocks yesterday were far from being consistent. There was cause for the decline in Greene-Cananea, of course, as the closing down of the mines in Mexico would naturally affect earnings if the suspension were prolonged, but it was difficult to see why this development should weaken the market position of Anaconda, Kennecott, Utah and others in this country. On the contrary, it could be presumed that, in view of the high price of the metal and the demand at home and abroad, the American properties would be strengthened marketwise through the embarrassment of competitors. Nevertheless, the short sellers appeared to make good use of the Mexican situation as affecting the mining industry in order to further their operations. A genuine influence behind the day's recession of the coppers lay in dispatches from London, telling of a drop of about $40 a ton for the "spot" metal in that market.

⁂

Short Interest in Kennecott.

The Kennecott mines were formerly owned by the Alaska Syndicate, which also owned the Copper River & Northwestern Railroad, a steamship line, and other Alaska properties, on account of all which it was often upbraided by the radicals in Congress and elsewhere. Early last year the Kennecott Copper Company was offered to the public in the shape of 720,000 shares of no par value. The offering was the first new stock to appear on the then incipient war market. Speculators grasped it so eagerly that the price shot up more than 100 per cent. from a modest beginning at 25. Thereupon the company merged with the Braden Copper Company and received the properties of the Guggenheim Exploration Company and increased its capitalization to 3,000,000 shares of no par value, all of which were offered to the public, with the possible exception of 61,500 shares paid to the syndicate managers. The syndicate was dissolved, leaving bits of the stock in the hands of so many speculators that the one without it is the exception.

⁂

Bullish Argument on Kennecott.

That the speculative multitude has Kennecott is because it believes in it. The argument is that the people who put out the stock were bankers whose business it was to turn over securities rather than keep the good mines to themselves. The speculators are confident that the mines and other properties sold to them are good. Constantly their assurance is made doubly sure by the appearance of such items as this from the news slips yesterday: "A banker closely identified with the company says earnings are running at the rate of close to $20 a share, with the Braden company turning out about one-third of the tonnage it will turn out after the new construction program is completed. It is said that dividends in the future will probably be in the form of extra payments. Kennecott Copper now has $21,000,000 of cash and copper on hand, not including its interest in Utah and Braden. If there is no decline in the price of copper Kennecott will have doubled its cash holdings before the close of the current year." Thus, with bearishness on account of the alleged overproduction of stock, and bullishness on account of inside and other information traders find speculation in Kennecott repleto with interest.

⁂

Zinc and Zinc Stocks Decline.

Metal market news in several respects was not favorable to the stocks of mining and refining companies. It may have been that holders of copper shares were disturbed into selling by the action of zinc stocks. American Zinc receded five points net, and Butte & Superior fell away 3½ points, following the appearance of printed comment on spelter to the effect that it was quoted for immediate delivery at 12¼ cents a pound. This price represents a decline of more than 50 per cent. from the maximum quotation reported last year.

⁂

Mobilization on Rock Island.

Jacob M. Dickinson, receiver of the Rock Island, held a conference which was only terminated by the departure of the Twentieth Century Limited. Daniel G. Reid talked with Seward Prosser. Bankers sent word that they would underwrite $30,000,000 Rock Island preferred stock provided the debenture bonds were put out of the way by transferring them to second preferred stock or another security without interest charge in advance of the preferred stock. Reports from operating officers were unanimously to the effect that the road is in a position to profit from the traffic assured to the Mexican border. Speculators made the stock one of the most active on the exchange. The price of the stock went up three points. "The mobilization," said one of the bankers, "was rapid and orderly."

Prices Steady on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, June 21.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 28 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 80 centimes.

RIGGS BANK PLEDGE WINS NEW CHARTER

Officers Promise to See That Operations Comply Strictly with the Laws.

ACCEPT VERDICT OF COURT

Controller Williams, in Announcing His Decision, Reviews Illegal Acts of Applicant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—In what may be declared the final chapter in the long-drawn struggle between the Controller of the Currency, John Skelton Williams, and the officers of the Riggs National Bank of this city, the Controller has approved the application for a renewal of the bank's charter. For months the Riggs Bank officials have feared the Controller would refuse his approval on the ground that the officers of the bank were under indictment for perjury in connection with the suit brought by the bank officials to enjoin the Controller from collecting fines from the bank for violation of the National Bank act.

In the trial of the perjury case the defendants were acquitted. Within a few days following this acquittal, a decision was rendered by Justice McCoy in the injunction suit which sustained the action of the Controller in every respect except the imposition of the fines, from which the court restrained the Controller.

The application for the renewal of the charter was made on May 23, the charter expiring by limitation June 26. It is renewed for twenty years, which will expire June 26, 1936.

The action of the Controller in approving the application is embodied in a letter reviewing violations of the National Banking act by the bank, and concludes with the quotation of a signed agreement by the officers of the bank to accept the decision by Justice McCoy as to the powers of the office of the Controller, and also a pledge by the Directors that the bank will hereafter obey the law.

The conclusion of the letter is as follows:

"The court has, in the decrees of Mr. Justice McCoy, thoroughly vindicated the authority of the Controller under the National Bank act, upholding the contentions of the Controller in every particular except as to the fine of $5,000, which the court held the Controller clearly had the authority to impose, but declared that it could not be collected in this instance because the Controller had demanded that the special report be verified by the signatures of the 'President and cashier and three other officers,' instead of by the signatures of the 'President or cashier and attested by at least three Directors,' which is the language of the statute.

Stipulation of Directors.

"The Directors of the bank have agreed in writing to accept as final the decision of Mr. Justice McCoy, as shown by the following copy of a stipulation they have filed with the Controller of the Currency:

> The Riggs National Bank > of Washington, D. C.
> Washington, D. C., June 21, 1916.
> Honorable the Controller of the Currency,
> Washington, D. C.
>
> Sir: We understand that in addition to other considerations relating to past management and omissions to comply with certain requirements of the law, you also have doubts as to the propriety of granting an extension of the charter of the Riggs National Bank because of the Riggs National Bank's resistance of the authority and power asserted by the Controller's office, culminating in the suit brought by the Riggs National Bank versus Controller of the Currency et al., and which was decided by Mr. Justice McCoy on the 31st of May, 1916.
>
> The court sustains the right of the Controller to have the reports and information called for, and the right to impose fines in accordance with the provisions of the statute, if the bank should refuse them.
>
> In order that the question as to the powers of the Controller's office heretofore raised by the bank may not be a factor in your decision of the bank's application for the extension of its charter, we desire to assure you that, if the charter of the bank is extended, the judgment of the court, including the upholding of the authority of the Controller's office and his powers under the National Bank act, will be accepted as final.

"The bank's stipulation is signed by Charles C. Glover, President; Milton E. Ailes, Vice President; William J. Flather, Vice President; Joshua Evans, Jr., Cashier; H. V. Haynes, Assistant Cashier, and the following as Directors: Milton E. Ailes, William J. Flather, Charles C. Glover, Jr., James M. Johnston, Thomas Hyde, L. Kemp Duvall, Charles C. Glover, Robert C. Wilkins, E. V. Murphy, Sterling Ruffin, Joseph Paul, H. Rosier Dulaney, L. E. Jeffries, and Charles I. Corby."

Regarding future management of the bank of the Controller's letter says:

"Whatever doubts the Controller has entertained in this particular have been sufficiently satisfied by a written pledge, signed by all the Directors and filed with the Controller of the Currency, that the bank's business and affairs will be conducted in the future in scrupulous compliance with the law and all lawful rules and regulations of the Controller of the Currency. The following is a copy of said pledge:

> Sir: We, the undersigned Directors of the Riggs National Bank, hereby solemnly and severally pledge ourselves to give special attention in the future to the manner in which the officers of the Riggs National Bank shall carry on and conduct the business and affairs of the bank, to the end that the business operations and affairs of the bank in the future shall be conducted in strict compliance with the National Bank act and all the laws of the United States, and in conformity with the lawful rules, regulations, and requirements of the office of the Controller of the Currency, and to take all such action as shall be necessary to secure that end.
>
> The charter of the Riggs National Bank expires by limitation on the 26th of June, 1916. The stockholders of said bank, including the undersigned Directors, have made application according to law to the Controller of the Currency for an extension of its charter for a further period of twenty years. Because of the controversies and issues which gave rise to the litigation in the equity suit above referred to, and in order to remove any doubts of the Controller as to the future conduct and management of the offices of the said the Riggs National Bank, we hereby give him this express and written assurance, in the hope that his doubts may be allayed, and that the said application for an extension of the charter of the bank for a period of twenty years shall be granted.

Bank's Condition Satisfactory.

"These questions being satisfactorily disposed of," the Controller's letter continues, "there is but one other to be considered, and that is the solvency and financial condition of the bank. A special examination, as required by the National Bank act, has been made since the filing of the application for the extension of the charter, and the report of the examiners as to the financial condition of the bank is found to be satisfactory."

Mr. Williams states that his decision is due partly to the fact that "a refusal to approve your application for an amendment to your charter extending your period of succession might work injustice to innocent stockholders, many of whom may have no potential influence or voice in the selection of the Directors of the bank or its officers since they may be in a minority."

In the review of the violations of the National Banking act committed by the officers of the bank, the Controller says, in part:

"Violations of law and irregular practices began shortly after the organization of the bank, in 1896, and continued throughout the life of the bank until the Summer or Autumn of 1914, when they were discontinued because of the action of the Controller's office. National bank examiners reported in May, 1914, that the principal officers of the Riggs National Bank were conducting an active stock brokerage and real estate loan business within the bank, and were engaged in speculations for their own account, for which they were borrowing large sums of money from their own bank, from other local banks, and from the New York correspondent of the Riggs National Bank.

"It was established that the cashier of the Riggs National Bank, H. H. Flather, had a private telephone line from his desk in the bank to the office of the now defunct stock brokerage firm of Lewis Johnson & Co. It was disclosed that Cashier Flather traded on the orders of customers to his personal advantage, reporting sales to customers at prices less than those at which their securities had actually been sold, and converting the difference to his own use."

Mr. Williams declared that a bank examiner's report "showed how H. H. Flather, sometimes having orders to buy certain stock, bought the stock ordered by the customer and then, if it should advance, would sell the stock so purchased and take the profit himself, and would then buy the stock again, at a higher price, for the customer. Or that, having an order to sell a certain stock, he would sell on the customer's order, and then, if the stock should decline, he would buy it in and later sell again at a lower price than the price at which he originally sold, but accounting to the customer at the reduced price, taking for himself the profit between the price at which the customer's stock was first sold and the price at which he bought it in, the customer losing the difference.

Loans to Officers.

"It appears," the Controller states, "that there was borrowed from the bank in eighteen years by its four principal officers, President Glover, Vice President Flather, Vice President Ailes, and Cashier Flather, a total of $5,659,850, exclusive of large amounts loaned to wives, brothers, sons, and daughters of some of these officers. Besides the loans to principal officers, the junior officers, tellers, bookkeepers, and other employes sometimes borrowed heavily. After the present Controller of the Currency discovered this condition of affairs, the loans to all officers of the bank were taken up or transferred to other banks in the Summer of 1914. Since that time the practice has not been resumed.

"Banks were expressly prohibited from making any loans when there was a deficiency in their reserves. The records show that between Aug. 4, 1906, and March 4, 1914, Mr. Glover borrowed twenty-four times from the Riggs National Bank on days when the bank's reserves were short; or, in the thirty-day period when the bank had reported averaging short in reserves. These twenty-four loans aggregated $412,500. Vice President Flather borrowed from the bank over $210,000 on twenty loans, former Cashier Flather borrowed over $50,000 on six loans, and Vice President Ailes got twenty-nine loans from the bank on his own note, or jointly with others, for amounts aggregating over $200,000."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thorne Metropolitan Vice President

Increase in the business of the Metropolitan Trust Company having made larger executive staff necessary, Harold B. Thorne has been elected a Fourth Vice President. He will assume his new duties early next month. Mr. Thorne started with the Mercantile Trust Company as a junior clerk twenty-one years ago and rose to be a Vice President, taking a similar position with the Bankers' Trust Company on the absorption by that institution of the Mercantile.

REACTION IN COTTON ON PROFIT TAKING

Market Closes at Loss of 1 to 6 Points After Advance at the Opening.

DROP IN LIVERPOOL ALSO

Weather Now Favorable, with Temperatures Fully Up to the Average of the Season.

After opening at an advance of 5 to 8 points yesterday, cotton became reactionary on profit taking, and closed at a loss of 1 to 6 points. Realizing was rather heavy on the initial bulge, prompted, no doubt, by the feeling that shorts had covered rather liberally on the recent advance of 60 points and the technical position had been somewhat weakened. Liverpool also showed a reactionary tendency and closed barely steady at a small loss for the day.

The weekly weather report was considered about the only stand-off, although, as was to be expected, it laid some stress on low temperatures in the northern sections of the belt. At the same time it was said that in the central and southern portions of the belt crop progress had been favorable and rapid. A Memphis wire said: "Conditions in this entire section continue very favorable. Present outlook good for crop of 15,000,000 bales."

As has been pointed out in this column recently, the strength of cotton appears to be derived chiefly from the unprecedentedly strong situation in spots. Big sales were reported yesterday in the Southern markets, with transactions at Savannah amounting to 1,905 bales; at Norfolk, 1,936 bales, and at Augusta, 1,171 bales. Sales reported out of New York stock, including business after hours yesterday, amounted to 7,500 bales. It is reported that a considerable block of cotton has been purchased by local firms from eastern belt dealers recently.

In local cotton circles there is some comment on the rejections by the Department of Agriculture at Washington on cotton that has been appealed to the Bureau of Markets there. Southern spot markets yesterday were unchanged to 7 points higher.

The weather is favorable at present, with temperatures now fully up to the average of the season. About the only complaints consist of grassy fields in some localities, while boll weevils are reported in other sections.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged, 7 to 12 points advance. The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 5 points advance. Middling 13.10c. Sales 7,500 bales. Futures closed steady.

OPEN CREDITS IN DOLLARS.

French and Italian Firms Find Metal Buying Easier.

French and Italian firms, acting through their banks, have lately opened credits in dollars with a leading trust company and banking houses in this city amounting to many millions of dollars which will be used in paying for metals for export. Previously copper, zinc, and other metals for shipment to Europe were paid for through checks drawn in sterling, francs, or lire. The continued fall of exchange rates caused metal producers to hesitate about entering into extensive transactions, and dollar credits were placed to offset this handicap.

Leopold Fredrick, financial adviser of the American Smelting & Refining Company, suggested a year ago that foreign purchasers of metals open ninety-day sight credits in dollars with New York banks and bankers. At first the recommendation was not received with favor abroad, and even now London banks are not inclined to follow the action of their French and Italian contemporaries. If they should do so, Mr. Fredrick believes, they would facilitate the work of the English Government in stabilizing the sterling rate in this city. Dollar exchange was successfully introduced into Chile more than a year ago through Mr. Fredricks efforts.

NEW BANK TO CLEAR HERE.

International to Do This Through the National City.

The International Bank, a subsidiary of the International Banking Corporation, operating under the laws of Connecticut, announces that beginning with June 26 all checks drawn upon it will be payable through the New York Clearing House. Its checks will be cleared through the National City Bank. The National City Company, controlled by City Bank stockholders, recently acquired the majority interest in the International Banking Corporation.

The International Bank has been adding steadily to its deposits and it was found that the handicap of remaining out of the Clearing House Association stood in the way of the growth that the management expected to attain.

After opening dull, unchanged to a decline of 5 points, trading in futures became more active and values advanced several points due to sales of free on board Cubas for foreign account. Refined sugar was unchanged at 7.80c, less 2 per cent. for cash basis for 7.65c for granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts were fairly well evened up and new business reported light. A sale of 40,000 bags of Cubas, afloat, at 5¼c, cost and freight, to a local refiner established a lower spot market. This sale practically cleared the market of all offerings at that price, holders asking ⅛c higher. New Orleans refiners bought 20,000 bags Porto Ricos, first half of July shipment, at 6.08c, cost, insurance, and freight, delivered. Sales of free on board Cubas for foreign account amounted to about 50,000 tons, said to have been at 5c. Quotations follow: Cuban cost and freight, 5¼c; centrifugal, 6.27c, and molasses, 5.40c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 17,716 packages. Steady market for creamery extras and higher scoring lots, but still somewhat unsettled and easy for lower grades. General trade only fair, but there is some speculative demand. Renovated extremely quiet. Ladles moving out pretty well, and there is a good demand for packing stock. Creamery extras, (93 score,) per pound, 29¼c; higher scoring, 30@30¼c; firsts, (89 to 92 score,) 28@29c; seconds, (84 to 88 score,) 26¼@27¼c; thirds, 25@26c; creamery, unsalted, extras, 29¼@30c; higher scoring, 30¼@31¼c; firsts, 28¼@29¼c; seconds, 26¼@28c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 28½@29c; good to prime, 26¼@28c; common to fair, 24@26c; renovated, extras, 27c; firsts, 25@26c; lower grades, 23@24c; imitation creamery, firsts, 23@25½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 24@24½c; seconds, 23@23½c; lower grades, 22@22½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 23@23½c; No. 2, 22½c; lower grades, 21@22c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 15,278 cases. The market had a fairly steady tone on most descriptions of eggs. The demand is more active for the medium and lower grades than for finer qualities and sales of fancy graded stock over 24c are quite exceptional. Most sales ungraded range 22@23c, with a narrowing selection of desirable stock for less money. Fancy nearby eggs firm. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 25@26½c; extra firsts, 23½@24½c; firsts, 22½@23½c; seconds, 21½@22½c; thirds and poorer, 19@21c; dirties, No. 1, 20½@21c; No. 2 and poorer, 18½@20c; checks, good to choice, dry, 19½@20c; undergrades, 16½@19c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery whites, fine to fancy, 28@29c; ordinary to good, 25½@27c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 25@27c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 24@26½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 27c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 23¼@26c; duck eggs, State and nearby Indian Runner, 28@30c.

Tan Shoes Getting Scarce.

Men's tan shoes are getting scarcer every day, not only because they are selling very freely—possibly better than ever—but because clear calfskins and dyeing materials are scarce. In the women's goods high-cut lace shoes in black kid, stitched with white, are again being shown and admired, as are black pumps similarly treated. The white is not laid on so strongly as was the case last year. Another feature of current business is the demand for cut-steel buckles, which are reported to be selling more freely than for several years. They are much featured on pumps by prominent retailers, and the smaller specialty shops are following suit. The latter are supplementing the large-tongued colonials of the early season with plain pumps and buckles.

⁂

Woolen Openings Late.

From present indications the opening of Spring, 1917, goods by the woolen mills will be later than usual. The lightweight lines, according to reports made in the market now, will not be shown until late next month. The usual time is immediately after the Fourth. [illegible] delay this year has been occasioned in large measure by the heavy demand [illegible] taken for the Fall and the necessity of getting this out of the way before operations are started on lightweight woolens. It appears, from the large quantity of Spring goods that have already been contracted for, that the opening will be more formal in character than ever.

⁂

Underwear Sales Are Large.

While many jobbers are said to be showing an unwillingness to cover their underwear needs for next Spring at prices which do not readily admit of the retail sale of the goods at the fixed prices of other years, there is no denying the fact that buying has been earlier and heavier than usual so far. Mill agents say that the best of the mills are getting the business and [illegible] many lines of goods and that, while they are cutwardly offering the most [illegible] prices asked, they are [illegible]. [illegible] advances are announced. In spite of the fact that the new season is less than three weeks old, several lines have been advanced 2½ to 10 cents a dozen over the opening. If cotton continues to go higher further advances [illegible] sky high. About the only feature at present is the increase in demand for union suits for the trade east of the Mississippi.

⁂

Drug Prices Still Weakening.

Weekly Drug Markets will say today that possibilities of war with Mexico have not halted the downward trend of prices on many drugs and chemicals. Lower prices are due to more liberal offerings, easier primary markets, and a slower demand both for export and domestic trade. Active underselling by speculative holders is also an important factor in the situation. Lower quotations have been established during the last week on bromides, carbolic acid, castor oil, glycerin, (second hands,) nitrate of silver, &c. On the other hand several advances took place. Larger inquiries for quinine, for instance, resulted in firmer price views on the part of speculators. Some of these traders raised the price of this drug to 80 cents an ounce, while others asked 90 cents an ounce for it.

⁂

Jewelry Orders Still Coming In.

Reports from the jewelry trade tell of no diminution of road orders for the better class of this merchandise, especially high-grade platinum and gold pieces. The demand is said to be keeping up longer than usual this season because of the time lost by many salesmen while recent labor troubles were in progress here. Quite a number of the orders call for work of a special nature. Medium platinum has eased off further, it being quoted yesterday at $70 an ounce. From silverware come reports of excellent business, especially on flatware, both at wholesale and retail. In certain cases the number of orders now waiting delivery is said to be the largest in years at this period, and work on Fall stock will be delayed correspondingly. The outlook for Fall is regarded as very bright, and in some quarters of the Lane larger stocks will be carried than for a long time.

⁂

Gray Goods Prices Steadier.

Prices took on a firmer tone in the local gray goods market yesterday in spite of the fact that there was no material increase in demand. Mills were asking 6¾ cents for spot 39-inch 68-72s, and it was said that there were few of these goods to be had under that figure for any delivery. The same was true of 38½-inch 64-60s at 5⅞ cents. Mills were also unwilling to take less than 4⅞ cents for spot 38½-inch 60-48s, and while all buyers would not meet the price, business was done at it. Spot business was also transacted on 27-inch 64-60s at 3⅞ cents. Converters took wide sheetings in a fair way for Fall shipment at full prices. The demand for heavy twills lagged somewhat, and there was not much call for drills. Closing printcloth prices were:

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Clerical Errors and Value of Lira Among Things Passed On.

Abraham & Straus were sustained yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers on the classification of so-called pyrographic bulbs made of India rubber. The Collector took duty at 15 per cent. as rubber manufactures commonly known as druggists' supplies. Judge McClelland decided that the articles were not in that category and sustained the claim for entry at 10 per cent. as manufactures of rubber not specially provided for.

The unwillingness of the board to sustain protests claiming clerical errors was again illustrated yesterday, when the tribunal overruled claims of two importers. J. A. Grimwood, New York, claimed that in entering merchandise the broker, through custom error, [illegible]. [illegible]

[illegible]

Judge Brown upheld the Appraiser at Galveston in exacting higher duty on olive oil bottles shipped by Flaquiel de James of Marseilles. Some of the advances amounted to one-half franc per case of 24 bottles. It was shown that the cost of manufacture in France for these goods was rising.

LOOK FOR WOOL FAMINE.

Dealers Speculating as to How Long Present Supply Will Last.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 21.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"A world famine in wool is believed to be imminent, the question being how long the present supply at the mills can last. Some feel that the Mexican situation will tend to boom the market. Others, however, are of the opinion that the present situation has already been discounted by the fact that the Government has been giving heavy orders for some time. Business in the wool market is limited in volume, owing to high prices which merchants have had to charge.

"The woolen goods market appears to be relatively strong. There has been a big sale of tropical fabrics. Prices are extremely high for all fabrics for Spring. A large inquiry for uniform fabrics was made during the week for Australia, but the high cost of production and other difficulties will probably prevent acceptance of any orders.

"In the cotton goods market the outlook is favorable. Manufacturing conditions make an excess production an impossibility today. The export demand is continually improving. Duplicates are being received upon domestic fabrics which contained a domestic finish."

$2,000 Judgment Against Lamar.

A judgment for $2,000 was entered yesterday in the City Court against David Lamar, "the Wolf of Wall Street," now serving a sentence in the Atlanta Prison, in favor of Marion C. Schaeffer on an assigned claim. The original claimants were Walmsley & Kohlman, attorneys who were retained by Lamar to prosecute a writ of certiorari for him. They alleged that he paid them a retainer fee of $2,000 and agreed to pay them $1,500 when finished. Lamar also promised, they declared, to pay $500 to Louis B. Williams for having introduced him to the lawyers.

The company has published a booklet of facts not only interesting and readable, but containing information of real value to any one contemplating now or in the future investing in a home or building plot.

FOREST HILLS GARDENS

In point of time, it is nearer the centre of the city (15 minutes from Penna. Sta.) than any other suburban development, and the prices of houses and plots compare favorably with other high-class developments much further from the city.

Newsdealers' President Complains to Thompson Committee of Ward & Gow.

SOME ARE 40 FEET LONG

Interborough Gets $900,000 Annual Rental, Artemas Ward Says —City May Not Share.

The Thompson Legislative Committee took up yesterday the contract privileges of Ward & Gow for maintaining news stands on the subway and elevated stations. Senator Thompson tried to show that Ward & Gow have a monopoly of this privilege, and pay large sums to the Interborough, from which the city obtains nothing, although under the terms of the dual subway contract the earnings of both the present and the future subways are supposed to be pooled with the city.

William Merican, President of the New York Newsdealers' Association, went before the committee and complained about the dangerous encroachments on the subway platforms caused by the news stands recently erected at all the subway stations. He said Ward & Gow have erected booths five by twenty-eight feet and some five by forty feet. He questioned the legal right of the Interborough Company to let out space in the subways to a highly capitalized company, which meant the exclusion of rivals.

"When the subway was first built," said Mr. Merican, "newsdealers were not allowed in the subway. Borough President McAneny gave us permits to put stands one foot wide and four feet long fifty feet from subway entrances. Ward & Gow soon began to operate news stands in the subway. At first they had small, portable tables. Now they have built permanent booths on the subway platforms. They sell not only newspapers but candy, stationery, cigars, cigarettes and periodicals. It is only a question of time at this rate when they will be selling groceries and dry goods."

"Do Ward & Gow exercise a censorship—refuse to sell magazines they don't like?" asked Senator Thompson.

"Sure," replied Mr. Merican. "If they don't like certain periodicals they can keep them off elevated and subway news stands."

Artemas Ward then took the stand and testified at length as to the privileges obtained under his contract. Mr. Ward explained that the lease originally held by his company had been renewed in December, 1913, to run for fifteen years from Jan. 1, 1914. The Interborough receives about $900,000 a year for the news stand privileges. Ward & Gow receive $15 a month for displaying periodicals on the subway stands and the same amount for displaying periodicals on the elevated stands. This contract has been disputed by the Interborough and the matter is now in the courts.

"The space allowed us for our stands is materially less than what we have received during the last ten years," said Mr. Ward. "Where we had seven feet, we have now only five. We have 120 stands on these lines, and last year we made the large profit of $1 a stand."

"But this will be increased as the years go on," said Senator Thompson.

"Oh, yes," admitted Mr. Ward.

Mr. Ward admitted that the Public Service Commission had opposed his contract, but that he had continued to do business under it as in the past.

"Did you have any conversation with President Shonts or any other Interborough officer as to whether your present contract is legal in view of the Public Service Commission's disapproval?" asked Mr. Thompson.

"I had no such conversation," Mr. Ward replied.

Mr. Ward said the rental he paid under the new contract was about double that on the previous contract and that the privileges were about the same.

James L. Quackenbush, general counsel for the Interborough, told Senator Thompson that the Interborough was in litigation with Ward & Gow over the contract, and that large sums of money were involved. The Interborough Company contended, he said, that Ward & Gow had no right to renew their contract.

Senator Thompson said his committee was only interested to know if the Interborough, under its dual subway contract with the city, would share its proceeds from the news stand rentals with the city or whether the Interborough was to get everything. Mr. Quackenbush said he did not care to give an opinion on the matter until he had discussed it with his clients.

The committee then took up B. R. T. matters. Colonel T. S. Williams, the President, was put on the stand, and testified to the dates of the earlier negotiations in the bidding on the dual subway contracts. Mr. Williams gave the amounts of the bonds deposited with various banking houses.

Auditor Abel of the B. R. T. gave testimony similar to that of Colonel Williams.

Before the close of the session Mr. Quackenbush said that the supply shops maintained by the Interborough were being operated at a loss of more than $20,000 and that the company was thinking of abolishing them.

The committee will continue its hearing this morning.

After hearing Senator George F. Thompson tell of his investigation at their meeting last night 1,000 members of the Tax Payers' Protective Association of Brooklyn passed resolutions praising his work and asking Governor Whitman to appoint him as a Special Commissioner of Investigation with unlimited time. The meeting had been called in the Girls' High School, Brooklyn, to protest against the construction of the Classon Avenue sewer.

3 HELD FOR $25,000 THEFT.

Bird Apartment in the Hotel Gotham Robbed on Jan. 15.

Charged with having stolen $25,000 worth of jewelry from the apartments of George Bird, a retired business man, on the twelfth floor of the Hotel Gotham, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, Frederick Hall, alias Graham, was arrested yesterday and later in the Yorkville Court was held in $10,000 bail.

Detectives who had been at work since the robbery on Jan. 15 discovered Hall at 1,925 Mermaid Avenue, Coney Island, at which resort he was running a soda water fountain. Acting on information said to have been given by the prisoner, the police arrested Caspar Holdstein and Laura Green, both colored, of 166 West 133d Street. Both were charged with having received stolen property and the police said that some of Bird's missing jewelry was found in their possession.

The arrest of Hall was the result of a clue that a man who had registered at the Gotham as David Gibbs of Horsehead, N. Y., had paid his bill and left the hotel just before the robbery was discovered. Those who had seen Gibbs were taken to Police Headquarters to inspect the Rogues' Gallery. Several identified Hall's picture, the detectives said, as that of Gibbs, but it was not until yesterday that Hall was found, after he had been traced to Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird discovered that their apartment had been looted when they returned to the hotel in the afternoon of Jan. 15. The maid, who had been left in charge, had gone to her room on the twentieth floor and the thief had had an opportunity to work at his leisure. The robbery was not difficult; for, it was said yesterday at the hotel, Mr. Bird had a dislike of locks and insisted that the doors of his room, his trunks, dressers, and closets be left unlocked at all times. Among the pieces stolen were a string of 300 pearls, a diamond dog collar, a diamond necklace, and a diamond sunburst.

Holdstein and Laura Green were also held in $10,000 bail each. According to the police, Holdstein wore a three-stone diamond ring and Laura Green a diamond and sapphire ring when arrested. These rings, they said, were identified as belonging to Mr. Bird.

Hall, according to the police, was sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory some years ago on a charge of robbery, and is at the present time under a suspended sentence on a similar charge.

SOCIETY SERVES PICKETS.

Prominent Women to Carry Breakfast to Striking Cloakmakers.

Members of the Women's City Club and of the Authors' League will serve breakfast at 6:45 o'clock this morning to 4,000 cloakmakers' pickets in the cloak and suit district. Automobiles loaded with thousands of sandwiches and big pails of coffee will start from Fifth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street and cover the district. Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram, Miss Anne Lee, and Miss Alice Carpenter will direct the work. They will be assisted by a large committee of prominent women.

Magistrate Levy in Jefferson Market Court yesterday told two pickets before him on charges of assault that they should change their tactics. The prisoners were Jacob Slotcky, charged with assaulting a designer for Harry Wadler, a cloak and suit manufacturer at 105 Madison Avenue, and Samuel Schwartz, charged with assaulting a foreman employed by Olinger Bros. of West Twenty-sixth Street.

"I had intended to send you to the workhouse," said the Magistrate. "This sort of thing has got to stop. If I fine you $10 the union pays it and you go outside and laugh. I am going to place you under $500 bond, and if during six months you hit another man your bond will be forfeited."

Lazarus Joseph, attorney for the Independent Cloak and Suit Manufacturers, yesterday sent a letter to Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the Cloakmakers' Union, in which he again urged a conference looking to arbitration with the workers in the so-called independent shops.

Mr. Schlesinger replied that he would not treat with the association until it supplied the union with a full list of its members.

GERMAN BOYS TRAINING.

Manhood Used Up, Says a Traveler from the Empire.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, June 22.—The Times publishes a description of conditions in Germany by a person who left that country a few days ago after a stay there which began before the war. He says among other things:

"No man or boy fit for service is left in the villages. Boys of 17 are already officially called up and training at depots. Younger boys, too, are actually at the front. If a boy is big and strong he is taken, whatever his age. I know of a boy of 14 who has been at the front six months. In the smaller towns, too, it is almost impossible to find a man of military age. In the cities many men in uniform are about but the only civilians of military age are those in the Government offices and those engaged in financial and insurance work. These are regarded as indispensable for conducting financial operations of the country. All the shopkeepers are gone and men in industry.

"My own opinion is that the manhood of Germany is used up. There are no reserves. At the present moment young boys at school are being trained almost as recruits would be trained."

Father Sues to Get Imprisoned Boy.

Justice Giegerich in the Supreme Court yesterday issued a writ of habeas corpus requiring the authorities of the Jewish Protectory at Hawthorne, N. Y., to produce before him Isadore Baumgarten, who was committed to the institution by Justice Hoyt in the Children's Court. In his affidavit, Henry Baumgarten, father of the boy, said he had his son before Justice Hoyt on Nov. 6, 1914, to have him reprimanded for truancy and sent home. Instead the court had committed to boy to the protectory, where Baumgarten thought he would be confined for a month or so and the father contended that his son was now being unlawfully detained. As a sister of Isadore's is to be married on Saturday, the father is anxious to have the boy released before that time.

Deny Plant Was Seized by U. S.

HACKENSACK, N. J., June 1.—A rumor reached here this afternoon that the Government had seized the ammunition plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company, together with sixty-five cars of ammunition ready to be shipped, but the officials of the company and the Kingsland police absolutely denied that there was the least foundation for it.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Health Department received reports yesterday of twelve additional cases of infantile paralysis in Brooklyn. The known cases of the disease in the borough now number forty-three. Many other reported cases of illness among very young children have been marked as "suspicious." Nearly all the cases reported yesterday were in South Brooklyn. Three children who, it is believed, were sufferers from infantile paralysis died in the Williamsburg section yesterday.

Vincenzo Neapolitano, 21 years old, fruit dealer, of 730 Van Nest Avenue, Bronx, known to his associates as "Jimmie Naples," was convicted by a jury before County Judge Gibbs in the Bronx yesterday of being a "white slaver." Neapolitano was arrested Feb. 1 on accusations made against him by Marie Klein, 18 years old, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Charles Klein, pastor of the Bethany Reformed Church in Harlem.

Two hundred and fifty stenotypists had a dinner and dance at Lorber's Restaurant on Tuesday night, when it was reported that, although three years ago there were no stenotypists, there are more than a thousand in New York now. Much satisfaction was expressed at the announcement that the City of New York had advertised for applicants to take a civil service examination for the position of stenotypist.

THIS CITY WAS 'EASY,' IN HEALER'S OPINION

Schlatter Wrote to Associate About Free Write-Ups and Cash to be Had Here.

DAILY INCOME ABOUT $30

Letters Read at a Court Hearing Urged Schrader to Join Him and Share Prosperity.

Just how good the healing business was in New York as compared with California was set forth in a series of letters addressed to the Rev. August Schrader of the Baptist Church of California, Inc., and offered in evidence before United States Commissioner Houghton yesterday at the proceedings to determine whether Francis Schlatter, the self-styled reincarnation of Moses, and the Rev. August Algard, his secretary, shall be returned to Los Angeles to answer Federal charges of having been concerned in a conspiracy to defraud the halt, the lame, and the sick by use of the mails.

The letters covered the period of "Healer" Schlatter's activities in this city and were brought here by Post Office Inspector Walter M. Cookson of Los Angeles. They were signed by Schlatter and Algard, their genuineness being admitted by Algard, who, on cross-examination, said he had typewritten the letters at Schlatter's direction.

During the ten weeks Schlatter operated in West Thirty-fourth Street without being molested by the authorities the receipts, or "offerings" for the church, totaled $2,032.40, the letters said, and of this amount Schlatter got $430 and Algard $299. The remainder went for church expenses.

In reporting progress to Schrader, who calls himself the reincarnation of Christ, "Healer" Schlatter said success had come largely through newspaper notices.

"People are coming here in increasing numbers," he wrote, "and we expect to make a thorough success. * * * People have given us on the average about $30 a day, and it is well needed after the heavy expense we have had."

In another letter to "Brother" Schrader Algard said:

> I think it would be a good plan for you to come here and you have such a good talking ability that the papers, perhaps, would give us another write-up. I suggest that you should have a little rest in our place. We have it very comfortable and there is plenty of room for you. After a week or so you could go to Philadelphia. Here the papers would give you another free write-up. I would go with you then, because my wife knows how to attend to this.

New York is pictured as an Eldorado in one letter in which Algard at Schlatter's direction wrote:

> From my experience so far I say the East is good enough for me, and I would not spend another cent for advertising in California. There is surely more money in New York alone than in all the States west of the Rocky Mountains. I have the greatest faith in the East, and I have been doing very well since coming here. * * * I think I know a great deal better how to handle people than in California, and I am not very easy with the people if we have to depend on offerings.

Schlatter was arrested here for practicing medicine without a license, and, in a letter written May 17, Algard said:

> The court proceedings will undoubtedly advertise us a whole lot and there are seventeen people who have offered themselves to take the stand in our behalf. If the papers will publish their testimonies and the true facts, we will get thousands of dollars' worth of advertising. What money we have made so far is entirely thanks to free advertising we have gotten in the different write-ups. We were therefore thinking that the best to do would be only to stay in a place as long as we could get good write-ups, which we are sure we always would get whenever we get in fresh to a new town. After staying a month or so and business commences to dwindle down, it would be most profitable to go to a new place, where the same thing with the newspaper reporters would be repeated all over agin.
>
> Yesterday we were in court at 10 A. M., before Judge Nolan. He seemed to be a pretty nice man, although an Irish Catholic. Our attorney, Mr. Le Barbier, stated Rev. Schlatter's case and the Judge listened very carefully. Our lawyer cross examined the detective women and they seemed to get sometimes white and sometimes red in their dirty hog-faces. Sometimes they really did not know what to say and lied like yellow dogs. It is funny the devil did not already get them, but he is only waiting for his prey. He ought to eat them alive.
>
>
> Everything seems to be going smoothly and quite a few people for healing. The average is now about $20 a day. Sometimes a little more, sometimes less. However, the expenses is not so large and we are making a little money.

In a letter, dated April 13 and signed with a rubber stamp, Algard wrote: "Now I am going to send you all my money, so if I get arrested nobody will find any money on me. If I get arrested I will get help from those I healed. Don't worry about me."

In the same letter he said: "The New York Judges misuse everybody." He also promised to put the curse of the 109th Psalm on nearly everybody who had aided in the prosecution.

At the next hearing Schlatter will be cross-examined by Prosecutor Roosa.

LABOR FOR FLAG'S DEFENSE.

Leaders Are Not Backing Socialists' Attack on Mobilization.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor are not in sympathy with the anti-mobilization meetings planned by the Socialists. The Federation officials are emphatically in favor of the workingman doing his part along with other Americans in the National Guard.

James P. Holland, President of the New York State Federation said last night that the meeting of the Executive Board of the American Federation of Labor in Atlantic City on June 26 would probably discuss the mobilization, and that until then there would be no official statement.

"But so far as I am personally concerned I believe the border of the United States and the lives and property of its citizens ought to be protected," he said, "and I guess you'll find that the workingman will do his part. He generally does. I don't know anything about any anti-mobilization meetings and I don't expect to be invited and I wouldn't attend if I were."

Several other labor officials expressed similar sentiment, but did not want to be quoted before the Federation took official action. It is generally understood that President Samuel Gompers of the Federation has no sympathy with any labor criticism of the War Department's plans.

Plans were made at a meeting of Socialists at 239 East Eighty-fourth Street last night for public agitation against the course of the United States in Mexico. On Monday the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party sent a telegram to President Wilson protesting against the use of soldiers in Mexico, or for any service except patrolling our side of the border.

Morris Hillquit, a member of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party, yesterday explained the position of the Socialists.

"The Socialists believe the troops sent into Mexico should now be recalled," said Mr. Hillquit. "The invasion was limited to a specific purpose, the pursuit of Villa, and what was in the minds of everybody was a dashing punitive expedition for a single purpose, not a continuous policing of Mexico by American troops.

"In considering the threatened war we cannot blind ourselves to the fact that intervention in Mexico has been urged for years by very definite influences for very definite and selfish commercial reasons, and that when the recent raids occurred the Government itself freely charged certain capitalistic groups with responsibility for them."

"The American people will thus actually be sacrificing millions in wealth and thousands of lives for the commercial interests of a group of wealthy American concessionaires in Mexico.

"It is purely a war of aggression, not of defense, and the most abhorrent suspicion in connection with it is that it is largely an incident of a political campaign."

PENNSYLVANIA CASTLE SOLD

Relics of the Founder to Come Up at Auction Soon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, June 22.—Pennsylvania Castle at Portland, including the Norman ruins called Rufus Castle, the castle of Thomas Hardy's novel "The Well-beloved," was sold by auction at Dorchester yesterday for $29,750.

The Castle was built by John Penn in 1800 for $100,000. The family portraits, books, autographs, and manuscripts relating to William Penn and his descendants and the early history of Pennsylvania will be sold at Christie's on July 10. These form a part of the historical contents of Pennsylvania Castle.

In addition to a series of William Penn's printed pamphlets and books and a series of letters to him from early colonists, there are portraits by unknown artists of Penn himself and his second wife and of James Logan, his secretary. Among many relics are two treaty belts presented by Penn to the Indians.

HEIRESS DRUGGED, SHE TELLS SWANN

Beneficiary in $12,000,000 Estate Says She Was Coerced Into Making $100,000 Will.

KEPT A PRISONER TWO DAYS

Carried Down Eleven-Story Fire Escape from Hotel While Detectives Watched Doors.

District Attorney Swann began an investigation yesterday into a strange story of how Miss Gertrude Claypool, a wealthy spinster living at the Great Northern Hotel, was practically held a prisoner for two days in Newark after being persuaded under the influence of drugs to revoke the terms of a will disposing of an estate of $100,000 which she inherited from her uncle, ex-Governor Bookwalter of Ohio. A similar inquiry in Newark resulted yesterday in indictments charging assault and battery against two of the persons who were alleged to have victimized Miss Claypool

The matter was first reported to District Attorney Swann by James F. McKinney of Grout & McKinney of 115 Broadway. Appearing as counsel for Miss Claypool, Mr. McKinney presented an affidavit in which he set forth the story told to him by Miss Claypool and corroborated in the main by several other persons. According to his affidavit the designs on Miss Claypool began with her inheritance of $100,000 under the will of ex-Governor Bookwalter, who died in Italy last Fall leaving an estate estimated at $12,000,000.

Several months ago, according to the information given to the District Attorney, Miss Claypool, who is 42 years old, feeble in health, and paralyzed in her right arm, was made to believe that she had not been treated fairly by her uncle, and could obtain a much greater share of his estate, perhaps $2,000,000, by contesting his will. In the meanwhile she herself had made a will leaving $15,000 to a negro maid named "Bessie," $25,000 to Miss Grace H. Cannon, a dressmaker of 106 East Eighty-first Street; $50,000 to Cornell University, $5,000 to a daughter of Judge Johnson of Ohio, and $5,000 to Mrs. L. L. Seaman of 247 Fifth Avenue, wife of Dr. L. L. Seaman, the explorer. Dr. Seaman held power of attorney in the management of Miss Claypool's affairs.

Meets Mrs. Hill.

According to Mr. Kinney's affidavit, Miss Claypool, in the latter part of May, became intimately acquainted with a Mrs. Margaret Hill of 208 West Fifty-fourth Street, who only two weeks ago was reported to have made an attempt to commit suicide by running in front of a train in the Pennsylvania station. Mrs. Hill is alleged to have called at the Great Northern Hotel with information concerning the Bookwalter will. On her first call she did not meet Miss Claypool, but left her a card and some flowers. Subsequently they met, and thereafter had many conferences.

From the statement made in Mr. McKinney's affidavit, it appears that Miss Claypool was made to believe that her relatives were conspiring to kidnap her because of her intention to contest the will of Governor Bookwalter. For this reason she was urgently advised to thwart their designs by leaving the Great Northern Hotel for at least a few days. In the first week of June, Mr. McKinney's affidavit alleges, Mrs. Hill had Miss Claypool, in the company of a nurse from St. Vincent's Hospital, transferred to the Cumberland Hotel. The nurse after a few days is alleged to have resigned because she could not approve of the way Miss Claypool was treated.

On June 5 Miss Claypool, more or less under the influence of the drugs, the affidavit says, was taken to the office of Alexander Sidney Rosenthal of 299 Broadway, where she signed certain papers. Among the things which she is alleged to have done on this occasion was to revoke her own will and transfer the power of attorney from Dr. Seaman to Mr. Rosenthal. In this connection, Mr. McKinney in his affidavit says:

"Another document executed either there or in the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark agreed to give Mrs. Hill, I think, $50,000."

Immediately after the conference in Rosenthal's office, the affidavit says, Miss Claypool was taken by Mrs. Hill to the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark. There she remained all the following day, while her cousins, Mrs. B. F. McGee and Mrs. Shinn, both living at Le Marquis Hotel, 12 East Thirty-first Street, were anxiously seeking some trace of her. Before the night was over, the affidavit says, they learned that she was at the Robert Treat Hotel, practically under the supervision of Mrs. Hill. They telephoned to Mrs. Hill that she must either bring Miss Claypool back by daylight or stand the consequences of having the matter reported to the police.

Carried Down Fire Escape.

In the meanwhile Miss Claypool's relatives sent several detectives over to the Treat Hotel. To avoid the sleuths, however, the affidavit says that Mrs. Hill and a man carried Miss Claypool down the fire escape from the eleventh story of the hotel to the street, where they put her into a taxicab.

This was shortly after 1 A. M. on June 7. At 3 A. M. a taxicab stopped in front of the home of Mrs. Grace Cannon, the dressmaker on East Eighty-first Street who had previously received a telephone message from a woman warning her of the arrival of Miss Claypool. On being summoned by the chauffeur, Mrs. Cannon ran out to the taxi, opened the door, and found Miss Claypool lying on the seat stupefied, with a coat and skirt over her night gown and her stockings hanging around her ankles.

She carried Miss Claypool into her home, and, after several hours, succeeded in reviving her. Miss Claypool's relatives were summoned, but they had great difficulty at first in obtaining a clear and coherent account of what had occurred. Finally Miss Claypool told them that she had been "drugged and kidnapped," and had signed certain papers in relation to her will. Her story was then repeated to Mr. McKinney, who presented it in the form of an affidavit to District Attorney Swann and District Attorney Mott of Essex County, N. J.

Says Father Asked Action.

Action was taken immediately in Newark and before the day was over two indictments were reported. District Attorney Swann summoned Lawyer Rosenthal, in whose office Miss Claypool had revoked her will. Mr. Rosenthal declared that he was acting in the interests of Miss Claypool at the request of her father, Augustus Claypool. While he denied that coersion was used in getting Miss Claypool to revoke her will, he admitted that Miss Claypool was taken to the Robert Treat Hotel by Mrs. Hill and that she was removed from there by way of a fire escape in the early morning of June 7. This method of escape was adopted, he said, simply because Mrs. Hill knew she was being shadowed by detectives and wanted to avoid them. Mrs. Hill's interest in Miss Claypool, according to Mr. Rosenthal, was merely that of a friend.

Mr. Rosenthal said Miss Claypool revoked her will so as to transfer the main portion of her estate to her father instead of "wasting it away" on strangers. According to Mr. Rosenthal, the negro maid who received a bequest of $15,000 is now in an insane asylum. What was done by him and by Mrs. Hill, he said, was for the very best interests of Miss Claypool.

When a reporter called at Mrs. Hill's home yesterday, a maid said she had left town on Tuesday night. She did not know where Mrs. Hill had gone or when she would return.

One of the first persons from whom the District Attorney's office could obtain any corroboration yesterday of the Claypool story was Mrs. Cannon, the dressmaker. She told Assistant District Attorney Dooling of the arrival of Miss Claypool at her home in a taxicab on the morning of June 7. After reviving Miss Claypool from what she believed to be the effects of drugs, Mrs. Cannon learned that Mrs. Hill had left the taxicab at Forty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue, with the assurance that she would return to pay the chauffeur. That was the last seen of her.

District Attorney Swann will continue his investigation today.

GOT AUTO THIEVES AT SHOTGUN POINT

Chief Bush of Tuxedo Saw Stolen Car Pass as He Received Telephone Alarm.

PURSUED THREE MILES

Youths Charged with Theft Had Hired Car and Then Expelled Owner on Lonely Road.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., June 21.—Philip Stone, proprietor of a garage in Market Street, entered the office of Captain Tracey in Police Headquarters about noon today, wet to the skin by rain and breathless with excitement. He said two young men had robbed him of an automobile and had left him on a deserted road more than a mile from town to make his way back on foot.

Stone said the young men had entered his garage and asked if he could drive them to Passaic. They said they were anxious to make speed as they had a stop to make on the way, so Stone ushered them into a new automobile and took his place at the wheel. At the direction of the youths he took a seldom traversed road toward Passaic and presently one of the young men asked him to halt the car. He did so and turned about in his seat to see what further was wanted. He found himself looking into the muzzles of a pair of revolvers, one held by each of his passengers.

"Get out here," ordered one of the men, "and if you want your car back again be at the Passaic Bridge at midnight and it will be returned to you. We want to use it meantime, but we don't want to keep it."

Stone said he obeyed orders and started back to town after he had seen one of the men take his place behind the wheel and start the car off toward the north in expert fashion. Captain Tracey instantly began to ask the police of nearby towns, over the telephone, to be on the lookout for Stone's car. He was explaining the robbery to Chief of Police G. O. Bush of Tuxedo, when Chief Bush exclaimed:

"Hold your wire a moment."

Captain Tracey held the wire for a moment and then for five minutes. Presently ten, fifteen, and twenty minutes passed while the Captain tried in vain to get a new connection with Tuxedo or some explanation from Central as to what had happened. He was still trying when Chief Bush's voice sounded over the wire again. Said he:

"I've got 'em. At least I think so. You better come up and look 'em over and bring that garage man with you."

Bush explained that while Tracey had been talking to him he had seen an automobile pass the police station traveling at high speed. Though he had got only a glimpse of it, he was so certain it was Stone's car and the robbers that he grabbed his shotgun, called to a policeman to accompany him, and jumped into his own roadster which stood outside the door.

Then began a chase which carried the Chief three miles north of Tuxedo. The car ahead ran at full speed, but the roadster was faster, and, at last the Chief overtook the flying car and shouted an order to the occupants to stop, emphasizing it with flourishes of his shotgun. The men halted and Bush and his subordinate made them turn the car and drive slowly back to the station.

Tracey and Stone caught the next train for Tuxedo, and there Stone, according to the police, identified the car as his and the men as the ones who had held him up. They said they were William Fenmore, 22 years old, of Newport, R. I., and Frank Simmons, an engineer, of New York City. Both refused to say anything more except that they were willing to stand the consequences of their act. They were locked up, held as fugitives from justice until extradition papers can be forwarded from here.
